Maple Drive Post Office to close, final decision made

325 N. Maple Drive

After receiving and reviewing six appeals in the decision to close the Beverly Hills Post Office on Maple Drive, the USPS has made its final decision to relocate the location.

The USPS announced on Oct. 30 approval of the upcoming sale of the 325 N. Maple Drive location with plans to lease a smaller facility for retail services. The 53 carrier routes that are based at Maple Drive are being proposed to move to the West Hollywood location at 820 N. San Vicente Boulevard, located 1.3 miles away.

There were six appeals filed in regards to the Beverly Hills location closure.

"The appeals raised concerns about impacts the Postal Service's decision to relocate retail services might have on accessibility to seniors who must walk or take public transportation, adequate parking, caller service and notification," said USPS Vice President of Facilities Tom Samra in a statement.

Samra said that one customer suggested consolidating all retail services in Beverly Hills to the Maple Drive location, but said that consolidation was not being considered and the USPS aims to maintain the same level of retail services.

The proposed plan to move 53 carrier routes from Maple Drive to West Hollywood would also require 24 carrier routes to move from West Hollywood to the Bicentennial Post Office on Beverly Boulevard.

Appeals for the West Hollywood decision are under review and a timeline for the process has not been set.

Peters Auditorium. Tickets are available on line at shopbhhs.com, or at the door, and seating will be on a first-come, first-served basis.

After the property has been initiated, staff will bring back a full report to the commission. Cultural Heritage Commission Chair Noah Furie said the landmark nomination advisory committee had expressed interest in the property.

"I think the main reason was the property was originally designed by an architect named Rex Lotery who is on our list of master architects, although it may have been remodeled and that is why we're vetting this out," said Furie. "There was a period of a number of years where it was owned by Elvis and Priscilla Presley. For those reasons, we initiated and we are waiting for the report so that we can really determine if or if not the house will meet our criteria."

The commission also discussed reevaluating the Mills Act pilot program approved by the city council in October of 2011.

The Mills Act, which was enacted in the state of California in 1972, authorizes participating local governments to enter into contracts with owners of qualified historic properties to receive property tax relief by agreeing to actively preserve, maintain and rehabilitate historic properties. Under the pilot program, initial contracts would last for 10 years. Typically, Mills Act contracts reduce property taxes by 20 to 60 percent. To qualify, properties must appear on a local, state or national historic register.

Participating properties must be located entirely in the City of Beverly Hills, must be privately owned, must not be exempt from property taxation, must be a single-family residential property or a commercial property constructed as a public theater as a primary use.

The city council has asked the Cultural Heritage Commission and the Planning Commission to re-evaluate the program objectives following the withdrawal of an application by a property owner last November.

The Cultural Heritage Commission came up with a variety of recommendations to send to the Planning Commission.

The Cultural Heritage Commission recommended introducing caps on the tax assessed value of participating properties. For single-family homes, eligibility would be limited to property tax assessment value of $7.5 million. For commercial-public theater properties, eligibility would be limited to a property tax assessment value of $10 million.

"In general, we would like to be able to have the pilot program benefit multiple properties and we did recommend the ability to waive the cap if there was an exceptional property, but the idea was to be able to spread the limited Mills Act property reduction incentive over more properties," said Furie.

Properties that would qualify for a cap exemption would have to meet the following criteria: the exception would not cost the City more than $50,000 in property tax revenue, the structure is of exceptional cultural-historic and/or architectural value to the community, and granting an exemption will assist in preservation of the structure that would otherwise be in danger of demolition, relocation or substantial alteration.

Furie said properties would have to meet all three criteria to be considered for an exemption.

The city council had previously directed that four priority requirements--necessity, uniqueness, investment, and sustainability-- be considered when making recommendations for the program.

The commission recommended at the last meeting clarifying the "necessity" standard in prioritizing Mills Act applicants to protect properties that might be at risk of demolition.

