City consultant questions Metro's subway safety and fault reports

A hazard assessment study of the Westside Subway Extension released last Friday by the City of Beverly Hills stated that previously released safety and fault reports prepared on behalf of Metro made no attempt to quantify or qualitatively assess the potential risks of potential hazards associated with the subway tunneling project.

"It is Exponent's opinion that much more work needs to be performed to accurately identify, quantify, rank and mitigate the potential hazards posed by the proposed Westside Subway Extension Project before the definitive choice of one of the two presented alternatives or even potentially a third one can be made," the report, which was prepared by Exponent Inc., concludes.

Exponent Vice President and Principal Engineer Piotr Moncarz presented the report to the City Council Tuesday afternoon. He acknowledged the experts that conducted the studies for Metro are capable in their fields.

"We are not attacking the reports for what they have done; we are just saying those reports are not complete enough to draw conclusions about which route should be [selected]," Moncarz said.

In response to Councilmember Julian Gold asking Moncarz what grade he would give a graduate student submitting the Metro report as a final exam, Moncarz responded, "I think this would not be sufficient for a degree."

Responding to the Exponent report in a letter to Mayor Barry Brucker, Metro CEO Arthur Leahy wrote, "I can assure you that MTA will not select an unsafe alternative for the subway."

Leahy said the safety and fault reports Metro prepared are only part of the Final EIR/EIS that has not yet been released.

"[The Final EIR/EIS] may contain information and analysis relevant to some of the questions and concerns raised by your consultants," Leahy wrote.

Brucker said Wednesday the City would be sending a letter and DVD of Moncarz's presentation to Leahy and Metro Chair Antonio Villaraigosa. The City will also request that Metro evaluate and address concerns raised by the report. Leahy said Metro's technical team will be reviewing the Exponent report.

"One [concern is] that we do not believe that an adequate study was done on the Santa Monica alignment [near Century Park East]," Brucker said. "A more sophisticated and accurate trenching option should be implemented so that we can once and for all determine whether there actually are faults on Santa Monica Boulevard and whether they are active faults."

Exponent was contracted by the City to perform a peer review of Metro's safety assessment, which recommended locating the subway station in Century City at Constellation Boulevard, because of the presence of earthquake fault zones along Santa Monica Boulevard in Century City. That location would involve tunneling under Beverly High.

The alignment Brucker referred to is the third alternative under consideration. Metro's experts reported active fault lines at that location as well.

According to Exponent, the Constellation Boulevard location is "faced with potential methane gas hazards that could represent at least as great a hazard to the public as the faulting hazards associated with the Santa Monica Boulevard station." Exponent recommended taking additional steps to quantify seismic and gas hazards at both potential station locations and considering "potential adjustments" to the proposed locations.

In response to Exponent's point about methane gas, Leahy wrote, "It should be noted that the subway has operated for nearly 20 years in a methane gas area in downtown Los Angeles without incident. Moreover, Congress lifted a federal funding ban on subway tunneling in the Westside in 2007 following a report from an independent task force finding that advances in subway tunneling in the past two decades had made tunneling safe in areas of methane and other gases."

Moncarz said Metro's reports did not identify the amount of methane gas present in the area or propose steps for addressing the issue.

Following the release of Metro's geotechnical reports that stated active faults extended beneath Beverly High's campus, the BHUSD contracted Leighton Consultants to conduct a detailed review of Metro's reports and to conduct an independent on-campus site investigation that has involved drilling soils borings across campus to extract soil samples, and trenching across campus.

"As of now, no active faults have been found," Board of Education President Brian Goldberg said last Friday.

Goldberg said the initial work anticipated by the district has been completed but the U.S. Geological Survey and California Geological Survey have requested additional work for confirmation purposes. Goldberg said he expects the work to wrap up in the next couple of weeks, and the front lawn will be prepared for graduation.

Goldberg called the work that the district and City have done a "one-two punch" to Metro's science.

"The [Exponent] report basically confirms what we have known all along, which is that MTA has not done their due diligence as it relates to safety and seismic issues, as it relates to the possibility of tunneling under Beverly High, and their reports were designed to support a preordained outcome, and they don't have the science to back up that pre-ordained outcome," Goldberg said.

City Council supports fine art purchase; recommends outreach for moving "Erratic"

Endless III

The City Council expressed unanimous support Tuesday afternoon of the Fine Art Commission's proposal to purchase a piece by Spanish artist Jaume Plensa that will be placed in Beverly Gardens Park.

