“Margo says bond acceleration will be put to a vote in March” [Issue #785]

I am well aware that as the President of the Board of Education I am often quoted by the press at public meetings. It is a disservice to this community when my comments are taken out of context as was the case in last week's article about a possible bond election.

My remarks were made at a recent PTSA meeting and a City Council study session and neither came from conversations related to the bond election itself. I do believe that a responsible media outlet would not cherry pick sound bites on one issue from a more complicated and unrelated discussion.

If I were properly interviewed, the public would have learned that our construction at Horace Mann is on schedule and within our proposed budget. As a licensed contractor I am able to closely monitor all phases of the construction process. In addition, other board members regularly attend the weekly construction update meetings, Citizens' Oversight meetings, and district Finance Committee meetings.

In the meantime, the district has completed dynamic designs for both the High School and El Rodeo and we would like to maintain this momentum. In order to do so, we are looking to replace the current bond with a more sustainable funding option. A replacement bond is necessary so that we may continue to address our aging campuses and complete the proposed projects.

Would I like to wait, complete Horace Mann and have physical proof of our program's success? Yes, but in this case, “sooner” truly is “better” and more cost effective as we face steep escalation in construction expenses over the long run.

My main reason to seek the community's blessing in continuing our current construction schedule is to give the students the safest and most efficient facilities available. They deserve that.

If anyone would like more information regarding the district's plans and the potential upcoming bond election feel free to email me directly at nmargo@bhud.org.

“Who is the best candidate for the 26th State Senate District?” [Issue #781]

I read your recent opinion articles by State Senate candidates Ben Allen and his opponent, Sandra Fluke. I'm a Ben Allen supporter, which is a decision that I did not make lightly. If all things were equal between the two candidates, I would support the female candidate, but that is not the case in this race. Being new to the district myself, I did a lot of research on both candidates. In reading your article I noticed inconsistencies in Ms. Fluke's statement that I kindly request be clarified or reported as inaccuracies in a retraction to your readers.

Ben Allen has had a long history of working within the district's communities for positive change. Sandra Fluke, on the other hand, is a newcomer, having only moved here two years ago after graduating law school. Fluke's article says that she's lived here for seven years, but as was reported widely in the media, Fluke was a law student in Washington D.C. until 2012, passing the California bar exam later that year. She's been a lawyer less than two years, but cites her work as “one of the longest volunteer attorneys” as her experience for this office. Fluke also claims that she's passed state legislation. This is a bit of a surprise because she hasn't held elected office at any level of government and therefore couldn't have possibly passed legislation.

Ben Allen, on the other hand, is a twice-elected Santa Monica-Malibu school board member and former president of that board. Ben Allen was the highest vote-getter in the last election for school board and was the highest vote-getter in the June primary for State Senate. Ben Allen has made tough decisions and fought to protect schoolchildren from further cuts to education during the Great Recession. When he was in law school at Boalt Hall at UC Berkeley, Ben Allen was a UC Regent, where he led the fight against tuition hikes and wrote and passed legislation to increase energy standards across all UC campuses.

I'm proud to support Ben Allen for State Senate because of his proven record of success on the issues we care about. He has experience working within the system to make real changes for women, men, students, parents and business owners.

“Who is the best candidate for third district supervisor?” [Issue #779]

On November 4, you have the power to decide who will be LA County's 3rd District Supervisor – either Bobby Shriver or Shiela Kuehl.

Why should you care?

For the first time in 20 years, this is a competitive race and the new Supervisor will oversee your tax money – a $26 billion budget. The new Supervisor can put LA on a course to prosperity and fiscal fitness, or poverty with outrageous government spending.

For the past year, I have had the honor of listening to, and debating against and with both Shriver and Kuehl. I respect both for their dedication and service to our community, whether it be locally or in Sacramento, but they have very different leadership qualities and qualifications.

With a dismal 13 percent voter turnout in the June primary, Kuehl came in first with about 10,000 more votes than Shriver. John Duran came in third, and I came in fourth place with about the same number of votes that Kuehl beat Shriver by.

