"First-rate Firefighter" [Issue #949]

Kudos to our Beverly Hills Fire Department for their heroic help in fighting the fires that have caused horrific destruction not far from our community.

It takes a special kind of person with incredible bravery to be a firefighter and it takes dedicated teamwork to rescue, protect and save.

We have the best of both. Beverly Hills is lucky to be in such safe hands.

City Council Shoots Down Basement Ordinance

The City Council voted 4-0 to deny an amendment of the definition of basement and the regulations for grading and retaining walls in the Hillside Area at their December 5 meeting. Mayor Lili Bosse recused herself, as her home includes the type of basement targeted by the ordinance.

What would have been included in the ordinance were measures to amend the definition of "floor area" that would define a basement as an area that is located directly below the portion of a story above which has a finished floor level that is a maximum of three feet above finished grade at any cross-section cut through the building with certain exceptions for driveways, light courts, pools and water features, and stairs and access ways that might otherwise cause a basement to be exposed by more than three feet above grade.

It also would have included the addition of a definition of "light court," "finished grade" and "natural grade," and an amendment of the language governing the maximum height of walls, fences and hedges within the Hillside area of the

The Planning Commission unanimously recommended at their meeting on October 26 that the City Council recommend the ordinance as amended.

But at the meeting, the four councilmembers debated at length about what do with projects currently in the pipeline, even though the Planning Commission suggested that there should be an exemption for projects that had already obtained an R-1 permit and for those who had filed a completed application prior to their hearing.

The Council agreed to have the Planning Commission look at the 29 projects currently in the pipeline, with Vice Mayor Julian Gold's direction that they should "imbed an R-1 permitting process for landfill, retaining walls, and grading, and at the same time, consider pipeline projects and thresholds.'

The ordinance will be sent back to the Planning Commission likely early next

Board Approves JPA

The BHUSD Board of Education approved the terms for a new, three year JPA between the District and the City of Beverly Hills in a unanimous vote at a Special Board meeting held Tuesday.

"The district has spent hundreds, if not a thousand hours over the past six months, working on the terms of this very important partnership with the City," said Superintendent Michael Bregy. "We're so pleased to be moving forward with a mutually-beneficial agreement that will support programs and activities for our entire community for years to come."

Up from the current $9.7 million, the 2017-2018 JPA payment will be $10.5 million in 2017-2018, $11 million in 2018-2019, and $11.5 million in 2019-2020. As a result of the increase, payment for the Crossing Guards will increase from $125,000 to half of the annual crossing guard contract and $100,000 escrow account will be established to pay for repairs certified.

Additionally, there will be up to $20,000 per year for increased police or fire service, e.g. extra detail for games and 39 hours per week for City Ambassadors at all District sites for Supervision Costs of the CCTV Cameras and IT support, valued at approx. $1.5 million.

The City Council's official vote on the JPA will be listed on the agenda for the upcoming December 19 meeting.

"As the only Councilmember with a child currently in our schools, nobody has a greater interest than I in supporting the District. But true support cannot mean just giving the District money with absolutely no accountability. I can't support a JPA of tens of millions of taxpayer dollars without putting measures in place to ensure that our kids get the world-class education they deserve. This JPA actually eliminates accountability and would allow the District to further reduce programs, despite the additional funding," said Councilmember John Mirisch.

"After the District's own Moss-Adams report, we need to show that the JPA represents adequate consideration for the dollar amount the City is paying. We haven't done that homework. So the $10.5 million figure for the first year seems drawn out of a hat and I'm concerned about the legality of a JPA which already is by far the largest in the state and which after the Moss-Adams report seems completely arbitrary. If we simply want to give money to the District for whatever reason, there may be a legal way for us to do so and we should go in that direction rather than perpetuating this squirrelly charade.

New Home to be Built on Doheny

The Design Review Commission voted last Thursday to allow the construction of a new two-story single-family residence located at 113 North Doheny Drive.

The decision follows a previous review by the Design Commission at their meeting on November 2. They expressed concerns related to the overall refinement of the design-specifically, the need for additional modulation of the façade, size and details of the windows, privacy of the neighbors and the functionality of the walkway. The commission directed at that time for the project to be restudied.

Asresult, project applicant

Paul Kalt modified elements like providing an opaque glass screen at the rear balcony area for privacy of the neighbors, revising the railings and fence to a custom design, solid stock and painted black, providing gutter/downspout details, revising the landscape and hardscape plan for the front yard, providing details for the entry area pilasters, increasing the size of the windows on the façade, and revising the material board.

At the meeting, Chair Mahnaz Sharifi said that the project didn't have a specific style, even though the applicant filed it under "Italian Renaissance." But Kalt contended that the railings, roof and entry all contain Italian Renaissance elements.

Vice Chair Ilona Sherman expressed similar concerns, calling the project "inconsistent" with the Italian Renaissance style.