Plensa's sculpture Endless III, which is made of stainless steel letters fused together, will be placed in the park between Beverly and Rodeo drives near Yayoi Kusama's Hymn of Life: Tulips. The Commission has proposed relocating Roxy Paine's Erratic, the steel boulders, to the same area along Santa Monica Boulevard to form a "critical mass," or sculpture garden. Erratic is currently located on Santa Monica Boulevard between Crescent and Rexford drives, across the street from City Hall.

Though the City Council supported the proposed location for Endless III, Vice Mayor Willie Brien speculated residents might complain about moving Erratic, which has not been embraced by the entire community. Mayor Barry Brucker proposed notifying the Beverly Hills Presbyterian Church, which is located across the street from the proposed new location, about the potential move. Councilmember Julian Gold suggested reaching out to occupants on Park Way as well.

The cost of the commissioned Endless III is $350,000, including shipping from Europe, Assistant Director of Community Services Nancy Hunt-Coffey reported. Hunt-Coffey said she would bring back a proposal at a formal meeting that would include ancillary costs of creating a base and lighting for the piece. She said the cost of moving Erratic, which would involve a crane, is estimated at $10,000. All of these costs would be covered by the City's Fine Art Fund, which currently has a balance of approximately $960,000.

Part of the appeal of Endless III, Fine Art Commission Vice Chair Terri Smooke said, is that the fused stainless steel letters represent eight languages. Councilmember Lili Bosse, who is a liaison to the Commission with Councilmember John Mirisch, said she agreed the piece would resonate with the community.

"This was a piece that I know the Commission was excited about, and clearly the Recreation and Parks Commission was excited about it," Bosse said. "When I saw it I got very excited about it and wanted it myself. I think it does speak to our community."

Language issue postpones council vote on convenience store ordinance

A late change in language to a proposed ordinance that would affect future "high impact" convenience stores in Beverly Hills prompted the City Council to table the ordinance until Feb. 21. At issue was language for Finding No. 6 that would essentially prohibit high impact convenience stores-stores that dedicate over half the square footage to the sale of general food and drink products, tobacco, magazines and toiletries; open before 7 a.m. or close after 9 p.m.; and have on-site surface parking or are located within 300 feet of a residential zone-from operating in specified City locations, including a "location that is an entry to the city", "prominent intersections", or "anchor locations."

West Hollywood City Council approves parking structure for Neman Hall

The West Hollywood City Council voted 3-2 Monday night to approve plans for a proposed parking structure at the Iranian American Jewish Center (IAJC) on North Crescent Heights Boulevard.

Mayor John Duran, Mayor Pro Tem Jeff Prang and Councilmember John D'Amico voted in favor of the proposal. Councilmembers John Heilman and Abbe Land dissented.

The parking structure was proposed a few years ago as a way to mitigate some of the neighboring residents' concerns about noise associated with late-night events at Neman Hall, but the structure became a source of additional concerns including potential noise and fumes, and its proximity to the adjacent apartment building.

The three-level, 100-space parking structure was approved by the Planning Commission in March 2011, along with a conditional use permit for the IAJC, but both the IAJC and its neighbors appealed the decision. The IAJC appealed because restricted hours of operation would be imposed as part of the CUP, and the neighbors appealed because they believed the proposed hours were still too late, among other concerns.

On Monday night, the Council voted to grant the IAJC more extensive hours than had been previously recommended by the Planning Commission. The approved hours of operation are Monday to Wednesday until midnight, Thursday and Friday until 12:30 a.m. and Saturday and Sunday until 1:30 a.m.

Iranian American Jewish Federation President Shahla Javdan said the IAJC is currently operating under those hours and said it has been working. The IAJC was pleased with the outcome, she said.

"It's been a very, very long process and of course this is a costly proposition," Javdan said. "We wanted to be good neighbors, and we wanted everyone to be happy."

mended that the finding state, "If proposed at a gateway, anchor location, or prominent intersection, as determined by the decision-making authority, the use will be appropriate for the location."

During the City Council's discussion Tuesday evening, Vice Mayor Willie Brien expressed concern the revised language was too restrictive.

"[Finding] No. 6 as originally written gives great discretion to the Planning Commission and ultimately the City Council to make those decisions," Brien said. "In terms of whether it's an appropriate location for one of these stores or not, my challenge with the way it's been rewritten is that this says you can't make the finding if [the proposed use] is at a prominent intersection."

City Attorney Larry Wiener said his office changed the language.

"In the review from our office, we weren't comfortable that was language that could be implemented in the long term," Wiener said, stating the goal had been to revise the language, but still reflect the Planning Commission's intent.

Councilmembers agreed to table the issue and send it back to the Planning Commission for its review and revision at a special meeting this afternoon. The City Council will consider the revised ordinance on Feb. 21. The current interim high impact convenience store ordinance, which does not include Finding No. 6, expires April 20.