The day after the primary election, both Kuehl and Shriver called to ask for my endorsement. I interviewed both candidates in July.

As the only other woman candidate, I wanted to support another woman who had the guts to run. However, I couldn't, in good faith, support her candidacy.

Why? Because this race isn't about gender, it is about our collective future.

Who will be able to reform county government?

We need reform in many areas of local government, from department of children and family services to the sheriff department, the homeless, veterans, those in custody, campaign finance, and pensions to name a few. Shriver has a record of fighting for reform and is not beholden to special interest groups, unlike Kuehl. According to Malibu Times publisher Arnold York, “Every one of those [Kuehl] mailers [from police, firemen, nurses, teachers and other unions] is an I.O.U. from that group expecting county dollars in return from the supervisor they are trying to get elected.”

Who will be able to best build and increase partnerships with business and non-profits to promote economic recovery and provide public services?

Shriver has a record of raising millions of dollars to fight the AIDS epidemic. At the UCLA debate, Kuehl called Nevada a “fool” for creating an environment friendly to businesses. Shriver would like to attract and retain business in LA.

Who will encourage civility and professionalism in local government?

On the campaign trail Kuehl belittled local “part-time” office holders, who work hard to make their communities better. (See <http://www.latimes.com/opinion/opinion-la/la-ol-bobby-shriver-sheila-kuehl-supervisor-john-duran-blowback-20141016-story.html>) Shriver has shown he will listen to others and is open to different points of view.

Who will encourage others to participate in democracy?

Kuehl discouraged and attempted to “scare” others from running for office. (<http://www.scpr.org/blogs/politics/2013/01/10/11950/sheila-kuehl-opens-committee-run-la-county-board-s/>) “In the coming weeks Kuehl will set up a campaign website, look for early donors and endorsements, and “see if I can't scare everybody else out of the race.”) Shriver welcomes competition and believes it is good for democracy to have more choices.

Bobby Shriver will bring fresh ideas, creative solutions, kindness and will work hard to serve all people in LA, not just those who have spent hundreds of thousands of dollars in independent campaign expenditures.

I believe Bobby Shriver will deliver not just good government, but cutting edge government, and will be able to make LA County a beacon of light for our state, our country and our planet and put LA on a true-north course towards prosperity and progress.

Shriver didn't win the primary, and he won't win this election without you!

Help make it a sunny day in LA and join me in voting for Bobby Shriver on November 4.

Hall still named in Paysinger lawsuit; files anti-SLAPP motion

Lewis Hall

Judge Philip Gutierrez denied Board of Education member Lewis Hall's motion to dismiss from Beverly High Principal Carter Paysinger's lawsuit on October 17.

Paysinger filed a lawsuit in July against the BHUSD and Hall on eight causes of actions including discrimination and retaliation.

Hall filed a motion to dismiss which would grant him immunity from the allegations, arguing that he is an elected official and his decisions were made as part of the Board of Education.

Officials may be immune if their action formed a public policy that would affect more than a few individuals, and if the action was made through a vote or an equivalent legislative procedure, according to the court's decision.

Hall was not granted immunity for five acts, including persuading the district to investigate Paysinger, providing false and misleading information to the Los Angeles District Attorney's Office to investigate Paysinger, and making racially discriminatory statements to Paysinger.

“Hall's decision, as an individual, not only bears no resemblance to a legislative act, but also appears to be outside the scope of his authority,” according to the court's ruling.

Hall acted as an individual member of the Board of Education and does “not have the authority to request that the district investigate employees,” according to the civil minutes.

Hall filed an anti strategic lawsuit against public participation (SLAPP) motion after his motion to strike was denied.

The anti-SLAPP law protects the rights of petition or free speech that applies to any writing or speech made in any legislative or public forum. Hall would need to prove that every alleged unlawful act is protected under the anti-SLAPP statute.

A scheduling conference, which is the first hearing before a judge, is scheduled for November 24. Hall's anti-SLAPP hearing is scheduled for December 15.

