Frank Fenton, former mayor, passes

Longtime Beverly Hills political leader and former mayor Frank Fenton passed away August 4. He was 78.

Fenton fled Germany in the midst of World War II, arriving in Cuba before moving to the United States. Later, he relocated Sao to Paulo, Brazil, where he attended high school for two years. Fenton completed his schooling at Hamilton High in

Frank Fenton

Los Angeles.

A resident of Beverly Hills for over 40 years, Fenton and his wife Judie moved to the city on February 9, 1971, the day of the Sylmar earthquake. They met in a phone booth at Mount Sinai Hospital, now Cedars-Sinai, when Judie was 15 and Fenton was 19.

"We definitely were high school sweethearts," Judie said in a 2008 interview with the Weekly.

Fenton was first elected to office in 1983 to the BHUSD Board of Education, where he served until 1991, including during the controversial 1989 teachers' strike.

He was elected city treasurer in 2001 and city councilmember in 2005. Fenton served as mayor in 2009.

"Former Mayor Fenton was an active community leader, civic activist and a successful finance professional," said Vice Mayor Nancy Krasne in a statement. "He holds the unique distinction of being the only person to have held all three elected offices in the City as a Beverly Hills Unified School District Board Member, City Treasurer, and finally City Councilmember."

But Fenton's community involvement was not limited to elected office. In 1986, he was named president of the Maple Counseling Center. He also chaired the Beverly Hills Education Foundation.

Fenton believed in developing the city's youth and was an active Little League supporter. In recognition for his many years of service, the sports field at La Cienega Park was named Frank Fenton Field in 2009.

"This is a great city," Fenton said in the abovementioned interview. "Anything I

BHUSD legal fees for second quarter exceed $1.7 million

BHUSD legal expenditures exceeded $1.7 million for the second quarter calendar year, more than double last quarter's total of $847,642.

Around $500,000 was charged to the general fund and $1.2 million to Measure E. Both general fund and Measure E expenditures were distributed among six different law firms.

Attorney Fred Fenster from Greenberg Glusker represents the district in the litigation involving former BHUSD Facilities Director Karen Christiansen. The total judgment against the district exceeds $20 million.

As of October 2014, Horvitz & Levy represented the district in the CEQA appeal involving Metro's proposed Purple Line extension project, which the district lost. Murphy & Evertz represented the district in the CEQA case against Metro in opposition to the Purple Line extension route. The Metro case is on appeal, but statistically, appeals have a low chance of success. According to research conducted by Board of Education Vice President Mel Spitz last December, comparative school districts spend $65 per student on legal fees, whereas the BHUSD spends $478.

BHUSD legal fees for the 2015-16 fiscal year totaled $3.2 million.

can give back to the city for being so good to our family and to our kids is what I want to do."

Fenton's mother-in-law Donna Goldstein passed away in June.

Survivors include his wife Judie Fenton, children Steven Fenton and Leeza Gibbons, Gary Fenton and Katie Fenton, Mindy Fenton Samuels and Dennis Samuels, Jenny Fenton Smiley and Ryan Smiley, and several grandchildren.

Services were held Sunday at Hillside Memorial Park.

Traffic & Parking hopes to consolidate permit parking zones

At their August 4th meeting, the Traffic & Parking Commission indicated support for streamlining the petition process surrounding preferential parking permit zones. The Commission agreed to work together on a feasible framework.

"It absorbs an incredible amount of time and energy on something that other cities have done in a way more administrative or perfunctory way," said Commission Chair Jake Manaster.

The first permit parking zone was formally adopted in August 1977, after being implemented on a trial basis in February 1977, and impacted the 100 blocks of North Almont Drive and La Peer Drive. Due to a swell in commuter vehicles, the program has tacked on 72 permit parking

Next Beverly Hills Co-Chair Ben Reiss

Why was Next Beverly Hills formed?

Every mayor that comes into their term has their priority items-things that they would like to see happen during the course of their mayoral term in office. For [councilmember] Julian Gold, he wanted to see the next generation really step up and take more of an active role in terms of public service. He had the idea of creating a leadership group for people of the next generation, which formed into a committee that we have now established into a much broader, permanent committee we've dubbed Next Beverly Hills. This is something that's an ongoing task force with the goal of creating awareness, programs and opportunities for millennials, but in a broader context. [Next Beverly Hills] is an inclusive group, not an exclusive one. We just really strive to form collaborative partnerships with anyone to everyone.

