"Giving Back the Tests"

The issue of teachers releasing tests to the home is complex, although it seems quite simple on the surface-doesn't having the test at home assist the student? Like with so many issues, the answer might surprise you.

First, educational research shows that the learning benefit to students by reviewing tests in the classroom with the teacher shortly after taking a test far outweighs the learning benefit achieved by reviewing tests at home or with a tutor. For example, the University of Central Florida advises The time immediately after an exam is a significantly important time for learners. When a test is graded and returned, going over exam answers is the best opportunity for learners to discover which study skills worked well and which didn't.

Time Warner to Face Lawsuit

Communications giant stumbles during transfer of service; Beverly Hills law firm sues for breach of contract and fraud.

By Ryan Vaillancourt

Amid growing customer dissatisfaction with Southern California's new cable services provider, Beverly Hills law firm Glassman, Browning & Saltsman has filed a class action suit against Time Warner Cable.

Attorney Alexander Rufus-Isaacs is leading the case against Time Warner Cable.

Citing repeated service outages that have affected "many thousands" of customers, the complaint alleges breach of contract, fraud and negligent misrepresentation among other claims.

When former Adelphia and Comcast cable services subscribers were informed nearly two months ago that their accounts would automatically be transferred to Time Warner Cable, the new provider promised that "services will not be interrupted." But customers claim that interruptions were immediate and have by now become the

What kind of interruptions? According to attorney Alexander Rufus-Isaacs, who is who is representing the plaintiffs, they run the gamut.

"Various bandwidth speeds have been massively reduced, storage capacities have been massively reduced, emails are not going through and a host of problems that go along with having unreliable email, which in this day in age is very difficult," Rufus-Isaacs said.

The complaint, filed in Los Angeles County Superior Court two days before Thanksgiving, alleges a breach of the cable franchise agreement between Time Warner and the City of Los Angeles.

While the agreement between Time Warner and the City of Los Angeles only applies to residents of Los Angeles, the scope of the suit extends well beyond that one agreement, according to Rufus-Isaacs.

"The same principle will apply to any city that has a similar provision in its franchise agreement with Time Warner Cable," he said.

The plaintiffs in the case are defined as all former Adelphia and Comcast customers residing in Southern California that experienced outages or poor services because of the "migration" to Time Warner and did not receive rebates.

Beverly Hills's franchise agreement shares at least one important provision with the City of Los Angeles agreement, namely that the provider is required to credit customers that have experienced unscheduled outages. In Beverly Hills, the provision is stronger – municipal code requires a credit when outages are four hours or longer. In Los Angeles, outages must be at least 24 hours.

While Time Warner maintains a rebate policy, the company has done little to advertise their rebate policy and they have given rebates only to customers who requested them, plaintiffs in the potential case allege.

"The burden for issuing this credit falls upon the company automatically, not upon the customer," the complaint alleges. "There is no provision that requires the customer to request a credit if cable services were not received."

In certain cases, the credit promised by Time Warner, which amounts to a fraction of the subscriber's monthly bill according to the length of the outage, does not cover the losses incurred by customers who rely heavily on internet or phone services for business.

Culver City resident Aaron Cohen, a representative of the plaintiff class in the case, is an independent consultant to non-profits. Cohen said Time Warner and the "incredible problems" he's experienced during the service transfer have cost him at least one significant client.

Dennis Doty, also a member of the plaintiff class, is the Chief Technical Officer of LA Digital Broadcast and Data Networks,

Ballot Order Announced

The Secretary of State has determined the order in which the names of the candidates for Beverly Hills City Council will appear on the March 6 election ballot. The random lottery used to determine the order landed Mayor Steve Webb the first spot. Vice Mayor Jimmy Delshad will be listed last.

The first spot is usually a coveted advantage for candidates, who stand to benefit from what is called the primacy effect.

"Naturally, I'm thrilled to be on the top spot on the ballot, and I look forward to a very spirited and enjoyable campaign," Webb said.

Fellow incumbent Jimmy Delshad was perhaps not as lucky as Webb, and will appear last on the list.

"I have no concerns about [being last]. People know my name and they will look for the name," Delshad said.

Second on the list will be Maggie Soleimani, who as a first-time candidate, could benefit greatly from her favorable spot.

"I'm sure the people who go out and vote study all the candidates and it is not how we are placed on the ballot, but I am happy nevertheless to be number two," Soleimani said.

Next on the list is newcomer Lizza Monet

Political Newcomer Morales Joins Council Race

Lizza Monet Morales, a journalist and television producer, is a last minute addition to the City Council race

Melamed also said that he doesn't think the order will affect voters' decisions.