COC raises concern on availability of Measure E funds

A preliminary quarterly cash flow report raised concerns from the Citizens Oversight Committee on if there will be sufficient Measure E funds by the end of 2015.

COC member Joe Safier told the press to delay publishing what was discussed at the COC meeting on October 16 in regards to the report.

“It may create unnecessary confusion and require a lot of work on the part of the board and the superintendent,” Safier said. “Hold off on this until the next meeting and see what we get additional input on.”

Though the quarterly cash flow report is a working document, COC members still expressed concerns.

“I don’t think there’s that much money left,” COC member Chris Kiper said.

According to the report, from the $334 million Measure E Bond that voters approved in 2008

$117 million has already been issued to the district. From what has already been expended, including $11.5 million for the Horace Mann project, $81 million was left to be budgeted.

“Regardless, we’re going to be in construction with Horace Mann in the next three years,” Superintendent Gary Woods said. “Those funds are there.”

Horace Mann construction is projected to cost approximately $78.5 million to complete all modernization activities. With $11.5 million already spent, $67 million is left to complete the project. Approximately $10 million has been allocated to other approved projects, leaving approximately $4 million in Measure E funds to budget for other projects before the next issuance of the bond in 2017.

“We really have to be careful at this point going forward until next March of what we allocate for anything new because our cushion is really tight,” COC member Bradley Gibbons said.

According to the preliminary report, by the end of the 2015 there will be no money left in Measure E funds, assuming that voters do not approve the bond acceleration that is planned to go on the March 3 ballot.

“In the event that the taxpayers do not approve the Measure E [acceleration] come next March, then what’s the contingency plan from the standpoint of the district?” Safier said.

Woods wrote that funding Horace Mann’s project is “top priority” and the District will adjust direction as needed to ensure sufficient funds are available to complete construction at Horace Mann.

“[The preliminary report] assumes we would continue to fund every project and design direction,” Woods wrote in an e-mail to the Weekly on October 20.

Woods said that the information in the report has not been fully verified.

“I think the information was brought before that [the BHUSD was] going to run out of money if we kept on the master schedule,” Totum Vice President Pat Lappin said.

According to the Measure E Bond informative based on data as of June 2013, “[The second bond issuance] will be required to complete the Horace Mann project. There will be no other major school renovation until 2021, when there will be enough for one more elementary school, and the rest of the District will have to wait until 2034.”

The district may receive $20 to $25 million from state funds by incorporating the State Seismic Mitigation Program and California High Performance School program into modernization designs.

“It is so important for the community to understand the master plan that is revolved around the accelerated funding,” COC member Shirley Zaragoza said. “The master plan in terms of the construction phases, when the money will be drawn down, and when the tax payers will probably feel the impact themselves in terms of their tax reliability.”

COC members reviews MTA litigation opinion letters; Goldberg believes MTA costs will be recovered

Four Citizens Oversight Committee (COC) members, Chair Woody Clark, Don Rosen, Josh Friedman, and Steve Hendry, met in closed session with the Board of Education and Superintendent Gary Woods to review two legal opinion letters that the Board said supported the use of Measure E funds for the MTA litigation.

“We’re not going to be passing judgment on whether the Board has the right to spend the Measure E funds,” COC member Rosen said. “I think the board has a good faith basis to continue based on those two opinion letters they got. Would I make that same decision? I haven’t done all the research. But these two letters do say you can do it.”

Rosen said one letter gave approval for pursuing litigation, while the other letter “was a little more circumspect” and gave approval for the litigation in some areas and was “holding back its approval in some areas.”

“Generally, the tone was, you can go ahead and spend Measure E money to fight the MTA,” Rosen said.

Though the four COC members who reviewed the document did not discuss the full contents of the letters because of confidentiality, Rosen and Friedman referred to Board of Education Vice President Brian Goldberg’s monthly newsletter, Brian’s Perspective.

“Brian’s made certain items public at this point,” Friedman said. “It does address a lot of issues of why or why not Measure E funds can be used for this MTA fight.”

Goldberg’s recent newsletter, which was posted a day before the COC meeting, specifically addressed MTA legal bills.