Next Beverly Hills was originally called Next Generation Leaders. Then the age restriction was removed by the Council. Why?

There are young residents that are much younger than that 25-to-45 [age] spectrum that will be interested because they truly are going to be the next generation of residents in the city, hopefully playing an active role in service. And then, on the other end of the spectrum-the older end-there are a lot of forward-thinking and innovative thought leaders that are older than 45 that also want to play an active role. So it's really more focused on what more Beverly Hills can do for the future and to attract young energy. Basically, what the group wants to do, more than anything, is change the perception [that] Beverly Hills [is] only for old money, old ideas and establishment in Los Angeles.

Who's on the committee? We have a lot of great leaders on What does Next Beverly Hills hope to accomplish with the Next Night block party on August 27?

This is really a coming-out party to let residents know that the city is doing something different. We had a lot of great success with our arts festival that we have in the park and the [Rodeo Drive Concours d'Elegance] and a number of things that happen on Rodeo our centennial [block party]. But it's also the first real event we've had on South Beverly Drive, so we wanted to make it known that we're creating new programs and initiatives for the younger demographics in Beverly Hills. There are a lot of events and programs that neighboring cities have been really successful with, notably in Playa Vista and Venice, as well as downtown [Los Angeles]. It's just as important for Beverly Hills to do the same. This is just the beginning of something we want to do to improve the new generation.

What can attendees expect from the event?

There's going to be new kinds of live music-a combination of live DJs and live instruments playing an eclectic mix of electronic dance and pop music; there's going to be a variety of food trucks and booths-a nice mix of both local food vendors and food trucks that normally have a limited presence in Beverly Hills. We're also going to have a lot of retail pop-up shops. We basically want to create an experience [that people] would normally have to leave the city in order to experience, as well as introduce other businesses that are not familiar with Beverly Hills [to] a taste of what living and working in Beverly Hills could be like.

How can vendors get involved?

Vendors can get involved by going to our website, which can be found on What else can Beverly Hills do to make its image more youthful?

A lot of what we want to do to help create awareness is what Next Beverly Hills seeks to do in terms of community outreach and awareness campaigns-a lot of that is messaging and marketing. A lot of people don't realize that Beverly Hills has its own commercial district, where you have companies like Pivot and Google and Netflix. We want to make that known to the broader public. We have a lot of creativity in the city, and getting that message out to neighboring communities is part marketing. Beverly Hills is a creative hub, innovation is taking place here as it is, and there are a lot of resources, both financial and technical, that could benefit new business partners.

zones in the past four decades.

"To make it more realistic, it's in the community's best interest to have realistic zones that can be enforced as opposed to this sort of patchwork of what we have," said Vice Chair David Seidel.

Staff pinpointed three different options for the commission. Phase one entails identifying areas that may be potential districts and developing a map that bundles the existing PPP zones into project areas based on neighborhoods.

Phase two involves retaining a consultant to conduct parking studies and evaluating potential environmental impacts under the California Environmental Quality Act (CEQA); and phase three requires initiating a pilot program.

"I'm fully aware there is a lot of history here," Manaster said.

COVERSTORY BOARD PLACES NEW BOND MEASURE ON NOV. BALLOT WITH 3-2 VOTE

Hacker, Spitz dissent

By Mina Riazi

Board of Education Vice President Mel Spitz and Board member Isabel Hacker, both recently elected, remained steadfast in their opposition to a new bond measure Tuesday, citing a long list of grievances.

"We're not ready," Hacker said. "I have three children, and I always tell my children, don't do something just because three other people or four other people think it's the right thing. I have to be independent. I have to have integrity when I sit in this chair."

Board President Howard Goldstein and Board members Noah Margo and Lisa Korbatov authorized а $270-million bond resolution for the November 8th ballot. Because the measure lacked four votes, it will need 66.7-percent voter approval to pass.

"It should be obvious to even the most avid supporters of a bond measure in 2016 that the timing for placing a bond measure on this November ballot and conducting an effective campaign is simply not practical," Spitz said.

A survey conducted by Godbe Research in May to assess potential voter support for a new bond measure depicted a public that needs convincing. When respondents were read arguments against the bond, 37.1 percent said they were "much more likely" to vote against it based on the statement: "The district wasted the money from the 2008 Measure E campaign."

"Many voters still resent the fiasco of Measure E," Spitz said.

In a surprise move, Margo voted for the second resolution.

He had condemned the move earlier that evening.

