"Preserving Our Past"

Now that the new Roxbury Park Community Center is taking shape and the Lily Pond restoration is under way, as well as the new Wallis Annenberg Center for the Performing Arts set to open, we look forward with increasing excitement to our centennial year of 2014.

Beverly Hills will be looking as good as ever and with an emphasis on the past.

We are preserving historical places and bringing back the past.

This is truly a community effort.

I congratulate those who have made the commitment and donated money to make sure our prestigious city has the quality of life and the look that those who lived here before us envisioned and maintained.

It is our responsibility to make sure that the future of Beverly Hills is as good as the past and that our history is not just something future generations only read about in books.

BHUSD sees slight decrease in API scores

The Beverly Hills Unified School District's overall Academic Performance Index (API) score dropped three points from 892 to 889 since the previous academic year.

The California Department of Education released the API scores for the 2012 to 2013 year last Wednesday.

Individual school sites generally saw a slight decrease in the 2012 to 2013 year with the exception of Horace Mann, whose 2013 growth API was 919, up five points from 914. All schools were above the state-set target of 800.

The API, which ranges from 200 to 1000, reflects a school's performance level based on the results of statewide assessments. Its purpose is to measure the academic performance and improvement of schools. Schools that fall short of the state-set target of 800 are required to meet annual growth targets until that goal is achieved. API targets vary for each school and student group.

The API is used to rank schools. The BHUSD is ranked 18th in the state of California from over 1,000 districts. Last year, the district was ranked 17th.

Horace Mann met all targets, saw a jump in grade 8 science, social studies grade 6 and 8 English language arts, and maintained 100 percent proficient or advanced in eighth grade algebra.

Hawthorne met all targets, maintained a steady performance and maintained 100 percent proficient or advanced in fourth grade math.

Beverly Vista met all performance targets, but saw declines in grades four to eight English language arts, social studies, and middle school math/science.

El Rodeo met all performance targets, but saw declines in grade seven overall, social studies overall, and grade eight science. Based on previous year's results, grades two and three were a focus of "intensive interventions," which resulted in improvement in ELA and math. El Rodeo also saw improvement in middle school math and grade eight algebra.

Beverly High did not meet its "Students with Disabilities" target, but showed growth in algebra, geometry and grade 9 English. BHUSD Chief Academic Officer Jennifer Tedford did not return a call from the Weekly.

Beverly Hills may join Malibu in letting volunteers issue tickets

The Beverly Hills City Council will discuss the possibility of using volunteers for Parking Enforcement efforts, specifically to help with enforcement related to the misuse of Disabled Placards.

The item was placed on the August 20 study session at the request of Councilmember Julian Gold. According to the staff report, pursuant to the California Vehicle code and the City's municipal code, the city may use volunteer staff in the enforcement of disable parking violations, if the City authorizes individuals with the authority to do so.

If the council chooses to move in this direction, staff has recommended that the City provide training to volunteers, including how to deal with hostile situations, and relating to laws and associated operations. Staff also recommends volunteers wear a distinct uniform so individuals can be identified as an authority of the City, and not be the same as sworn Police Officers, or other uniformed enforcement of parking regulations.

Staff estimated implementation would take 12 to 18 months.

According to the report, staff estimates about $30,000 in overtime funding was approved for increased enforcement of disabled placard misuse could be redirected to support the suggested program.

City council to ponder South Santa Monica name change

The Beverly Hills City Council will discuss changing the name of South Santa Monica Boulevard or Little Santa Monica to Burton Way at an upcoming study session.

The item, which will be discussed at the request of Councilmember Nancy Krasne, appeared on the Aug. 20 study session and is expected to return on Sept. 10.

The staff report transmits letters from resident Fred Barman requesting that the City Council consider the name change. Barman wrote an open letter to the city council, which he sent to the Weekly, and appeared in issue #708.

Manager Jeff Kolin, Barman withdraws his previous proposal to rename the street and suggests a "dual name" of both South Santa Monica and Burton Way to the signage over a period of two or three years, leading to the eventual phasing out of S. Santa Monica. Barman suggested this proposal in response to expected pushback from businesses on South Santa Monica.

Barman suggests the term "Little" to describe a primary street in the City is demeaning and an "affront" to Beverly Hill City Founder Burton Green.