“Our legal experts have provided data that supports our assertion that tunneling under our high school will require the district to spend additional Measure

BHUSD legal fees for first quarter fiscal year exceed $750,000

The BHUSD legal expenditures for the first quarter fiscal year (third quarter calendar year) between July 1 to September 30 totaled $777,336.44 paid to various law firms.

The legal fees for the last fiscal quarter of 2013 - 2014 (second quarter calendar year) totaled over $2.8 million, as reported in the Weekly's issue #776.

To put these numbers in context, Las Virgenes Unified School District's legal fees, which has almost triple the number of students as BHUSD, for the entire 2012-2013 school year totaled $676,000, including special education and general legal fees.

Purchase order (PO) amounts are approved not to exceed dollars allocated for different programs in both the General Fund and the Measure E fund, but does not necessarily mean that the full amount has been spent.

Chief Administrative Office LaTanya Kirk-Carter said that the budget amount changes when the PO amount changes because the district committed to spend that amount of money, and should be changed in the report.

The general fund had a purchase order amount of $960,000, with a budgeted amount of $895,007. The first quarter legal fees for the general fund totaled to $127,138.48.

The Measure E fund has a purchase order amount of $2,580,000, with a budgeted amount of $640,000. The first quarter legal fees for the Measure E fund is $650,197.96

E funds to comply with safety requirements," Goldberg wrote.

Approximately $150-$170 million from the Measure E bond has been budgeted for the high school's modernization project. Goldberg wrote that preliminary numbers show a 30 percent increase in Beverly High's costs, which translates to "tens of millions of dollars never contemplated when Measure E was passed by the voters."

If the district chose not to pursue an MTA litigation, the funds would have been used to "reinforce foundations" in order for the tunnels to go under the high school, Goldberg wrote. Since the district chose to pursue the MTA litigation, seismic, soil, electrical, mechanical, and geological studies were conducted in order to support the district's opposition to tunneling under the high school, according to Goldberg's newsletter.

"Those costs will come out of Measure E as the plans to tunnel under our high school and district property directly impact our ability to develop our property in accordance with the Measure E Bond," Goldberg wrote.

In addition to the justification Goldberg wrote on spending Measure E funds for the MTA litigation, he also wrote that, in his opinion, those costs would be recovered according to the district's legal experts.

"The legal rationale says that even if MTA is ultimately successful at tunneling under our high school, they will still have to compensate the district for the right to tunnel," Goldberg wrote. "I believe that every dollar being spent to fight MTA will eventually be recovered and returned or in the alternative we stop the tunneling under the high school and save the costs (up to $30 million in additional costs) associated with building around MTA's tunnels."

Brien and Krasne express doubts on campus security program

Though the City Council approved funding half of the BHUSD's campus security program Evidence Based, Inc.'s cost with a 4-1 vote at the City Council meeting Tuesday night, Councilmembers Willie Brien and Nancy Krasne expressed doubts about the effectiveness and cost of the program.

"The school board found a contract with this firm and then approached us afterwards," Krasne said. "I am going to approve it this year but I'm not supporting this in subsequent years."

Each school site has a safety officer vehicle to act as a deterrent, and are leased from EBi at $10,000 per vehicle per year which includes insurance, fuel, maintenance and care cost. Krasne said that she saw the cars in front of El Rodeo and Beverly High but does not "think that's a deterrent of anything."

Brien said that though he is in favor of security for the campus and for the students, the BHUSD did not present a clear case on the necessity of asking the city to fund $440,712 of the total $881,423 cost.

The BHUSD receives $10 million in a Joint Powers Agreement with the city, and a $10 million endowment fund.

"They [the BHUSD] will not share with us how they are going to expend those funds or the interest from those funds at this time," Brien said.

Brien mentioned that the BHUSD has spent more than $2.7 million in legal expenses from the general fund over the past two years, and in May 2013, the district recognized that there were structural deficits in their budget.

"It seems to me that the city is continuing to be asked to support the school district and that we are the support that continues to allow them to run a structural deficit," Brien said.