"We think that when weighing multiple properties of equal importance, which one would get it? The one that had the necessity," said Furie.

Another recommendation made by the commission would be for allowing for a mediation process if there was a breach of the Mills Act contract.

Under state law the penalty for cancelation is 12.5 percent of the fair market value property. The previous Mills Act applicant had felt that penalty was punitive, according to Furie.

The commission is also preparing an application to be a "certified local government." The Certified Local Government Program, administered by the National Park Service and the State Historic Preservation Office, is focused on promoting historic preservation. CLGs also become active members in the Federal Historic Preservation Program and are eligible for federal grants.

Furie said staff is in the process of putting together the application.

Board of Education narrowly averts spending

As the Board of Education formal meeting winded down to its final minutes, the Board voted 3-1 to approve the district's second interim budget and reverse the effects of an earlier 2-2 vote that would have led to a spending freeze, including on paychecks made to staff members.

Board of Education member Lisa Korbatov did not attend the meeting Tuesday night because she was at a family wedding.

When the Board first discussed the item, Board of Education Vice President Noah Margo and member Brian Goldberg discented

"As of March 16, we will not be able to issue any payments to anyone for any purpose and we will not be able to resume spending until LACOE understands what happened, why it happened and both the Board and LACOE approve a budget," said Chief Administrative Officer Dawnalyn Murakawa-Leopard.

Board of Education President Jake Manaster said this meant none of the staff would get paid.

At the end of the meeting, Margo made a motion to re-vote in which he changed his vote to a yes and the budget was approved

"This is not the time to put our heels in the ground. There are ways we could try to work through this, but this is not a good decision," said Superintendent Gary Woods.

The district is required by the state to report and adopt a budget and provide two updates during the course of the year. This is the second update.

"What we do at each interim is basically true up what we thought we were going to be spending and receiving with what we've actually spent and received," said Murakawa-Leopard.

In her presentation, Murakawa-Leopard said the district received a reduction in property tax collection of $278,000 less than what had been projected.

Because the federal government did not reach a budget agreement before March 1, the BHUSD will receive reductions in its federal funding particularly in special education.

The district will receive 5.9 percent less in federal categorical programs such as special education, Title I, II, III, and vocational applied technology education.

"Although our special education funding may be reduced, our obligations to provide services will not be reduced so we will need to continue to make the expenditures even though the funding is reduced," said Murakawa-Leopard.

The interim also reflects $2.85 million in increased local revenue due to the agree-

Beverly Hills Catholics react to newlyelected Pope Francis I

On March 13 Cardinal Jorge Mario Bergoglio of Argentina was elected the new pope taking the name Pope Francis I. He is the first Latin American pope.

"I am inspired by the fact that he is Jesuit and I hear that he has chosen the name Francis. I'm thrilled. I'm overwhelmed. I think choosing a Jesuit is going to have a very energizing effect on the church."

-- Alma Ordaz

"I actually would have thought it would have been interesting if they had gone with the Cardinal from New York just because the Vatican can use some better management, which American is typically better [and] the U.S. does have experience, unfortunately, with the child abuse, and it's certainly worth having some skill."

-- Damien Bean

"It's kind of nice because it's Pope Francis the first and [Saint] Francis was one of the more caring, giving type individuals... I think, locally, here 70 or 80 percent of the Archdiocese of Los Angeles being Latino; I would think they'd be ecstatic."

--Marty Geimer

Even though I'm not active Catholic, I'm still very excited for the Catholic Church. I think it's a very exciting time for the church and I'm also surprised by the speed in which the vacancy was filled. I think it's a great opportunity for changes because it's a very challenging time for the Catholic Church.

ment between the school district and the City.

The budget also reflects a new obligation to the district which is now required to cover the costs of room and board and mental health fees for special education students who are in residential placements.

Murakawa-Leopard also explained how the Education Protection Act, or the voter approved measure proposition 30, would affect the district.

