A RESPONSE TO BOARD OF EDUCATION MEMBER NOAH MARGO'S LETTER TO THE EDITOR LAST WEEK:

The Beverly Hills United School District spends about $14,000 per student. The Manhattan Beach School District spends about $7000 per student, yet their district has a higher rating than Beverly Hills. Apparently ocean breezes have a positive effect on student learning abilities. Mr. Margo, you stated your position in issue #818 of the Weekly and I have stated mine in issue #817. Enough said. Let the voters decide in the November election who is right.

Beverly Hills Unified School District for parking permits for four district personnel and all five Board of Education members.

Under the original proposal, the parking permit would apply to several different zones, including the area near the BHUSD property, non-metered parking spaces and the metered spaces near Horace Mann.

"I don't fully get why they need it at all campuses," said Councilmember Willie Brien. "At the high school, at the district office, that whole area there, there's plenty of parking on campus, there's plenty of parking on the street right in front of the administrative building."

Brien called for clearly defined, specified parking zones.

"I actually take a little bit of a broader view," said Vice Mayor John Mirisch. "I think the logic that applies to giving Class 1 permits to any of our commissioners, in theory, should also apply to our school board members."

Following the Council's decision, Superintendent Steve Kessler, Chief Administrative Officer La Tanya Kirk-Carter, BHUSD Superintendent Steve Kessler finished his first week at the job last Friday.

"So far, so good," Kessler said. "I'm really optimistic about the future."

Looking to fill the principal position at both Beverly High and Hawthorne, the district has held two rounds of interviews and will enter a third round June 20. Kessler said some of the candidates have been "excellent."

"I'm happy about the recent developments," Kessler said. "The individuals in the school district have continued to be ultra supportive, so I feel like I've got the support of the community."

Council jumpstarts landmark proceedings for 515 Sierra Drive

Following a request by Councilmember Nancy Krasne, the City Council voted 4-0 at their Study Session Tuesday to initiate landmark proceedings for the property located at 515 Sierra Drive, a 1941 American Colonial Revival-style residence.

"I would be sad to see it go, knowing the history of that block," Krasne said.

Councilmember Willie Brien, who lives within 500 feet of the property, recused himself from the discussion.

A notice of pending demolition was posted on the site on May 14, jumpstarting the 30-day posting period, which ends June 13.

Krasne requested that the property, which was designed by Master Architect Gerard R. Colcord, be considered for potential inclusion onto the Local Register of Historic Properties. In accordance with the Beverly Hills Municipal Code, Master Architect properties are required to post a 30-day Notice of Pending Demolition before the City issues a demolition permit.

At the Study Session, Marcy Brubaker, who lives four houses north of the subject residence, pointed out that a second Colcord house on the same block will soon be torn down.

"[515 Sierra Drive] has not been changed, affording a unique opportunity for restoration," Brubaker said. "I have been informed that no house has ever been denied a demolition permit. The continual tearing down of original, architecturally significant and worthy homes in our community signals visual disorder on our streets."

As a result of the Council's decision, the City's historic consultants will prepare an analysis of the property which will be forwarded to the Cultural Heritage Commission for a recommendation.

If the Commission votes to nominate the residence, the Council will consider designating the property as a Local Landmark and placing it on the Local Register of Historic Properties.

"Before we demolish it, we should look very carefully at it," Krasne said.

ARTS FOR ALL

Mark Slavkin discusses his new role as the Wallis' Director of Education

By Mina Riazi

You served on the LAUSD Board of Education from 1989 to 1997. Tell us about that.

I ran in 1989 as a parent with a very young child; our son was two. I was concerned about the state of public schools, so that was probably the inspiration, or the motivation. I served for eight years, which is an incredible experience. I feel like we made progress on my main goal, which was to decentralize and move more authority to local schools.

You have worked for the Getty and the Music Center during your arts education career, which spans 17 years. Why did you feel like the Wallis was the next step?