Funding half of EBi's costs was not the only cost that the BHUSD has asked the city to assist in. The City Council agreed to fund the $250,000 trenching cost at El Rodeo in June to determine if there are any active faults in the area.

"I believe that these and other district moneys should be better spent more effectively on classroom education, using them for student education, classroom enhancements, counselors, maybe even after school tutoring programs," Brien said.

Board of Education President Noah Margo had said at an October 7 study session meeting that closed campuses are an important factor to safe campuses. Brien countered by saying that El Rodeo and Beverly High does not have and will not have a closed campus until their modernization projects are complete.

"That may be many years depending on whether or not they have adequate funds to support their bond construction," Brien said. "I also believe that they have promised to put the bond acceleration measure on the ballot. They have yet to do that. We still wait for that."

Brien said that he does not like the idea of having armed security guards on campus. Though EBi is headed by Campus Safety Program Vice President

Joe Chirillo, a retired BHPD Lieutenant, Brien said that the city already has a trained police force that can respond quickly and have tactical plans, as well as having motorcycle and traffic control officers in the morning and in the afternoon at the schools for children safety.

"Although the school district is in fact an independent governing body and has the right to make those decisions," Brien said. "It is my opinion that I have an obligation and a right to query them when they ask for city taxpayer money."

BHPD detains man who stabs bus passenger

The BHPD detained a suspect who allegedly stabbed a bus passenger on the Metro Rapid 720 bus line on October 15.

At approximately 6:03 pm, the suspect used a knife to slash the left side of the victim's face, ear, and neck area on Wilshire Boulevard near North Whittier Drive, according to Lieutenant Mike Mendoza of the LA County Sheriff's Department.

The bus operator stopped the bus in Beverly Hills where the suspect and victim exited the bus. The suspect attempted to carjack a passing vehicle, and was detained by the BHPD.

The BHFD provided treatment to the victim who was transported to the UCLA Westwood hospital in an unknown condition.

According to Lieutenant Lincoln Hoshino, since the stabbing occurred in Los Angeles, the incident will be handled by the Los Angeles County Sheriff Department.

BHHS loses homecoming football game to Hawthorne. Normans set to play host to Lawndale Friday night.

By Steven Herbert

Beverly High held its second fourth-quarter lead in Charlie Stansbury's 17 games as their coach in Friday night's homecoming game against Hawthorne at Nickoll Field.

However, turnovers and missed assignments on defense helped the Cougars score 28 fourth-quarter points in a 40-30 victory in the Ocean League football game, Stansbury said.

In a game with six lead changes, Beverly Hills (1-6, 0-2 in league play) led 16-12 entering the fourth quarter.

Hawthorne (3-4, 1-1) regained the lead on Paris McDaniel's four-yard run, his second of five touchdown runs on the night, 44 seconds into the fourth quarter, completing a five-play, 81-yard drive.

The Normans pulled ahead 23-19 on to Rashard Ysaquirre's 35-yard run with nine minutes, one second to play.

McDaniel then ran for one-, six- and 35-yard touchdowns, the last one play after a Beverly Hills fumble, to give the Cougars a 40-23 lead.

Norman quarterback Jake Wolken threw a 14-yard touchdown pass to Mike Massie with 33 seconds to play.

"We played consistently on defense until the fourth quarter," Stansbury said. "Passing-wise, we weren't as consistent as we wanted to be but we showed signs of improvement."

Ysaquirre ran for 114 yards on 14 carries, including a nine-yard touchdown run in the third quarter that put Beverly Hills ahead 16-12.

After missing the previous two games because of an injury, Joe Kolko ran for 102 yards on 21 carries, including a one-yard touchdown run in the first quarter.

Wolken completed four of 13 passes for 36 yards.

David Dolgin kicked a 24-yard second-quarter field goal for the Normans that cut Hawthorne's lead to 12-10.

What's Next?

The Normans are scheduled to play host to Lawndale Friday night at Nickoll Field in an Ocean League game. The opening kickoff is scheduled for 7 p.m.