The ordinance would require convenience stores defined as high impact to apply for a conditional use permit to operate in Beverly Hills. In the past, proposals for convenience stores meeting the minimum code requirements could have been approved by right.

Councilmember John Mirisch voluntarily recused himself because he lives within 500 feet of the site of a potential 7-Eleven that could be impacted by the ordinance. In October, the Planning Commission heard a project preview of an application for a 7-Eleven at 401 S. Robertson Blvd. and has requested additional studies and designs for the project.

replace Robert Barbot, who was retiring from his post as Newport-Mesa Unified School District's superintendent after eight years with the district.

Last week, the NMUSD Board of Education announced Barbot was returning as interim superintendent to replace Hubbard, who was fired on Jan. 24, the day after he was convicted of two felonies for misappropriation of public funds related to his work in Beverly Hills. Hubbard was acquitted of a third felony charge.

"We're very pleased to have [Barbot]," NMUSD Board of Education President David Brooks said. "He's a person who will bring a tremendous amount of knowledge to Newport-Mesa. He's served before. He's a person that will be able to come right to work."

NMUSD's deputy superintendent and chief business official, Paul Reed, was named as acting superintendent immediately following Hubbard's termination. Reed, who had acted as superintendent during Hubbard's approximately five months of paid leave last year, was not considered for the interim superintendent position because the district needs him to focus on NMUSD's finances, Brooks said.

According to Brooks, the details of Barbot's contract are still being worked out. Barbot, who currently resides in Northern California, will receive $960 per day, plus a housing allowance. As part of the agreement, Barbot will conduct the nationwide search for a permanent superintendent. Since Barbot's retirement from NMUSD, Barbot has been involved in conducting superintendent searches, Brooks said.

Barbot is expected to begin working between Feb. 23 and March 5. His contract will continue until July 31.

Hubbard, who will be sentenced Feb. 23, has said he will appeal.

Superintendent seeks community feedback about academics, athletics and arts

When Superintendent Gary Woods revealed his BHUSD action plan in September, he announced part of that plan would be to engage stakeholders in the process of influencing policies that benefit students.

Since the action plan focuses on advancing student excellence in academics, athletics and the arts, Woods decided to form three superintendent advisory committees that would be represented by stakeholders in each of those three fields.

This Friday, Woods will meet with a group of stakeholders that will assist him with establishing the three committees. His goal is to have all three up and running by May.

Since the BHUSD already has a visual and performing arts committee, known as VAPA, Woods said the focus this vear would be on the academic and athletics advisory committees.

"[Committees] always a little different in every district," Woods said. "That's why I wanted to make sure I'm hitting all the correct marks for this community and this particular school district [by meeting with stakeholders now]."

Woods expects Friday's workshop to help him determine the types of stakeholders that should serve on each committee, length of term, duties, and selection process, among other things.

"I knew that we needed to develop a district that involves stakeholders, involves our city leaders, our business owners, our parents," Woods said. "What I know about good school districts is the very best school districts have strong partnerships within their communities. There are a lot of people that take ownership of the district, and take ownership of the excellence [we're] striving toward and offer [their] resources, their thoughts and opinions, and their expertise."

Traffic and Parking Commission sets 2012 Work Plan; establishes North Alta Drive permit zone

Meeting last week for the first time in 2012, the Traffic and Parking Commission set its work plan for the year.

Steinberg, who chaired her first meeting Feb. 2, said the Commission would pay close attention to the Sunset Boulevard improvement implementation plan, which will prevent drivers cross-

> "We'll be watching that to see if it's serving its purpose," Steinberg said.

Later on in the meeting, the Commission voted unanimously to recommend establishing a preferential parking zone that will prohibit parking-except by permit-on the 500 block of North Alta Drive between 8 p.m. and 2:30 a.m.

According to the staff report, no parking regulations on that block currently exist, and residents are experiencing a "diminished quality of life, including noise, litter, and safety, resulting from late night restaurant/employee activity from adjacent West Hollywood businesses." Seventeen of 19

Applications trickle in for new Cultural Heritage Commission

The City's call to fill four positions on the new Cultural Heritage Commission has prompted 19 potential candidates to request application packets so far. As of Monday afternoon, two candidates had completed and returned their applications in advance of the 5 p.m. deadline on Feb. 17.

The five-member Cultural Heritage Commission, which will be chaired by former Planning Commissioner Noah Furie, has been established as part of the City Council's historic preservation ordinance, which passed unanimously on Jan. 24.

The Commission will meet quarterly and make recommendations to the City Council on preservation issues including designation of historic properties and applications to the Mills Act program.