I had been at the Music Center almost 14 years, which was a long run and a great experience—I loved my time at the Music Center. The spark for me was in October of last year, our president at the Music Center, Steve Roundtree, announced that he would be stepping down at the end of the year. That was really the impetus for me to think about where I wanted to be, my future and so on. I was ready for a change and was ready to be in a new opportunity. And the appeal of the Wallis, for me, was to be part of something brand new and to have a role in shaping something from the ground up—it's a pretty rare thing; actually [it] doesn't come along very often. So that was appealing to me when I considered it and remains exciting to me now that I'm here.

In your 2011 TED talk, you called yourself a "recovering politician." Does anyone ever really recover from elected politics?

I grew up in a family that was very involved in politics and government and that remains an interest of mine, a passion of mine [and] something I care a lot about. So I think that will always be true, but I felt lucky to get involved—in terms of elected office—at a pretty young age. I was 27 when I took office on the school board. And that was a great experience. So a little bit, for me, is kind of "been there, done that." I lived that life, I had that experience, got a lot out of it, but I'm not really clamoring to get back into elected office but I'm happy to be involved as just a citizen.

How did your career in elected politics prepare you for your role at the Wallis?

I think my background in government and the school district leads me to think of a systemic approach to whatever the issue is, because I've been in a position to help influence change on a very large scale. And so I carry that with me. Whether it was at the Music Center, or here, at the Wallis, [I ask] how can we support and leverage change within schools and school districts?

As opposed to just seeing it as one child at a time or one school at a time, I think part of the way I look at the world is to take a broader leadership role, so I think we will be an active voice here for advocacy for arts education both in Beverly Hills, as our local community, and in the larger LA region. And so I think I just bring that orientation from my prior life. Probably wouldn't be the case if I came more from a traditionally arts perspective.

How did you make the leap from elected politics to arts education?

During my time on the Board, we just didn't pay attention to arts education, frankly. It just wasn't really on the radar screen in any kind of major way. So I was not perceived as "Mr. Arts Education" when I was on the school board. I wasn't anti-art, but it wasn't my signature issue. When I was thinking of leaving the school board, a friend of mine connected me to the opportunity at the Getty, which was completely not on my radar screen at all. This was before the Getty Center had opened, it was still under construction, and I was aware of it but I wasn't gunning to work there, because my perception of the Getty was [that it was] a fairly elite institution, in terms of being a global leader in the museum world. But a friend of mine said [I] should at least talk to them, so I had an initial conversation, and the more I went along, the more intrigued I was, because the Getty said they wanted to make a difference in LA, that they wanted to be relevant in LA in a bigger way once the Getty Center opened. And they thought that I could help in that regard. And they would teach me everything that I needed to know on the arts side, so it was an incredible opportunity. I traveled to different parts of the country, I met with all kinds of experts, they gave me all kinds of access to learn and get much smarter about the arts. So it was really the Getty—they were willing to take a risk on me, a gamble on me, if you will, because I wasn't a traditional museum candidate. The Getty was staffed with the world's greatest collection of experts in the arts but they didn't have people who really understood the public affairs and politics and education dynamic of LA, so I feel like I contributed some of that, and they taught me about the arts, and it was good opportunity.

Tell us about your family.

[My wife Debbie and I have a] son, Max, [who] will be 28 in August. Our daughter, Samantha, will be 25 in July, and then our youngest son, Eli, is 17 and he's finishing 11th grade. They all went to public schools in LA and really, of their own choice—I don't think because of me—got involved in the arts. Our oldest was in jazz band and was producer of the musical theatre at his school; my daughter was a stage manager for the theater program and our youngest is a jazz guitar musician and plays in the jazz band at school. I get to be a proud parent. They all went to the Musical Academy at Hamilton High School. The same high school that I went to and [that] my parents went to, which is somewhat unusual, I think, in LA, to have three generations at the same school.

In a January interview with Broadway World, you said "My top priority [as Director of Education] is to create a full-circle, expansive program that brings young people to the Wallis to experience and immerse themselves in the arts, and that sends artists to schools across the region to teach and enrich local education." How do you plan to achieve this?