"It seems to me that what we have is another large box with a bit of wrought iron railing," said Sherman. "It just doesn't fit the definition of what you titled it. It seems like more needs to be done to enhance it and to make look richer.

T h e commission also agreed that the project is 'massive," noting that there minimal modulation in the front.

"You could work on it with the roof, with the balconies, with breaking the mass a little bit just to make it a less massive project and to make it look less like a box," said Sharifi.

Ultimately, though, Sharifi stood alone in her adamant opposition to the project. The rest of the commission found

COVERSTORY A CLOSER LOOK AT THE WATER RATE INCREASE

How will your home be affected? By Olivia Anderson

The City Council voted last Tuesday to introduce a water rate increase, which will go into effect early next year.

Starting January 1, 2018, the bi-monthly bill for the average single-family residential customer will increase by between $5.50 and $6.50 per hundred cubic feet (HCF, which is 748 gallons of water) each year. The average multi-family residential customer's bill will increase by between $6.70 and $7.60, and the average commercial customer will increase by between $5.00 and $5.75.

Here's what that would look like next year for a multi-family home that uses 26 HCFs per year:

As an example, the current charge for a duplex on South Palm Drive in Beverly Hills with a 1" meter size is $43.36. The proposed charge beginning in 2018 is $44.66, which makes a bi-monthly bill differential of $1.30.

The more water a customer uses, the higher a rate they will pay. The tier concept will encourage residents to conserve more water.

The proposal, which was first presented at the September 5 City Council meeting, will cover costs like purchasing water from the Metropolitan Water District, the fixed costs of operating the water system materials and supplied, budgeted capital projects, and debt service payments.

Public Works Commission Jeff Wolfe noted at public comment that the increases are not set in stone each year.

"The bulk of the increase is needed as a result of the estimates for what it will take [for] the water treatment plant, so this is a noticing for the next five years," said Wolfe. "It doesn't require you to increase the rates each year by three percent if in fact the costs for that treatment plant come in differently or if they come in less.'

But several residents spoke in opposition to the increase, which Mayor Lili Bosse validated by contending that residents weren't sufficiently provided with the reason behind these increases

"I think that we can do a better job explaining how we get up to the three percent. I don't know that we've done that. I think we've shown the analysis, but I think we need it to take it to another level,' said Bosse. "We need for everybody to understand the why. A few more dollars makes a big difference and I think everybody needs to understand why it's a few more dollars.'

She also addressed an issue brought up by West Hollywood Councilmember Lauren Meister at the previous meeting: the fact that West Hollywood customers, half of whom receive water from Beverly Hills, are paying a rate of 25 percent higher than the same water service received by Beverly Hills residents.

Meister had previously asked for a 60 day delay so West Hollywood could review the City's cost allocation study and discern why the increase is necessary, but Public Works Director Shana Epstein said that pushing 60 days would delay when the rates go into effect, thus resulting in a revenue loss of $166,000.

Still, Tuesday Bosse and Councilmember John Mirisch showed support for giving West Hollywood extra 60 days since Beverly Hills only provided the cost allocation study the day before West Hollywood's City Council meeting. Bose said that the way Beverly Hills handled the situation was "inappropriate."

The proposal passed 3-2, with Bosse and Mirisch dissenting.

COVERSTORY FACING THE FLAMES

BHFD continues to lend help to the Thomas Fire By Olivia Anderson

As the SoCal wildfires rage on, the Beverly Hills Fire Department continues to lend help where it's needed, with a strike team currently dispatched to Carpinteria. The strike team, which consisted of one engine and a chief officer as a strike team leader, was sent out last Monday evening as a part of the California Master Mutual Aid Agreement. Of 85 total BHFD firefighters, 27 are on duty at all times.

This statewide program requires participating parties to lend resources and facilities to other parties of the agreement in order to prevent and alleviate disasters. It divides the state into various regions and areas. As region 1, area A, the BHFD strike team joined forces with nearby cities like Culver City.

The purpose for dividing the state into different regions is so that the state can pull from different regions in order to fight different disasters. In the instance of the Thomas Fire, resources have been pulled from various different regions so as to not drain all the resources in one area should another fire breakout.

Fire Chief Greg Barton has encouraged affected or potentially affected homeowners review emergency preparedness plans. "The more prep work that the homeowner does beforehand, like brush clearance and things along those linesthey're helping us help them protect their structure," said Barton.

Currently working 24 hours on and 24 hours off, Barton anticipates that the BFHD strike team will spend a total of 14 days on the field fighting the Thomas Fire. The department will keep an eye on the weather conditions and evaluate the next steps once the 14 days are up.

"If at the end of 14 days our resources are still needed out there we will do a crew swap, so we'll send a new set of firefighters out there and relieve the ones who are out now," said Barton. "It's a long time, but with the fire that's going on right now, they need those 14 days. They need the help.