Council scores on subway

And water bills and candidates

By Rudy Cole

Following months of often divisive rhetoric by some members of the Board of Education, it was the city council and not the Board that produced the most rational study supporting opposition of tunneling under our high school for the Westside Subway Extension.

What happened? Tuesday the City Council heard a report from their own consultants that raised highly professional questions on two issues: Is it safe to tunnel under the southwest residential and high school and is the alternative the city supports, Santa Monica Boulevard, too close to earthquake fault lines?

The conclusion: Serious safety issues of approving the Constellation (southwest) scheme and not nearly sufficient grounds for rejecting the Santa Monica alternative.

While the old Board was throwing scarce school money at Washington lobbyists, some with ties to right wing, Republican political views shared by a board member, and engaging in highly emotional attacks on the "council majority" and other, mostly Democratic city and county elected officials, for "endangering the lives of the children" it was the council that brought the best usable resource to the debate: A believable study.

Dividing our community for private political agendas and alienating our possible allies outside Beverly Hills was a disservice to our community.

Allegations that respected elected officials such as County Supervisor Zev Yaroslavsky or Los Angeles Councilmember Paul Koretz were either uncaring or controlled by "business interests" was totally counterproductive. Incidentally, a development project in Century City the route was supposed to help was "dead on arrival" according to Koretz.

That is not to say that Century City business interests didn't support the Constellation route as did many responsible Western Los Angeles homeowner associations. Of course they preferred a station in the middle of Century City. But our arguments against the route lacked reason and scientific support and was too insular, at best, and too irrational at worst, to sway the real decision makers: The MTA board.

So, now we have the ability to respond to the MTA scientific panel that provided arguments for Constellation and opposed Santa Monica Boulevard. First, the MTA experts are also highly qualified professionals and not likely to produce a report just to implement preconceived views of the MTA. Equally important, the city council's scientist-consultants were not charged with providing tools to fight the MTA; they were asked to make findings that were scientifically defensible, and they did.

The city retained one of the most respected analytical firms in the nation: the Exponent consultants. Their lead researcher was Dr. Piotr D. Moncarz. He has a Stanford University doctorate in structural engineering and a Master's in civil engineering from the University of Colorado.

When he made his report to the council Tuesday all five members not only listened carefully, but so did the MTA.

Although he carefully defended the MTA experts and their study, MTA Chief Executive Officer Arthur T. Leahy, in a letter to the council, welcomed the Exponent study and said it would become part of the analysis submitted to their board later this year. More important, Leahy said "I can assure you that the MTA will not select an unsafe alternative for the subway."

Of course, our effort to assure safety and viability for the subway route is a long way from being over. However, just maybe we can now approach this with reason and logic and not personal agendas or irrational allegations. A united community will finally give us some credibility.

Congratulations to Mayor Barry Brucker, Vice Mayor Dr. Willie Brien, Councilmembers Lili Bosse, Dr. Julian Gold and John Mirisch for supporting the study, and equally important, for all of the reasonable and incisive questions they posed to the consultants. It also helped to have two physician, science oriented members, Drs. Gold and Brien, present some insightful queries to the consultant.

Hopefully, the new board members will follow the lead of their colleague Jake Manaster in reducing political posturing and working with, not against, the council and the thoughtful citizen majority who want a successful effort to prevent tunneling under our high school. This community is far too sophisticated not to spot political opportunism and grand stand posturing.

A special accolade to Dr. Moncarz. If we win this fight, we can cite his appearance at the council and his group's study as the beginning of a whole new contest. Yes, it is for the future students of the high school, and they will look back on our efforts for signs of reason and civic unity, not with approval of private wars or political gains. (The full report is available on the city's web site as is the MTA response.)

Finally, it is time to put aside the distortion that Mayor Brucker and all of his council colleagues are not united in opposing tunneling under the high school.

WATER BILL PROBLEMS

So, what should the city do when a user delinquent bill over to collection or, a plan suggested by city staff, placing a lien on the property following a public hearing.

Credit staff for trying to find a rational solution even though the council found the public humiliation of a public hearing too onerous.

Former Mayor Nancy Krasne enlivened the public hearing Tuesday with an interesting side issue: She had inadvertently mailed a check, made out to the city, to a telephone company and even though the check was clearly to the city, the check was cashed. She argued that this mistake should not lead to her or anyone else being assessed penalties.

either cannot or will not pay their water

None of the alternatives are very attractive: Shutting off the water, turning the

Despite Lili Bosse's very probing questions, and Mayor Brucker's citing of an extreme hardship case—a family of six, four children and two adults, who could not afford to pay the bill and who were faced with the loss of water—staff had a responsibility to warn that when water services are not paid, the costs have to be absorbed by those who do.