One of the things I've realized since being here is we're not going to be able to implement every program and idea in one single year. I'm learning to pace myself a little bit—we have to be here a long time, so it's not all at once. As we look at this coming school year, we've launched the New School Partners Program that will serve K-12 schools in two different ways. And schools are now starting to apply for this. We'll have ten, Wallis Focus Schools—that's a more in-depth partnership, so that will include students coming here for field trips to see performances and teachers coming here for different professional development workshops about the arts. And we'll also be inviting kids and parents together to come back here and see performances and providing support from artists to go into those ten schools, and that will be highly customized. Each school will identify what they need the most: it might be a particular art form one school might want, workshops for kids, another school may want training for teachers. Each school in that program will get 20 hours of support from artists, but the details will be customized with each school, because we really want to help them advance their goals, and that's different from school to school. So we're calling those Wallis Focus Schools. And for this next year we're starting with ten and that could expand over time, but I don't want to bite off more than we can chew. And then we'll have a broader circle that we're calling Wallis Partner Schools that we'll sign up to bring students here for art student matinees. So we have identified four particular shows for elementary age and four shows for middle and high school. Schools sign up based on their grade level and which particular shows they want to attend and how many students would participate. We're also launching courses for young artists—classes that will take place here and after school and weekends. This coming fall, we're going to have three different classes: one on choreography for young dancers to learn about choreography, the second one called Songwriting for the Theater, and the third is about the art of small ensemble in chamber music and jazz. The [classes] were designed to overlap with artists that will be presenting on our stages next year. So the choreography class will have a regular teacher but will also [provide] the chance [for students] to interact with dance companies and choreographers that will be here next year. I think our kind of special "value added" is to [allow students the opportunity to] interact with the artists that will be here and be a part of the Wallis community of artists. Young people and adult professionals will get to work together rather than have the education thing walled off and just separate. The more interaction, the better, as far as I'm concerned. That's the idea of immersing young people in the arts and letting them be a part of what happens at the Wallis.

What are you most looking forward to in the upcoming year?

I am probably most excited about the series of courses we will offer for young artists. It is thrilling to contribute to their growth and to give them opportunities to interact with the artists we are presenting on our stages.

"I think my background in government and the school district leads me to think of a systemic approach to whatever the issue is, because I've been in a position to help influence change on a very large scale. And so I carry that with me."

You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this Notice of Sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call 714-573-1965 for information regarding the trustee's sale or visit this Internet Web site <http://www.qualityloan.com>, using the file number assigned to this foreclosure by the trustee: CA-15-660368-HL. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Web site. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale. The undersigned trustee disclaims any liability for any incorrectness of the property address or other common designation, if any, shown herein. If no street address or other common designation is shown, directions to the location of the property may be obtained by sending a written request to the beneficiary within 10 days of the date of first publication of this Notice of Sale. If the trustee is unable to convey title for any reason, the successful bidder's sole and exclusive remedy shall be the return of monies paid to the trustee, and the successful bidder shall have no further recourse. If the sale is set aside for any reason, the Purchaser at the sale shall be entitled only to a return of the deposit paid. The Purchaser shall have no further recourse against the mortgagor, the mortgagee, or the mortgagee's attorney. If you have previously been discharged through bankruptcy, you may have been released of personal liability for this loan in which case this letter is intended to exercise the note holder's right against the real property only. As required by law, you are hereby notified that a negative credit report reflecting on your credit record may be submitted to a credit report agency if you fail to fulfill the terms of your credit obligations. NOTICE TO POTENTIAL BIDDERS: If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call (714)730-2727, using the file number assigned to this case 5826. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Web site. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale. The property heretofore described is being sold "as is". The street address and other common designation, if any, of the real property described above is purported to be: 1551 Summitridge Drive, Beverly Hills, CA 90210. The undersigned Trustee disclaims any liability for any incorrectness of the street address and other common designation, if any, shown herein. Said sale will be made, but without covenant or warranty, expressed or implied, regarding title, possession, or encumbrances, to pay the remaining principal sum of the note(s) secured by said Deed of Trust, with interest thereon, as provided in said note(s), advances, if any, under the terms of the Deed of Trust, estimated fees, charges and expenses of the Trustee and of the trusts created by said Deed of Trust, to-wit: $2,828,655.72 (Estimated) Accrued interest and additional advances, if any, will increase this figure prior to sale.