"For any reason, if [the Proposition-39 resolution] does not pass, I will not handicap this district—as much as I believe in this measure—I will not handicap us with 66 percent," Margo said.

A non-Proposition-39 measure does not require review by a Citizens' O v e r s i g h t Committee.

At a June study session, Charles Heath, Partner at campaign consulting firm TBWB Strategies, told the Board the survey indicates "potential challenges for passing a bond

But Korbatov and Goldstein seemed unswayed. Both mentioned earthquakes, asbestos and heavy metals in their claims that the aging school buildings are unsafe.

"Earthquake threats in Southern California are greater than anywhere else in the United States," Goldstein said.

A study session last week revealed the Board has not yet finalized plans for how the $270 million would be spent. During the meeting, the Board prioritized work at Hawthorne over Beverly High.

adopted various motions requesting copies of redacted legal bills/invoices paid with Measure E funds and a current legal opinion from an attorney regarding scope for which Measure E funds can be used for legal fees and consultants/experts retained by law firms to pursue litigation claims," Gibbons wrote on behalf of the COC in a June 16th letter to the Board.

Former COC members Joe Safier and Craig Davis said the committee first requested the documents years ago.

"The COC has had an ongoing request for a number of years for redacted copies of legal invoices," Safier said.

According to the COC, the information the district previously provided was "insufficient," and the committee could not make a proper determination about whether Measure E funds had been expended efficiently.

"For at least two years, several members of the COC have expressed frustration about the inability to obtain the redacted legal bills and invoices for the committee's review," Davis said.

Additionally, the COC requested that an attorney for the district attend a special COC meeting in order to "provide a clear and specific opinion" regarding Measure E expenditures.

"The [COC] does not believe that attorney-client privilege eliminates the ability for the committee to receive an opinion from the district's legal counsel," Gibbons wrote in the letter. "The sanctity of the privilege can be preserved with appropriate redaction and limiting waiver of the privilege."

The COC was established in 2002 to oversee bond proceeds, expenditures and audits associated with Measure K.

BHHS athletic director working to fill three coaching vacancies

Beverly High athletic director Kevin Brown said he is seeking to hire boys' golf and volleyball and girls' water polo coaches and has hired new cross-country and girls' tennis and volleyball coaches.

The school wants coaches "who possess core values that directly connect with our school's core values and vision for our student athletes overall development and well being," Brown said.

Those core values and traits are "work ethic, gratitude, enthusiasm, resiliency, integrity, great communication skills, high character, good decision making, caring, compassion, knowledgeable," Brown said.

The goal is to find teachers to fill the coaching vacancies, Brown said. No teachers expressed interest in the girls' water polo coaching position, Brown said.

Brown was interviewed before the application deadline for the boys' golf and volleyball coaching positions.

Greg Walters coached the boys' golf team this spring but could not return because of "work obligations," Brown said.

The school had co-coaches for boys' volleyball this spring, Wudh Bonchirt and Evann Bennett. Bennett will devote himself to college education. Bonchirt will remain at the school in a position to be determined, Brown said.

Gabrielle Juarez coached the girls' water polo team last season "but we just decided to move in a different direction," Brown said.

Dwayne Washington and Howard Edelman are switching jobs with the cross-country team. Washington will be the coach after being an assistant to Edelman in 2015. Edelman will be an assistant this season.

YuYu Myinttu will be the girls' tennis coach, replacing Geoff Ashley, "who moved on to another job," Brown said.

Miranda Lebrun will be the girls' volleyball coach, succeeding Tanner Seigel, who left to pursue other coaching opportunities, Brown said.

Hotel rooms generate the best kind of revenue for the City

Hotel taxes paid by guests stay in Beverly Hills and cannot be taken by the State.

Since 1991, only 201 new hotel rooms have been built in Beverly Hills. The new Waldorf-Astoria replaces the same number of rooms being eliminated by the Beverly Hilton.

CBRE Hotels, the preferred hospitality consulting company for all Beverly Hills luxury hotels, analyzed the Beverly Hills hotel market. The 2016 CBRE Hotel Market Analysis concluded: One Beverly Hills "will not impact the Beverly Hills Luxury hotel market" as there is "significant unsatisfied demand."1

The CBRE study also determined that the 134-room boutique luxury hotel at One Beverly Hills will generate at least $8.7 million a year in new revenue to the City at hotel stabilization.²

One Beverly Hills will help satisfy this pent-up hotel demand and will generate vital new revenue for our City.

This new revenue will support our vital city services including Police, Fire and Paramedics.