Often, there are special circumstances not precisely covered by the rules or there are disputes on possible errors in the billing. How should these be handled? Also, what happens when a new owner buys property or a tenant faces loss of water services because the property owner did not pay the bill?

There is a possible solution: Create an independent hearing officer process with the possible utilization of the American Arbitration Association or the retired judges group that provides similar remedies in legal disputes. A user could appeal for a hearing, and this process would respect confidentiality because it involves possible litigation.

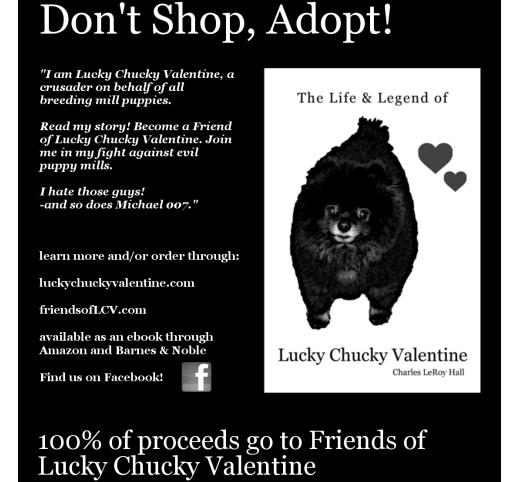

However, Tuesday it did seem the council was jumping on the messenger—city staff, and not trying to find a solution to what is clearly a complex problem.

WHO WILL RUN? NEW NAMES EMERGE

Clearly, Mayor Brucker will be passing the gavel to Dr. Willie Brien next month with some notable successes during his term, not the least of which is a responsible financial condition of city resources, something all members can point to with considerable pride.

At the same time, the political games are likely to begin. Three councilmembers, Brucker, Brien and John Mirisch are up for possible re-election next year. Brucker for a possible third term and the others for a second. Brucker and Brien easily led the field four years ago, but Mirisch's was a squeaker.

None of them have yet made any announcements on their intentions. But if all three do seek re-election, their differences and their areas of agreement will certainly be issues in the election. Brucker is one of the best and most vigorous campaigners in our history and has a strong cadre of activist supporters, Dr. Brien may well be one of the most respected people ever to serve in city government and Mirisch does appeal to those usually found in opposition to whatever is the council majority.

Will all three run? Probably, but there are distractions: Brucker has a family wedding during the campaign that could distract his most important campaigner, wife Sue. Dr. Brien has medical and management responsibilities at Cedars and Mirisch is just starting a new job.

Two candidates have emerged that are likely to seek office no matter the decision of the incumbents, and both are very formidable: Planning Commissioner Brian Rosenstein, a fourth generation resident, and former planning commissioner Kathy

There is a husband wife team of commissioners that present an interesting possibility. Suppose Traffic and Parking Commissioner Lester Friedman and Recreation and Parks Commissioner Simone Friedman ran as a spousal team? Seriously, both are highly competent and well liked. The only remotely similar situation arose when then Councilmember Tom Levyn abruptly dropped out of a try for a fourth term when his ex-wife. Karen, then also a commissioner, warned she too would run if he did.

Others often mentioned with strong backing include Charitable Solicitations Commissioner Alan Kaye-he and his family also have a long and prestigious connection to city service, former commissioner Noah Furie who probably could easily have won last time had he run and another almost-ran in the last election. Planning Commissioner Craig Corman. For all kinds of reasons, this is probably not a time when any school board member would have a chance of election to the council, although some had given it consideration.

matter who runs, but probably fewer if all three incumbents run, unlike the last school board election. Interestingly, and for obvious reasons, more highly qualified citizens applied for a recent planning commission vacancy than even considered

Spencer Paysinger, a 2006 graduate, made one tackle on special teams and assisted on a second in the New York Giants' 21-17 victory over the New England Patriots in Super Bowl XLVI Sunday in Indianapolis.

Paysinger, a rookie special teams player and linebacker, is the first Beverly High alumnus to play in the Super Bowl.

At least one alumnus played in an NFL Championship Game, the league's title game before the Super Bowl was created in conjunction with the 1966 merger agreement between the NFL and American Football League, Al Barry, a guard in the Giants' losses in 1958 and 1959 games.

Paysinger assisted on Jacquian Williams' tackle of Julian Edelman on a 21-yard return on the kickoff to begin the second half and made a solo tackle of Edelman on a 21-yard return on the kickoff following Lawrence Tynes' field goal with six minutes, 47 seconds left in the third quarter that cut New England's lead to 17-12.