With proposition 30, voters approved a sales tax that will allocate funds for education in a separate account.

"The state says because it cannot predict what revenue is going to be for the current year, they won't be telling us until the end of the year how much we'll be getting out of that. However, they are reducing district funding in anticipation of that," said Murakawa-Leopard.

Murakawa-Leopard said that though the state reduces the funding with the expectation those funds will be returned, the state will require the district to discuss how it plans to use the money, as if it were receiving the funds for the first time.

"I will tell you now, it is not new funding. It's really a replenishment of a reduction that we've already received. We will have to have that discussion in order to comply with law," said Murakawa-Leopard.

The expected amount received due to proposition 30 is also unclear because the BHUSD is a basic aid district, said Murakawa-Leopard.

An additional 460 ballots were counted, which included both provisional ballots and vote-by-mail ballots submitted at the polls on Mar. 5.

33 ballots were not counted for various reasons including a couple of people who voted twice, 13 ballots did

Vice Mayor John Mirisch who led in number of votes on the night of the election finished first with 2,837 votes and was followed by Mayor Willie Brien, 2,621 votes.

As of election night, Krasne led Rosenstein by 20 votes. Rosenstein had outperformed Krasne in the vote-by-mail tallies, with a lead of 66 votes. Krasne made up the difference in the polls on election day.

revenue for the current fiscal year. The additional revenue does not address the structural deficit in the upcoming two years, but the budget does meet LACOE requirements and can be positively certified.

Staff recommended the board approve the budget, continue to move forward with the interim reduction plan, address the structural deficit, and institute a priority based budgeting process.

"My position is that I haven't found anyone that's been able to tell me the constitutional authority for the state to require basic aid districts to hold those fair share reductions as the state so calls them, so before I can support a second interim budget, I really need to understand because it's time for this district, other districts across the state to say 'enough is enough' and we're not going to take this," said Goldberg.

He dissented in both votes for budget approval.

Margo called the budget unreliable and referred to it as a "phantom" budget.

"In my head, it's a flag right now to get down to business of priority based budgeting and not keep repeating this process every year," said Margo. "We have to do things differently and if it means not approving this with the positive certification then so be it. I can't sleep at night anymore just letting these things happen and us not addressing them."

Margo said the budget was the most important thing and the board needed to get a handle on it.

"We look at locks. We look at anything else, but," said Margo.

The Board of Education has an upcoming study session that Margo suggested be used to address the budget. Board of Education member Lewis Hall disagreed. The session has been planned for Measure E

Margo said he believed the general fund took precedence because it directly affected children and that the Board needed to show that the priority of the district was actually its priority.

Margo made the motion to revote, so the district could keep running.

District Finance Committee presents informational bond acceleration report to Board

The District Finance Committee wrote a report to the Beverly Hills community in order to "set the record straight," in regards to Measure E, which was presented to the Board at the formal meeting Tuesday night.

The Board of Education unanimously supported using the cost free district resources to disseminate the report to the community. Staff will bring back information on other ways to make the report public.

The report is an attachment to the Board's agenda available on bhusd.org. The report defines capital appreciation bonds and explains why the committee feels the $49.71 promised tax rate is inaccurate.

Capital appreciation bonds are bonds that allow borrowers to delay payments until the bond's maturity at a higher interest rate. They are used when there is not enough tax rate capacity to support current interest payments.

CABs are considered most risky when issued with a maturity date of over 25 years with a debt payment ratio of four times the amount borrowed. Legislation has been introduced to the state assembly limiting the terms of CABs to a 25 year

BHUSD senior is comedy finalist in L.A. Student Media Festival

Beverly High senior Natalie Gordon has been selected as a finalist in the comedy category of the Los Angeles Student Media Festival for her short film, "Second Fiddle."

The film is about a young boy starting high school who takes up the bass, but the bass comically stirs up trouble in the boy's life.