The entire order will be as follows: Steve Webb Maggie Soleimani Nancy Krasne Lizza Monet Morales Shahram Melamed Jimmy Delshad clerk on the Friday, December 8th deadline last week, making her the final candidate to join the race. Relatively unknown in the political community, Morales only pulled her papers from the City Clerk's office last Wednesday.

Morales, at age 30, is not only a newcomer but a young newcomer.

"I was a bit intimidated by the people running who are incumbents and I've had several people tell me that it's a clique and it's very hard for a newcomer and someone young to come in," Morales said, "[but] I said, 'well people have told me my whole life that I wouldn't be able to do things,' and I have."

Morales works as an on-air and print freelance journalist for outlets such as Access Hollywood, Us Weekly and People Magazine. As resident of Beverly Hills for her "entire adult life," Morales also volunteers at El Rodeo School, where she has a niece, and is active in support for the homeless community.

Among the issues Morales will focus on during the campaign are development, free wireless internet service throughout the city and tenants' rights.

As she embarks on her campaign, Morales will not hide her youth. In fact, she may very well focus on it.

"I represent the younger generation," Morales said. "There are a lot of couples that have been moving into Beverly hills recently and I would like to be the funnel for those concerns."

city and schools cont. from page 3 a technical consulting company that provides high-end engineering and technical services to TV stations. Both the internet and telephone systems in his office crashed two weeks ago and since then, Doty alleges that he has spent over 70 hours on the phone with customer service representatives

"My accountant estimated $9 thousand in billable time lost," Doty said. "Not to mention, I had a project scheduled with people in Europe last week that had to be postponed."

Doty's Time Warner telephone service remains out of order.

"I've been a broadcast engineer for over 20 years, I've moved entire TV stations under my basic supervision and if I would have taken those stations down for 15 minutes, that's tens of thousands of dollars and you're history, you're not an engineer in this business anymore," Doty said.

Vice President of Communications for Time Warner Patti Rockenwagner acknowledged that the service transfer has not been smooth.

"I think when you're dealing with a transition as complex as this, there are a number of issues that come up," Rockenwagner said. "We have staffed up in order to meet the demand of those massive changes and we continue to see progress everyday."

The spurt of internet outages and other disruptions that followed the transfer of cable services in late October has been particularly onerous to customers because Time Warner had stressed a smooth transition in its advertisements. Colorful mailers pledged no interruptions and introduced the company as reliable and convenient. One mailer described the company as "well seasoned in providing the maximum of choice, quality, convenience and affordability."

But when disruptions came without notice, the necessary phone call to customer service has taken hours, many claim. Indeed, complaints filed by Beverly Hills residents have focused more on poor customer service than on the service disruptions themselves.

"The surge and the spike in complaints recently has related to customer service," said Mark Geddes, cable manager for the City of Beverly Hills.

The defense in the case, represented by downtown Los Angeles law firm Case and White, did not return the Weekly's call for comment.

It could be up to a year before the lawsuit is granted or denied its class action status. Until then, both sides will be collecting information and preparing for litigation

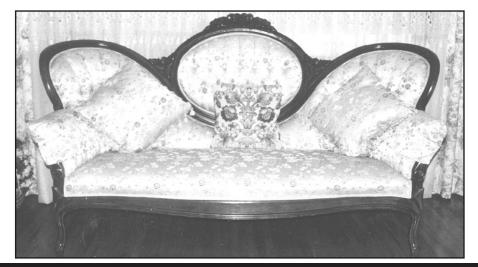

Rockenwagner, who could not comment on the lawsuit, said Time Warner's experience will propel the company through the service problems.

"By and large, we've gone through these technical changes before in other parts of the country and they've been successful and our customers have been very happy with the services," Rockenwagner said, "once we're able to deliver them."

Jimmy Carter Bombs

And test results still divide district By Rudy Cole

NOTE TO FRIENDS, PUBLICISTS AND CREDITORS: My email system is not working. Put simply, the "migration" of Adelphia to Time Warner, my internet service has collapsed, despite the best and very helpful efforts of the Time Warner technicians. If I haven't responded and you need to reach me, try calling or use smoke signals.

Jimmy Carter should have stopped while he was ahead. Since leaving office, incidentally by vote of the people, he has earned a well deserved reputation for his efforts on behalf of the homeless and in attempting to resolve regional disputes, sometimes called meddling by both Republican and Democratic administrations.

Now he has opened up a gigantic political can of reptiles with a book that, no matter how you spin it, is clearly a one sided defense of the extremists in the Arab world.

But there is one historic note not mentioned in the book: The Carter administration's own disastrous contribution to the problems in the Middle East.

Clearly, the Shah's regime in Iran was oppressive and bordering on a police state. Iran, one of the oldest civilizations in the world, could have had a rational transition from an authoritarian monarchy to a true democracy. Instead, while the United States waffled or looked the other way, a fascist Islamic extremist led a revolution that changed the world forever. We deserted an ally and friend during Carter's hold on the West Wing.