To Donald Paysinger, Spencer Paysinger's father and the Normans' football coach, having a son who is a Super Bowl champion "is better than a dream."

Donald Paysinger was among the crowd of 68,658 at Lucas Oil Stadium.

"I enjoyed the whole first half," which ended with New York trailing 10-9 as the Patriots drove 96 yards on 14 plays on their final possession for the go-ahead touchdown, Donald Paysinger said.

"The fourth quarter was very intense. It was nerve-wracking. There were a few plays [on New York's final, game-winning drive] I couldn't watch."

Donald Paysinger said he was able to watch the game's final play when New England quarterback Tom Brady's pass fell incomplete in the Giants' end zone.

OPPONENTS SILENT ON PAUL

We have had left and right wing extremists seek the presidency in the past, but seldom are they represented in one person. Dr. Ron Paul has that honor. He aligns himself with Occupy Wall Street-and his fellow candidates remain silent, and he argues that we should not interfere in Iran's quest for a nuclear weapon and not provide support for our most needy citizens, again with mostly silence from his GOP competitors.

As for Mitt Romney, the supposed moderate in the contest, just maybe the American people found his argument that while he blamed President Barack Obama for a failed economy, when there was significant improvements, it was not because of the President. Voters are a little too sophisticated for that argument, even Republicans.

COVERSTORY LOVE IS IN THE AIR

This Valentine's Day, two Beverly Hills couples share their beginnings to lifelong love

GLORIA BORAZ AND STANLEY GOLDBLATT Reunited After 60 Years

Gloria Boraz and Stanley Goldblatt: Then and now

When longtime Horace Mann teacher Gloria Boraz's grandchildren signed her up for Facebook, she did not expect to make a love connection.

But by accepting a friend request from Stanley Goldblatt, a former college flame, that's exactly what happened.

Goldblatt looked Boraz up on Facebook after spotting her name, known to him in college as Gloria Zemliak, on the list for their 60th college reunion. Goldblatt ended up missing the reunion, but the courtship began about one year later when Boraz sent Goldblatt a birthday greeting via Facebook in April 2011.

"He wrote back to me. He said, 'You were my date on my 21st birthday,' and sent a picture of the two of us; I was 19, he was 21 and we really liked each other," Boraz said. "So then I found another picture here in my house, a beautiful one of him in a tuxedo and me in a formal [gown] for a [Sigma Alpha Mu] fraternity dance at Washington University [in St. Louis]."

Goldblatt and Boraz grew up in St. Louis and attended the same high school, but it wasn't until they were university students that they began dating. Though they did not remember many details from their relationship, Goldblatt said Boraz must have been special to him because he wouldn't have asked "just anybody" to be his date to the spring formal.

After months of exchanging e-mails and phone calls, Goldblatt and Boraz agreed to meet in Las Vegas this past September, between Boraz's home in Beverly Hills and Goldblatt's home in Chicago.

"Of course, my family thought I was crazy going off to Las Vegas to meet a man I hadn't seen in 60 years," Boraz said. "We were there for three days. We fell in love."

Over three days, Boraz said the pair talked so much, her mouth hurt. They reminisced about their hometown and old friends from college. The concierge sent them champagne, and Goldblatt ordered yellow roses to Boraz's room with a note: "Thank you for coming."

The couple found love in Las Vegas, and also some luck. Boraz walked away with $150 in winnings after shooting craps for the first time, and rolling three 11's in a row.

"The other people around the table were so excited," Goldblatt said. "They were betting with her. We've had just a wonderful time together, and as I said, I want to do it for the rest of our lives."

Goldblatt and Boraz have agreed to spend the cooler months in Beverly Hills and the warmer months in Chicago.

"[One of Goldblatt's sons] said, 'What's your rush?" Boraz said. "Our philosophy is at our age, you don't have time to wait around and go through all that. Either you want to be together and you're in love or you're not. We knew we were. We had the memory, that thread."

The mystery, Goldblatt said, is why they broke up 60 years ago.

"I was 19. What did I know about love and about relationships? What did I know about life?" Boraz said.

As a college senior, Goldblatt met Katherine Klauber, another fellow university student, and they married two years later. Goldblatt described their marriage as a love affair that lasted 54 years, until Klauber's death four years ago. The couple had three sons, who live in Chicago and Virginia, and Goldblatt has eight grandchildren.