"I'm an instrumentalist, I'm a harpist, so the plight of carrying around a really big instrument always interested me," said Gordon. "I changed it around a couple of times so what I finally ended up with was this idea that this bass was so big and I kept the idea of the bass as such an imposing figure on the boy's life and in the end it ends up taking over his life."

Gordon, who hopes to go to film school after graduation, would like egory at the festival, her film will be eligible to win "Best of Show." The film, which runs five minutes and 44 seconds, will air at the El Portal Theatre in North Hollywood on Mar. 30 at 5 p.m., along with other five other finalists in her category.

Gordon is eligible to win a $500 scholarship sponsored by the Jack Oakie and Victoria Horne Oakie Charitable Foundation. Winning filmmakers will also be treated to a special lunch hosted in their honor at CBS Studio Center with Studio President Michael L. Klausman and will receive an official commemoration from the city of Los Angeles. The winner of "Best of Show" is eligible to win a $1000

"I'm really happy to just be a finalist because I wasn't expecting to win at all and just getting my film shown on a theater-sized screen is a prize enough for me, even without winning," said Gordon. "It would be amazing to win but getting my film shown in a theater is just so wonderful."

maximum, previously 40, and limit the repayment ratio to a maximum of $4 in interest and principal for every $1 bor-

"CABs can be utilized responsibly, however, by limiting their maturities and costs of retirement, conservatively projecting the growth of assessed property valuation and future interest rates, and issuing 'callable' bonds to permit conversion to CIBs if interest rates become lower, or if assessed valuation of taxable property becomes higher than projected," the report stated.

The report lists four assumptions, under which, the committee feels the Measure E tax rate was promised that were inaccurate - unrealized property growth projections, the projected CAB interest rate did not materialize, a bond issuance schedule that was not consistent with upgrading school buildings, and the issuance of CABs that may soon no longer be within legal limits.

"In the four years following the Measure E campaign there was a ten percent compounded difference between the projected and actual growth in assessed valuation," the report stated.

According the report, 90 percent of Measure E bonds were originally planned as CABs, half of which would have maturities of up to 40 years.

"In order to remain near the $49.71 tax rate, future bond issuances would have to consist entirely of CABs with long-term maturities," the report stated.

If proposed legislation regarding CABS passes both houses of state government and is signed by governor, the BHUSD would be legally prohibited from issuing those CABs.

Board of Education member Lewis Hall suggested that the finance committee consider changing the word "inundated" in the opening sentence, which reads "Over the past several months our community has been inundated with statements urging that Beverly Hills Unified School District comply with the 2008 Measure E campaign promise of no increase in the $49.71 property tax rate, and denouncing the use of Capital Appreciation Bonds (CABs) to fund the upgrading of substandard school buildings."

Hall felt the word inundated was too political and meant "overwhelmed." Hall said though he had spoken to various people regarding the proposed acceleration, he personally did not feel inundated.

Board of Education member Brian Goldberg said he did not have a problem with the letter. District Finance Committee Chair Mel Spitz opposed Measure E when it was passed and Goldberg said he was surprised the letter did not include rationale Spitz had presented when he had opposed it.

'We made an effort in crafting this statement to avoid as much as we could the political aspects of it. At the recommendation of Keygent, we focused in this statement as much as we could on variable criteria that didn't come about rather than the inherent fallacies that there were in Measure E," said Spitz. particularly to avoid embarrassment or concerns on the part of those community leaders who endorsed Measure E."

Goldberg does not support bond acceleration, but did support the committee's report, as it did not take a position on whether or not the board should accelerate Measure E or not.

"Let me point out to you that we have not in this letter endorsed an acceleration program or building program. What we have tried to do in this communication is to inform the community factually with regard to capital appreciation bonds because there has been a lot of misinformation that has gone out to the community over and over," said Spitz.