That too is a Carter legacy. Never mind the botched attempts at rescuing the hostages and the failure to mobilize world and Middle East opinion in support of freeing Americans captured by the tools of the government of Iran – events that contribute to Carter's election defeat, his four years led to enormous problems of inflation and, of course, the worst energy crisis in our history.

Yes, there was Camp David, but Egypt and Israel under the leadership of Anwar Sadat and Menachem Begin, had made their personal peace before Carter arranged their neeting.

It is sad that Carter is now writing and mouthing the most inane nonsense in the debate on resolving the Israel-Arab differences. History will not judge him kindly. A reasonable and rational dialogue, which he could have led had he put aside his long antipathy to Israel, would have better served the needs of achieving a real peace in the region. What he has done, whether international or not, has given the hard liners ammunition in not working for a peace that comes close to reality.

Has Israel made mistakes? Of course it has, but it is a nation and a people who have real enemies bent on destroying their country and murdering their population. The one glaring reality is that peace would come immediately if there were no terrorist attacks, if all the nations of the Arab world recognized a fundamental need: The simple right of Israel to exist. Now that Carter has established his bona fides with the Islamic hard liners, he should take his message to Iran and Syria and ask them to immediately establish diplomatic relations with Israel. Good luck.

Israel might want to banish the name James or Jimmy. From Jimmy Carter to a naïve segment of the James Baker et al report on the Iraq war which calls for the return of land captured during the six day war, it has been a bad month for the tiny democracy.

points, the return of the Golan Heights to Syria. Now, much of what the Iraq war study outlines may have merit, but I once stood beneath the Golan Heights and had an Israeli tell me about its use before the Israeli army drove out the Syrians.

During the intervals of peace, the Syrians used the heights to shell settlers below. This was not when the nations were formally at war, but when they were supposedly not belligerents. Syria simply fired at will. Not at military targets, but civilians. Now, with that history, should Israel return a strategic spot without a peace treaty, without assurances that the Golan will not once again be used for target practice? Why would they?

As for the assumption that if only Israel would accede to all Arab nations demands, peace would come to the region and the world, there needs to be a slight touch of reality. The religious civil war now being fought in Iraq has nothing to do with Israel.

What is happening in Iraq may be our worst national tragedy. It is intolerable for us to send our young men and women to fight and die in a war that has lost the support of the American people, regardless of the merits of our efforts. If the Arab nations want peace, it is their troops that should be in Iraq separating the religious fanatics.

But there was one hopeful sign this week that may have not received sufficient attention, and it happened in Iran, of all places. As the bizarre Iranian conference on the Holocaust was being assembled, students at an Iran university burned pictures of their president! Incidentally, America's leading racist, David Duke, was one of the atte dees.

Last week, the hot button issue of whether teachers should be required to make copies of tests available to parents or students, came up during the installation of the new school board president, usually a ceremonial installation meeting.

However, the issue has escalated into an unfortunate confrontation between teachers on the one side and the new school superintendent, the whole board and parents on the other. Both sides need to lower their voices, although it was the teachers who decided to go public with the test issue in a very confrontational manner during the board meeting.

Without rehashing all the arguments, many of them understandable on both sides, it was interesting to learn how copies of tests are handled in some other districts. Most do not have written policies as we now do. In Irvine, the decision is up to the teachers and a school official there used almost the same languages

Second, not everyone in Beverly Hills can afford tutors that charge anywhere from $50-$100/hour. There is an equity issue at play. While many tutors in our community do good work, some tutors keep banks of teachers' tests and use those very tests to teach our students. Instead of reviewing the underlying concepts, these tutors do a disservice by encouraging our students to memorize a narrow list of questions. Those who can afford tutors have as our teachers to explain: Tests are hard to construct and giving them out invades the rights of the teaching staff. On the other hand, both a private school and a public school in Los Angeles said that having the tests was a critical element of improving parent involvement in the learning process.

Yes, that is important to parents, teachers and administrations, but not so critical as to dominate and interrupt the main chore of the district: teaching the kids. If the two sides can not put this to rest in a sensible, accommodating manner, it may be time to bring in an arbitrator. Having said that, and like it or not, it is the school board that, after following due and fair process, make policies. Please don't suggest Jimmy Carter.

Now that ballot placement has been decided, and the original field of five enlarged by the entry of a sixth, and as yet hardly known contender, let the contest begin.

How important are ballot spots? George Washington was first in war, first in peace and first in the hearts of out countrymen, but Mayor Steve Webb is number one on the ballot. The most coveted spot: Second, and the winner is Maggie Soleimani. Fortunately for all the candidates down on the list, this is a very aware community and ballot positions will have only a minor real impact on the election.