A friend set Boraz up with Martin Boraz, an Air Force Captain about 10 years her senior. The married couple lived in Chicago and Fairbanks, Alaska while Martin was in the service, before moving to California, where Martin worked in liquor sales. The family chose Beverly Hills for the schools, which played an integral role in the lives and careers of the four Boraz women Boraz taught at Horace Mann for 29 years, and last fall was recognized for 40 years of service in the BHUSD. Boraz, an Apple Award winner and Teacher of the Year honoree, has been substitute teaching since her retirement in 1998. All three of Boraz's daughters, Barbara Zarider, Nancy Friedman and Leslie Boraz, attended Beverly Vista and Beverly High and have spent their careers as educators at El Rodeo, Beverly High and Horace Mann. Between her three daughters, Boraz has four grandsons.

Following Martin's death 27 years ago, Boraz said she has had relationships, "but I never cared about them the way I do Stanley."

Goldblatt said he felt the same way.

"There's a Jewish expression. It's called bashert," Goldblatt said. "It means something is meant to happen, and our meeting is bashert. That's why I suggested we have this religious commitment ceremony, which isn't a marriage, [but] just thanking God for bringing us together."

Cantor Yonah Kliger will preside over a "love commitment" ceremony for Boraz and Goldblatt the weekend before Valentine's Day at Temple Emanuel. Following the ceremony, the couple plans to celebrate with Boraz's children and grandchildren, who have embraced the couple's commitment, as have Goldblatt's relatives.

"I look at her, and I see what I saw when she was 19 years old," Goldblatt said.

The couple agreed their reunion makes them feel youthful.

"We never thought we could find love at 80," Boraz said. "We are very much in love; we are very close. We do everything together. The point is I'm not lonely anymore and neither is he. It's a wonderful feeling."

RON SHALOWITZ AND DAVID BAILEY Same-Sex Power Couple

David Bailey and Ron Shalowitz

It should come as no surprise that Ron Shalowitz and David Bailey met training for a charity bike ride, given the couple's involvement in the Beverly Hills community and beyond.

In an interview, Shalowitz described himself as the "City guy" because of his role as a Public Works commissioner, and Bailey as the "philanthropic guy" because of Bailey's involvement with the L.A. Gay & Lesbian Center. Bailey started out as a volunteer and was recently elected co-chair of the Center's board.

Shalowitz is a private mortgage banker at Wells Fargo Beverly Hills. Bailey owns the Keller Williams Beverly Hills office and appears frequently on the HGTV show Selling LA, which features his office.

"We have an interesting balance in our household," Shalowitz said. "It feels good to be involved."

When they met, Shalowitz and Bailey—the first same-sex couple to be featured in the Weekly's Valentine's series—were training for the Boston to New York AIDS fundraising ride in the summer of 1995. A mutual friend introduced them as potential tent mates for the duration of the three-day ride.

By the time they arrived in Boston, they were a couple, Bailey said. During the ride, they fell in love

Cycling through Harlem, Shalowitz announced he would not make another stop, having helped several participants change their tires along the route.

"Someone had written on the sidewalk, 'Walk your bikes,'" Bailey said. "I'm not someone who pays attention to directions. I rode my bike across and got two flat tires [because there was broken glass on the street]. He stopped, looked at me, and he changed both tires without criticizing me. At that moment I thought, I can spend the rest of my life with this guy."

Bailey and Shalowitz are open about their sexuality now, but Bailey said it was challenging for him to come out to his family. He waited until he was in his 30s. Shalowitz, who told his parents after college, said he did not fear the conversation.

"Whenever [someone] comes out, it's a personal process," Bailey said. "We don't know what the outcome will be. You're basically risking your family as you know it. For every coming out story where my parents were like, 'What do you think we think? We love you,' for every one of those, there's a story of the parent who tells the kid, 'You're no longer my son."

Bailey added: "[My parents have] embraced Ron as a son and his parents have [embraced] me."

When asked what makes their relationship work, Shalowitz said, "David is the nicest guy in the world. We have a huge amount of respect for each other. Though we're very much a unit operating as one, we can operate very well independently."

Bailey said they never run out of things to talk about. And it doesn't hurt they work in related professions.

"It's a nice complement," Bailey said. "We don't necessarily compete, [but] we have that interest in common. We enjoy each other's company. I've got a best friend."

Shalowitz said he thinks eating dinner together almost every night, which he calls a traditional family value, has also contributed to the couple's success. Bailey agreed.

"We both like structure and consistency. That means breakfast together; it means dinner together. It pretty much means going to bed at the same time. I'm probably a little more outgoing and he keeps me grounded," Bailey said.

The couple's desire for structure and consistency influenced their move to Beverly Hills in 2003 from the Sunset Strip, Bailey said. He called the couple's 1930s Spanish-style house their dream home.