In response to Hall's concerns about the word "inundated," Spitz recounted the misinformation in the community primarily citing letters to the editor in Beverly Hills Weekly.

In July 2011, the Board discussed potentially accelerating the bond. On Feb. 15, 2012, the finance committee sent a letter to the Board recommending the district communicate with the public with clarity and full disclosure regarding a possible divergence in the tax rate promise. In April 2012, the committee recommended the district send a press release addressing the "fallacy" of the promised tax rate of $49.71.

Spitz quoted several letters to Beverly Hills Weekly critical of CABS and tax rate increases. Spitz also quoted speakers at the Board's town hall meeting who asked the Board not to accelerate the bond or denounced CABS. Spitz also mentioned the Weekly's brief from Jan. 24, "State officials ask school districts to

coverstory INSPIRING WITH CYSTIC FIBROSIS

Looking Beyond LA honoree Claire Wineland discusses how she overcomes her disability and advocates for those with CF

By Andrea Aldana

Claire Wineland was honored at Looking Beyond LA's annual luncheon on March 12 at the Beverly Hills Hotel with the organization's Soaring Spirit Award. Wineland, who lives in the South Bay, is a 15-yearold living with Cystic Fibrosis. She is an author and founded Claire's Place Foundation, a charity whose mission is to heighten public awareness about Cystic Fibrosis, and improve the quality of life for the families it affects.

Looking Beyond, a nonprofit organization that raises funds and awareness for programs, hospitals, and organizations for children with special needs throughout Los Angeles and Southern California, raised approximately $300,000 at the luncheon on Tuesday.

You were Looking Beyond LA's honoree for their luncheon. What's it like to address a large group of people

It's fun. It's very intimidating being in front of people, but when you really love doing something the fear is there, but you don't hate the fear. It just makes you do your best. Honestly, I find it very fun. And it's neat that people can hear me, and my message can reach big audiences and I have my parents to thank for my ability to communicate with people on large scales so actually I'm happy that people can really hear me out and it's exciting.

What was the theme of your speech?

Strangely enough, it wasn't really what I was expecting. I don't ever write speeches because I don't think there's one speech that should be told or one topic should be

"Everyone has these preconceived notions that because I have cystic fibrosis, my life is somehow harder. I wanted to break those notions, and I wanted to explain that my life is really beautiful and I love it. I left the talk saying, 'The next time you meet someone who is disabled, I want you to think how awesome this person's life is instead of how sad and > tragic it is." -- Claire Wineland

for each crowd, I think everyone is different, you know what I mean? So if you try to pre-write a speech, it's just not going to be honest and it's not going to be what the people need to hear, so I had no idea what I was going to say before I got there.

I wanted to talk about how everyone has these preconceived notions that because I have cystic fibrosis, my life is somehow harder. I wanted to break those notions, and I wanted to explain that my life is really beautiful and I love it. I left the talk saying, "The next time you meet someone who is disabled, I want you to think how awesome this person's life is instead of how sad and tragic it is."

You're the youngest contributor on positivelypositive.com. How did you get involved in that?

You got out of the hospital the day before the event. Was that stressful?

It's not stressful. I've been going in and out of the hospital since I was an infant.

Normally what I do is I'm in for a couple of weeks and it's normally every month, every two months or so. That's the thing with CF; it's not just something where its one or two medicines you have to take, every second of everyday, oxygen, huff cough, treatments, pills, shots, everything.

It's all in the person's hands. You can't rely on doctors. It's all about knowing your body and being able to be proactive and do everything every second and it takes the most energy. And it causes other illnesses, you know, I have diabetes on top of it, I have asthma, I have all these other issues, on top of CF and because of CF, so really

I'm in and out of the hospital so much. I got so used to it when I was younger that

We make it fun. I remember, I've thrown

New Year's parties and I'm friends with all the nurses and the staff. After surgeries when I feel sick, [my dad] and I have movie marathons. We decorate my room. I have music and I collage and it's fun. I've always wanted to go to New York and have a big New York loft apartment and go to art school and so when I was younger, I used to imagine that the hospital was my New York loft apartment and it worked, and I still do. The only thing that's stressful is not knowing when you're going to be able to get out because my doctors are more like my parents than my doctors.

it's not fun, but it's fine.