There is a problem, however: It is a civic shame that only small percentage of eligible voters actually take the time to vote in person or absentee. How will the turn out effect the election? Very hard and too early too predict, but Nancy Krasne seems to have made strong inroads into anti-growth forces who are also being solicited by Shahram Melamed, but as yet not as effectively. Soleimani has younger voters and education forces joining her and the incumbents, including Vice Mayor Jimmy Delshad, who placed last in the ballot drawing, depending on what they believe is general support of this council. Delshad, it should be noted, is not taking anything for granted and is doing major walking in the city. Melamed had the first newspaper ads, although the messages were not on issues, and Nancy has a good list of identifiable supporters.

As for the newest candidate, we have yet to hear from her. But her last name, Morales, does bring back memories of a song Chorus Line teacher and parent. Teachers believe that maintaining strong parent-teacher ties better greater access to test information than others. Wholesale release of tests only exacerbates this inequity.

Third, teachers want to support parents in their child's learning. There are so many avenues available that a) are more effective than releasing tests and b) do not create inequity. With a phone call or an e-mail, parents can arrange to sit down with their child and their child's teacher and have the teacher explain the test results. As opposed to using a tutor, the meeting with the teacher is free and helps to keep the lines of communication open. Also, textbook publishing companies now offer their own test preparation websites that work to reinforce key concepts, not just narrow lists of test questions. One of my favorites is: www.glencoe.com.

Finally, rest assured that BHUSD teachers do return tests to students for review. Teachers give students the opportunity to learn from their mistakes in class. This is where the student sees the most benefit. While teachers do make their tests available for review, teachers

COVERSTORY HOLIDAY HAPPENINGS IN BEVERLY HILLS

Celebrating the season with festive decorations and events citywide. By Marissa Pendergrass

Classic and retro define the 2006 holiday season as local events draw a crowd in Beverly Hills. Hanukkah celebrations and the countdown to Christmas will keep merchants frenzied and registers slamming until the last minute. From gift purchases to dining, thousands will visit the City to enjoy what is unique to the area – extravagant decorations, music in the streets and world renowned shopping destinations.

Local merchants and retailers have made Beverly Hills a unique attraction for visitors, tourists, and neighbors from surrounding cities for over 80 years. With the city all lit up and sparkling with festive decorations, businesses have been in full swing for the holidays since Thanksgiving.

Serving the community for over 80 years, the Beverly Hills Chamber of Commerce devised a three-year strategy to carry out the City's prestigious reputation during the holidays. A committee of retailers, restaurateurs, and hotels was formed to develop strategies and tactics for implementing the seasonal plans.

Dan Walsh, CEO of the Beverly Hills Chamber of Commerce, described the plan request from the City of Beverly Hills.

"The plan works to bring a cohesive look across the city, it brought about a number of new features such as the speakers on South Beverly Drive, North Beverly Drive, and Rodeo Drive," Walsh said.

Kathy Smits, Director of Conference and Visitors Bureau for the Chamber, spearheaded the committee this year and called the community together in celebration of the season. "Overall, the city charged us with the responsibility of putting together a cohesive holiday experience to give the City the same look and feel throughout," Smits said. "The speakers added ambiance and gave the retro, cool feel implying that what's old is new and cool again."

Listed below is an all inclusive guide compiled by the Weekly to help our readers make this holiday season one to remember for years to come.

Santa's Workshops

Bouquets, poinsettias, wreaths, and specialty centerpieces for the holiday season are made fresh to order from KaBloom at 8326-A Wilshire Boulevard. Arrangements for Christmas, Hanukkah, and the winter season will be available through the end of the year.

Doug Herman, Owner of KaBloom of Beverly Hills, manages his franchised store and aims to offer only the very best service to his customers.

"Season has been going very well and home décor season has been going quite well," Herman said. "Some of the most popular items are customized wreaths, boxed holiday cards, poinsettias, orchids, and blooming kits."

For information call 323-251-3564 or order online at www.kabloomofbeverlyhills.com.

Fine men's clothing and sportswear cover a vital niche in Beverly Hills. G.B. Harb & Son of Beverly Hills at 336 North Camden Drive celebrates the season with increased sales and an abundance of female shoppers this year. Naturally with a 35 year success story, George Harb knows where his store fits into the Beverly Hills community. "We are what you would describe as an updated and traditional store carrying a variety of including Robert Talbott," Harb said. "A lot of wives are coming in to shop for gifts for their husbands for Christmas."

G.B. Harb & Son is running "The Fourth Annual G.B. Harb & Son Swap Meet", a special promotion in honor of the holiday season. Shoppers are encouraged to bring in any old tie, sport coat and slacks or suit for donation to the Skid Row Development of Los Angeles with the incentive of receiving $20 off any new tie, and $150 off any new suit or sport coat and slacks combo.