Then-councilmember and current Mayor John Mirisch proposed a name change for S. Santa Monica in 2009 to Will Rogers Boulevard or another deceased Hollywood icon tied to the history of Beverly Hills, according to the staff report.

In 2010, staff conducted a survey of merchants along Little Santa Monica to gauge their support for changing the name of the street, resulting in 87 percent of merchants opposed to the change and 13 percent in favor.

Reasons for opposition ranged then from added confusion to the cost of changing stationary.

Burton Way currently runs from San Vicente Boulevard on the eastern side of the City and becomes Little Santa Monica Boulevard at the intersection with North Rexford Drive.

Spadaro found culpable of 16 counts By Andrea Aldana

Former Mayor Charlotte Spadaro was disbarred on July 6 and ordered to pay $22,975 in restitution to her former cli-Spadaro was found culpable of 16 of 19 counts by the State Bar Court, according to a ruling filed last November. The court had recommended she be disbarred at that time.

The State Bar Court found Spadaro culpable of 16 counts of misconduct including failure to perform legal services with competence, failure to communicate, failure to avoid interests adverse to a client, moral turpitude, failure to maintain client funds and commingling personal funds in her client trust account.

The decision was related to numerous cases that were consolidated, where Spadaro was charged with 19 counts of misconduct, 14 of which were related to eight separate client matters, three counts related to misconduct involving her CTA, one count charge of misconduct in a lawsuit in which she represented herself, and one count charge of making misrepresentations to the State Bar during a disciplinary investigation. The charges were covered in Weekly issue #671.

Following the court's decision last November, Spadaro said she had planned on appealing. Spadaro was ordered inactive on Nov. 22, 2012 by the decision.

Spadaro had one prior record of discipline and was disciplined with actual suspension on March 22. Spadaro was suspended for three counts of entering into an improper business relationship with a client, failing to account for client funds and failing to return advanced fees and unused advanced costs totaling $7,500.

She was disbarred on July 6.

Spadaro served on the Beverly Hills City Council from 1984 to 1988 and the Board of Education from 1979 to 1983.

LASC sides with L.A. Planning director By Andrea Aldana

The Los Angeles Superior Court ruled ity zone required secondary vehicular last month in favor of the city of Los Angeles after a Saudi prince sued the city to hasten construction on a Benedict Canyon mansion on Tower Lane, just outside of Beverly Hills city

Prince Saudi Abdulaziz Adullah ibn Abdulaziz Saud's company, Tower Lane Properties, stated in the original lawsuit that neighbors who opposed the project pressured City officials into requiring an environmental impact study, which Tower Lane Properties argued is not necessary.

In its ruling,

property, located in a fire hazard severaccess.

In 2009, the company applied for permits to build three residences on the five-acre property, at approximately 85,000 square feet.

In response to opposition neighbors living in the area, a scaled construction plan totaling roughly 60,000 square feet was presented in 2010.

Tower Lane Properties briefly withdrew plans for development in 2011 and submitted new applications shortly after.

The lawsuit filed in May 2012 asked the Los the court upheld L.A. Planning Director Angeles County Superior Court to order Michael LoGrande's statement that the the city of Los Angeles to allow the project to move forward without environmental review.

In the complaint, Tower Lane Properties said they had carefully designed the project to minimize impacts on the environment and the surrounding area. The complaint said the project was "by right" because it complied with all applicable building and zoning ordinances and regulations and required no discretionary approvals.

Save Benedict Canyon, a coalition of people who oppose the project, joined together seeking environmental review and public input on the project.

Michael Eisenberg, a neighbor and coalition member, said the community was looking for public input.

"In a democracy, due process concerns the fairness of the judicial procedure. Everyone is equal before the law. Everyone must abide by the law and all the procedures," said Eisenberg, who said neighbors were upset because they felt property owners were not following procedures.

Eisenberg said a project of this size, that is not "by right", should be open to public review and environmental review. Eisenberg said a project this large would mean years of constructions and thousands of trucks traveling on a small street, impacting residents.

Last November, LoGrande said permits could not be issued without secondary vehicular access. If a waiver or modification to this requirement was sought, the project would require environmental review.

Benjamin Reznick, the project's attorney, said he is currently analyzing the court's decision and their options.

"We believe we do have the secondary vehicular access to the structure in question from another street just like every other house in the hillside has," said Reznick. "We think that the Planning Department is wrong and that the court is wrong, and we are analyzing our