Strangely enough, I can't remember how we met Eric [Handler, founder of positivelypositive.com]. He's somehow found out about us and I want to say it was just from me giving updates videos. He found out about me and we instantly connected and he said, would you like to contribute? And this was when positively positive wasn't as big as it is now, so I said sure, why not? So I made a couple of videos and they got really big and people loved them, so I started making more and positively positive got so big and I kept doing it.

You were selling and signing the book you co-wrote, Every Breath I Take, at the event. Tell me more about your book and how you went about writing

I'd always wanted to write my story. I love the English language. It really fascinates me and it's beautiful, so I love writing and I'm a story teller. I always wanted to tell my story but I never really had the means to write my own book, and it seemed kind of like a daunting task and then a friend of mine, Chynna Bracha Levin-- she's the daughter of a very famous ghost daughter-- she really wanted to be a writer. It's funny because she was looking for someone who would let her help, but she was only 12 so no one takes her seriously, but she is an amazing writer. And I was just a teenager, so I had no experience, so we did it together. I told her what I wanted it to say, what each of the chapters should be about and she just asked me tons of questions and so it's all my words and she helped me put it together and arranged the paragraphs and got it published.

Three years ago, you almost lost your life to complications from cystic fibrosis. Tell us about that.

I went in for a routine surgery. I got something called blood sepsis and it attacked the weakest part of my body, which is my lungs and so I went into lung failure and it was terrifying. I was dying, for lack of a better word, and no one knew what was wrong because the surgery had gone fine. Once we realized what was happening, it was too late and they had already incubated me and they had me on a ventilator and it wasn't working, so then they put me on an [Oscillater vent]. No one with cystic fibrosis had ever been on an oscillater and come off alive ever and so once I was on that, it got me stable but I wasn't going to come off. That was the deal. Obviously, I did make it and I had a one percent chance of surviving and when I came out -- I had always had CF-- but now it felt more real, so when I came out I wanted to do something and that's how [Claire's Place] foundation started and I started traveling and my speaking career. Everything came from that.

Why do you think it's important to be an advocate for others with cystic

Because CF isn't some bug that will just go away if you pretend it's not there. It's everything, it's intertwined in who you are and instead of pushing it away and being afraid of the scary things and the things we don't understand, you can accept it and love it and learn about it and have it be a part of your life that motivates you instead of makes you depressed. Then you can motivate others and you can really do something in the world. I think CF is kind of my platform for that -- everyone has a different one --but to be educated about something, instead of fearing away from it, I think is something that can really change

BHHS Baseball, Softball Pitchers Throw Two-Hit Shutouts

Norman boys' tennis team defeats Loyola

By Steven Herbert

Senior right-hander Nick Reskin pitched a two-hitter, striking out nine, and drove in a run with a first-inning triple as Beverly High defeated Pasadena, 3-0, March 5 at Pasadena.

The Bulldogs had runners on second and third with two outs in the first, but Reskin struck out Sumner Smith to end the inning.

Pasadena had just two batters reach base after that – Chance Cobb who singled leading off the third, but was erased on a double play, and Sergio Rey, who reached first on a sixth-inning error, but did not advance.

Reskin did not walk a batter, but did hit Bulldogs cleanup hitter Brian Blackburn with a pitch in the first.

The Normans got all the runs they would need in the first. Leadoff hitter Grant Thompson started a game where he would go three-for-three by doubling, scoring three batters later on Jared Forman's two-out single. Reskin, the next batter, tripled in Forman.