"We enjoyed living [in our previous neighborhood], but it was fairly high density. The neighborhood was turning into 20-somethings coming home at all hours of the night," Bailey said. "The value of our home was way up and Beverly Hills was a little cheaper per square foot. We had always wanted to live in the area north of Sunset between Benedict and Coldwater with a lot of older historical homes."

The fact that West Hollywood is better known for its gay community than Beverly Hills made no difference to the couple.

"I think we've all become so mainstreamed these days that you can go anywhere and blend in," Shalowitz said. "I think because you live on one side of Doheny doesn't change who anyone is."

Bailey added, "We love this community. We've met the most wonderful people."

On Tuesday, Shalowitz said he and Bailey were excited to learn the 9th Circuit Court of Appeals ruled Prop. 8, which limits marriage to one man and one woman, unconstitutional. Though the ruling came in time for Valentine's Day, same-sex couples will have to wait to wed, as the case continues winding its way through the courts.

"We are one step closer to the day we will be able to marry in California once again," Shalowitz said. "When the possibility is there, we will be the first ones at the Beverly Hills Courthouse, and all are invited to join us."

Donald Paysinger said he and Spencer Paysinger gave "each other a big hug" on the field just a few minutes after the game ended.

"At the beginning, there were no words exchanged," Donald Paysinger said. "It was a big, huge hug. Then I told him how proud I was of him and congratulated him."

Donald Paysinger said he expects Spencer Paysinger to speak to the Beverly Hills football team within the next month.

"To be able to tell our players what it took for him" coming from Beverly High and going on to play for a Super Bowl championship-winning team "he's going to have a few guys take that all in and build on that," Donald Paysinger said

BHHS Girls' Soccer Team Wins League Championship

The Beverly High girls' soccer team assured itself of its first league championship since 2003 with a 5-0 victory over Inglewood Tuesday in an Ocean League game at Nickoll Field.

The Normans (13-5-3, 8-0-1 in league play) led 1-0 at halftime on Ashley Aviram's goal. Aviram scored a second goal in the second half and had two assists, while Kaela Reisfelt scored twice and Tylor Fields once.

Ida Trevino made one save over the first 60 minutes and Kylie Colvin one over the final 20 minutes to complete Beverly Hills' ninth shutout of the season and seventh in league play.

The Normans took a major step to the Ocean League championship by tying Santa Monica, 1-1, in overtime Friday at Nickoll Field

Regulation play ended scoreless. The Vikings scored midway through the first 10-minute overtime as Brenda Matos headed in a corner kick from Kristen Vasquez.

Aviram tied the score with about four minutes to play in the second overtime on a 35-yard free kick, similar to the overtime goal she scored in a 2-1 victory over Santa Monica Jan. 18, according to Beverly Hills coach Ryan Franks.

Trevino made 17 saves.

"Knowing that a tie would be essentially almost just as good as a win, our strategy was a little more defensive," said Franks, whose team was ranked seventh in the Southern Section Division 4 poll released Monday. "We kept five in the back, with two stoppers and didn't take too many risks in regulation."

The Vikings controlled most of the midfield and most of the possession, but they "weren't able to generate any real threats in the attacking third," Franks said.

Following Matos' goal "we had to change our game plan real quick and become aggressive and take a risk and it paid off," Franks said.

The Normans had "a sense of confidence" they could rally "because we had beaten them in overtime in the first game," Franks said.

Trevino and sweeper Elena Rust both played outstanding games for the Normans, Franks said

Fields had two goals and an assist and Aviram and Ellie Dubin scored once each in a 4-0 victory at Morningside Feb. 1 in an Ocean League game. Colvin made six saves for her second shutout.

Santa Monica had won the first eight championships since the realignment of the Ocean League went into effect in the 2004 season. Beverly Hills' last league championship came when it played in the Pioneer League.

Beverly Hills started the season 3-4 "and if you would have asked me" then "if we would have won the league championship I would have said no. We didn't have a chance," Franks said.

"We had a lot of really key injuries and we had a lot of adversity at the beginning of the season," Franks said. "I was staring to think this was going to be a rebuilding year for us, but after our Santa Barbara trip (Jan. 6-7), the team got healthy, we started to jell and bond as a team and that's when we really saw a turning point."

BHHS Boys' Soccer Team Defeats Morningside

Elijah Lichtenberg and Nicholas Marmureanu scored in the first half to give Beverly High a 2-1 victory over Morningside in an Ocean League boys' soccer game Feb. 1 at Nickoll Field.

Norman goalkeeper Adrian Spitz made eight saves and allowed one goal in the first half. His replacement, Matt Davidov, made four saves in the second half.

Bryan Khalilirad had an assist for Beverly Hills, which outshot the Monarchs, 30-13.