The Cardinals (4-3, 2-0) were among two teams shifted from the Pioneer League to the Ocean League this season. This is believed to be the first time Beverly Hills has played Lawndale in football since the 1970s.

Lawndale was closed in 1981 because of declining enrollment and reopened in 1998.

The high school football website Calpreps projects a 48-6 victory by the Cardinals. It had projected a 31-21 Hawthorne victory over Beverly Hills.

RIORDAN REFLECTS AS THE MAYOR

Richard Riordan discusses his newly-published memoir

By Nancy Yeang

Your memoir, The Mayor, was recently published. What made you want to write it?

I thought that my administration had done very well in solving major problems in L.A. because people were totally despondent when I came on. The national media had sold L.A. down the river.

I surrounded myself with the best and the brightest people, empowered them to do things, and I wanted to show other people what to do.

People aren't worried whether you do it or if somebody else does it. Just as long as you get it done. Too many politicians want to get credit not just for thinking about it, but also for doing it. It's impossible. You have a city 15 miles long [and] you have [city] 45,000 employees. How can you do all those things yourself?

Early 1990s Los Angeles was very racially polarized. Did that influence you to run for Mayor?

Probably, because about two years before I decided [to be Mayor], after one of the riots I set up a committee of 100 in L.A. mixing up the white business leaders and the minority leaders.

It worked well, [but] not as well as I had liked because some of the top leaders came to the first meeting we had but had people under them come after that. But it still worked pretty well. I cared about it.

My foundation [The Riordan Foundation] had always given a lot of time and money to minority children in schools and I felt like my motto was, "Every child that comes into the world has a God given right to a quality health care and a quality education." [When] I say quality education, [I mean] the tools to compete in life.

Where were you during the 1992 L.A. Riots?

Where I was physically I'm not sure. But the next day I worked to put together an organization to rebuild South L.A. I put $300,000 of my own money into an outdoor marketplace for produce, cereals, and everything for the people. Also, part of that $300,000 was used to get a Watch Health Foundation vehicle that [would] go and give health care.

[The] interesting thing I learned was that people in South L.A. did not want to [go to the outdoor marketplace]. They'd rather drive three or five miles to a Safeway, Ralph's or some supermarket. It didn't bother me. It's just a lesson to learn.

The health [vehicle], at first the Latinos in that area were afraid to come because they were afraid that the immigration services would catch them and send them home. I had the churches market that and it started to work pretty well. The produce part didn't.

If you [asked about] the Watts Riots [in 1965], I was at Lake Arrowhead with a friend of mine who lived in Watts. We saw it on TV and immediately got in a car together and went to where he and his family lived. It was very intriguing to go through and see people running across lawns, but I kept my eyes open. I guess I'm a pretty crazy guy who doesn't get scared at anything.

In your book you tell a story about where you were during the 1994 earthquake. Tell us about that.

In the 1994 earthquake, I was with my fiancé at her house. I got knocked out of bed, got up from the floor, [and] put on my sweat clothes. [I] tried to get somebody on the telephone [and] couldn't get them on the telephone. I looked and [saw] a book next to my bed called The Novice Mayor. I thought, "Well, is there anything about earthquakes in there?" and I figured, "Probably not because the writer of that book is Sonny Bono."

But I got in the car and went on the Santa Monica freeway, which was totally dark then. There was no other car on the road and I was speeding 70, 80, 90 miles an hour. As I came near La Cienega, I saw two big lights coming right at me on my side of the freeway. It was a truck that was going the wrong way. I swerved slightly around it and noticed right behind it was the bridge that had fallen. It really probably saved my life from going off that bridge.

I did a U-turn, went back, got off the exit before and drove down to City Hall. The emergency operations center is four stories below City Hall. There were 40 desks for different departments of the city, a large room for the police, [and] a large room for the fire department.