Beverly Hills scored its other run in the fourth as Jackson Martin reached base on a two-out error, Rigo Fernandez, its No. 9 hitter singled, and Thompson singled in the run.

Softball

Crossroads 3, Beverly Hills 2

Leah Shapiro had two of the Normans' five hits, including a first-inning single that drove in Erica Davis, who drew a two-out walk and stole second, in a nonleague game March 5 at Beverly High.

Beverly Hills combined two Roadrunner errors, a single by Greer Brucker, its No. 9 hitter, and a walk for its second-inning run.

Crossroads scored all three of its runs with two outs in the second, with four consecutive hits after its leadoff batter singled.

Shyra Costas (0-1) pitched a complete game for the Normans, allowing 11 hits, three runs, all earned, striking out four and walking three.

Beverly Hills 11, Leuzinger 0

Both teams were held to two singles, but four Normans who walked scored in the nonleague game March 6 at Beverly High shortened to 4 ½ innings because of the 10-run rule.

Elena Rust had Beverly Hills' first hit, a first-inning single and scored. Emma Carruth, who walked to lead off the first and scored, singled to lead off the third and scored the first of four runs of the inning.

The Normans (1-3) combined a walk, two Leuzinger errors and Rust's sacrifice fly for five runs in the fourth.

Beverly Hills freshman Aleks Recupero (1-2) retired the first eight batters she faced, striking out seven, before allowing a single by the Olympians' No. 9 hitter. Recupero hit the next batter, but induced the next one to ground out to end the inning.

Leuzinger's other hit was a fourth-inning single. Recupero hit a second batter in the fifth Recupero pitched a complete game, struck out 11 and did not walk a batter in five innings.

Beverly Hills took a 4-3 lead in the fourth when Nicole Yuan doubled with one out and scored on Daniella Hay's single.

The Wildcats tied the score in the fifth and scored what proved to be the winning run in the sixth in a game called after six innings because of the tournament rule forbidding a new inning from starting after 90 minutes of play

"Treating unequals equally is not justice...Growing up in Compton or Richmond is not like it is to grow up in Los Gatos or Beverly Hills...The families there have far more money. Far more access to the better things in life...And to the extent which we can offset that by putting more funding into those districts, we're going to do that."

-Governor Jerry Brown, January 2013

Dear Parents, Friends, Business Owners, and Citizens of Beverly Hills:

This week, the Beverly Hills Unified School District and the Beverly Hills Education Foundation is asking our City's parents, grandparents, citizens and business owners to change the way we think about our public schools. With a letter that went home with every student and has been dropped at every door in the City, the BHEF is building a culture of ongoing responsibility and philanthropy in order to support public education.

The current actual annual cost to educate a student in Beverly Hills is approximately $11,000 of which the State of California currently provides approximately $6,200. The remaining funding comes from a combination of Federal Funding, State Categorical Restricted Funding, the City of Beverly Hills (in a Joint Powers Agreement), the PTAs, and BHEF. This brings us to approximately 90% of total per student costs, or $10,000 per student. We are still $1,000 short per student, per year.

However, there is excellent news about our schools. The Beverly Hills Schools continue to receive many state and national awards for outstanding and innovative programs; each of our five schools is recognized by the state as a Distinguished School. Last year, BHUSD ranked 18th out of 1,000 California School Districts with regard to its Academic Performance Index ranking.

There is room to grow, however – as almost all of the Districts ahead of us have robust Education Foundations and are able to vigorously support their own State and Federal funding. We can only grow with the help of you – our parents and friends – and your increased private financial support for public education.

To that end, BHEF is requesting an annual investment of at least $1,000 per student, per year to support its work that directly benefits our children.

In this time of extreme need in our School District, every dollar makes a difference, so please give what you can today. Join the other parents, grandparents, community leaders, businesses and even students themselves and make your investment today.

Sincerely,

Gary W. Woods, Ed.D. Superintendent, BHUSD