The first thing [I did was] work with the transportation department. They had a map showing all the bridges [that] had fallen. They showed the Santa Monica freeway [and] the only detour that was feasible had four intersections going through Culver City. I asked Bob Yates, the head of transportation, "Can we just go ahead and take them?" He said, "Oh no, you can't by state law do that." I said, "But can't we just call the mayor there? He'll let us do that." He said, "That's not possible, because you first have to go to the state and have them make a study of it. Normally, it would take over a year, but right now I think you could get it done within a few weeks." I said, "Okay, you have five minutes to take it over. Here's my home telephone number. If anybody complains, have them call me and I'll ask for forgiveness." Nobody every called me.

Former Mayor Tom Bradley served for 20 years from 1973 to 1993. Do you think he stayed too long?

I think it was a little too long. Tom Bradley, for the first two times he ran, was really a great mayor. He developed a lot of L.A. Look at Bunker Hill and those areas. He brought together every part of the city. I think when he decided to run for governor in the early 1980s, and I supported him for that, it turned him more into a politician than a leader. He went downhill from that point. But I think if you look at the first two terms, he was a great mayor. He certainly was a handsome icon that everybody respected.

You started your career as an attorney at O'Melveny & Meyers. Tell us about that.

I was in the Korean War. When I was in the battlefield I got [acceptance] letters from Stanford, Harvard Business School, [and] put on the wait list at Michigan. I turned down all of them except Michigan, which they did accept me. Harvard Business School I loved because they sent back my application fee. I thought that was classy.

I love Michigan. Their top professors were always in class teaching you, always accessible after class. Unlike Harvard [who] will have half their professors that don't actually teach in the class. They [would] have assistants teaching.

You also oversaw the Frank Gehry's Walt Disney Concert Hall, the Staples Center and other cultural site in Los Angeles. What was that like for you to bring those projects into Los Angeles?

It was finding the right people to delegate that to because I couldn't delegate that myself. First of all, you're a city 15 miles long, you have 45,000 employees of the city, and you have hundreds of thousands of businesses. You can't do everything yourself. But I got people to do it. [I got] Eli Broad to do the Disney Hall, Charlie Isgar and Steve Soboroff to do Staples, and same with [the] Alameda Corridor.

The city would take forever to do [something] on its own. But if you have people on the outside who know what they're doing, it's amazing what can happen. It's magical.

You bought the Pantry restaurant in Downtown, L.A. Why?

It was the greatest thing I ever did. I went there regularly for breakfast. I was there one morning for breakfast reading my newspaper. I had finished breakfast and one of the waiters came up and said, "Hey buddy, if you want to read, the library's at 5th and Hope. You go there." And I fell in love with the restaurant at that moment.

Later you served as Secretary of Education for Governor Arnold Schwarzenegger. How did that happen?

I was a good friend of Arnold's. He knew that I loved education, particularly education of poor children. He asked me then to be Secretary of Education. Neither he nor I knew at that moment that the Secretary of Education has zero power in Sacramento. It was really two years or so I was there [and it] was not the happiest [time] of my life. In hindsight, a few things got done, like educating more nurses.

What's next for Dick Riordan?

Right now I teach leadership at the UCLA Anderson School for three months a year. Hopefully I'm training the future leaders. I am chairman of 12 African American Charter Schools, ICEF. I'm involved in just about anything [with] blended learning and education, combining computers and regular education together. My foundation [The Riordan Foundation], we have numerous things we do. We've given over a million books to penitentiaries in the state and I have great people.

• Watch Riordan's interview on Beverly Hills View on Channel 10 on November 3 at 4:30 pm or online at <https://vimeo.com/109282865>

SHEILA KUEHL AND BOBBY SHRIVER FACE OFF

So why is Kuehl cancelling debates?

By Nancy Yeang

Bobby Shriver

Sheila Kuehl

Los Angeles County Supervisor candidates Sheila Kuehl and Bobby Shriver faced off in a debate on October 17 at the Broad Stage in Santa Monica.

However, the only remaining debate in the San Fernando Valley between the Supervisor candidates at Pierce College on October 20 only featured Shriver. Kuehl's campaign emailed the organizer of the debate just days before the event, saying that Kuehl "had made other plans" to be on the Westside, according to the Daily News.

At the Santa Monica debate, Kuehl argued that her background of 14 years in legislature, during which she passed 171 bills, would qualify her for the supervisor position.

"My experience in getting votes and explaining legislation to my colleagues, getting three different governors to sign these bills would qualify me to do a good job at getting the other two votes [on the Supervisor board]," Kuehl said. "You explain to people exactly what this law does and what it doesn't do, and why it's in your best interest to vote for it."

Shriver countered with his experience on the local level while being on the Santa Monica City Council and working in a bi-partisan way in Washington D.C. with a Republican Senate and a Republican President to pass HIV legislation.

"My experience is that you have to very carefully listen to people, try to understand their perspective and try to adjust your own position so that you try to get something," Shriver said. "It doesn't do any good to say a certain thing and then the legislation doesn't get passed."

Kuehl disagreed that though "listening to people is very important," it is asking for support even if others do not agree.

"After you've listened to them and they said, 'No,' you probably shouldn't give up," Kuehl said.

On the topic of rent control, Kuehl supports rent control, and does not want apartment owners to be able to raise rent in between renters during the vacancy period.

"I would support regulation, not deregulation of rent control through the vacancy," Kuehl said. "Every time an apartment is vacated, the rent goes up. It's going to be unaffordable if the government doesn't do something."

Shriver said rent can't be controlled, and that he is supportive of transit-oriented development where housing should be built around transit stops.

"What you really want is to expand in the production and supply of humans," Shriver said. "That's what we need. That's why rents go up because people bid for them."

Kuehl and Shriver were split on the topic of member appointment to the Employee Relations Commission.

Kuehl said that she liked the system used in the past where members were appointed by agreement from both management and labor unions on each seat.

"What's happening now is management will appoint one [member], the unions will appoint one [member], and then if they can't come to agreement on the third one, in a certain number of days that person will be appointed," Kuehl said. "That actually puts weight on the scale for management and I don't think that we really need to be at war with our own employees."

Shriver underscored that Kuehl is supported by labor unions, and that the old system led to employees winning more than 90 percent of the cases.

"It wasn't a level playing field," Shriver said. "There's going to be fairness, 50/50, [and] a tribunal that adjudicates labor claims. But one side is winning more than 90 percent of the cases? It's not fair."

The candidates addressed Ebola prevention measures and suggested solutions to prevent an outbreak from occurring in Los Angeles.

"I think the number one thing that should be done is that there should be screening at LAX," Shriver said. "Right now there is no federal government screening at LAX, or for that matter San Francisco, and our federal officials are now working on that. But we need that in place right away."

Shriver mentioned that Kuehl accused him of scaring the community by suggesting that public health officials should inform the public on the status of Ebola and hold community meetings to reassure the public on what would happen if an Ebola case was detected.

"I think people are already scared," Shriver said. "It's very important that people who have had some experience with [Ebola] get out in front of the public, reassure them, and think outside the box because there has never been a pandemic that preceded in exactly the same way that people thought it was going to."

Kuehl incorrectly stated Shriver's comment on screening at the airports as an airport ban, which Shriver corrected on his counterargument. Kuehl said that current measures, such as a press conference, media information, and taking precautions by training employees at medical facilities, are already preventative measures taking place.

"When I said scaring people, I think that often people just say, 'Well we're all going to catch it,' when there's not been one case in LA County," Kuehl said. "I think it's partly been because of the precautions."

Kuehl misquoted Shriver's comments again on the topic of storm water parcel pacts to pay the County Sheriffs costs caused by storm wastewater pollution.

"The county needs a plan, not just go city, by city, by city, and try to convince them to tax themselves," Kuehl said.

"I didn't say that I was going to go from city to city to city to convince them to tax themselves," Shriver said. "I said that I would try to bring all the cities together, all the water districts together, in a unified way to come up with a plan."

Kuehl agreed that the county does need a plan, but also said that she would issue bonds.

"It's fine for us, we vote to tax ourselves," Kuehl said. "I don't know that the City of San Fernando and many of the other cities that are poor can really do that."

Shriver countered that bonds and parcel taxes both cost money.

The election is on November 4.

You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code.
