Woods sets 90-day plan in motion on Day One

Gary Woods

On his first day on the job last Friday, new BHUSD Superintendent Gary Woods said he was just sitting down in his office for the first time at 2:20 p.m. He said he had piles of paperwork on his desk, phone calls to return and upward of 100 messages waiting for responses in his new e-mail account.

Woods began the morning with a closed session special Board of Education meeting, and then headed off to Beverly High for a tour.

"I'm familiarizing myself with facilities, locations of things, the culture of how things work, what are the daily schedules here, what are the weekly schedules," said Woods, who expects to tour all four K-8 schools by this Friday.

Woods acknowledged that summers are busy for district administration.

"We're looking at staffing issues, looking at enrollment in some cases, looking at facilities, looking at changes in personnel, the budget was just passed and we have to analyze that," Woods said.

In the meantime, Woods has already started what he calls his 90-day plan, which he used when he became superintendent of the San Marino Unified School District in 2007.

"It's pretty detailed but I'm basically trying to interview 100 people in 90 days from a variety of stakeholder groups and I basically ask three questions," Woods said. "I'm trying to figure out what are the major themes in the district."

Woods asks stakeholders, including parents, City officials and other community members, how they fit into the district, what are their thoughts about the school district, and what they would do as superintendent.

"If you do that 100 times, you start getting some consistent responses, believe it or not," Woods said.

When the process is complete, Woods will put together a presentation of his findings for the Board of Education.

"I tend to tie my evaluations to those themes so we can all be going in the same direction," Woods said.

Human Relations Commission does not reach consensus on noise ordinance

After three public meetings and months of consideration, the Human Relations Commission was not able to reach consensus June 30 for a cut-off time for amplified sound on weekdays and weekends to recommend to the City Council. Instead, each commissioner proposed a time he or she considered appropriate.

"[I would] like to reiterate it is very possible that because of the diverse makeup of the commission, which is very representative of the diverse makeup of the City, we may not all agree on the same time no matter how many times we go around the table and that is appropriate," Vice Chair Barbara Linder said before the Commission voted. "What we are doing is showing the City Council how diverse the community is."

On weekdays, Linder and Commissioners Tom Pease and Ilona Sherman proposed 6 p.m. for the cut-off time for amplified sound. Commissioner Rochelle Ginsburg proposed 8 p.m. and Chair Sharona R. Nazarian and Commissioner Yar Meshkaty proposed 10 p.m. as the cut-off time for amplified sound. Former Commissioner Cheri Yousem recently moved out of Beverly Hills and is no longer on the Commission.

Pease said limiting amplified sound to 6 p.m. on weeknights was "common courtesy and common sense." Sherman said she agreed, and Linder recommended 6 p.m. to accommodate residents who get up early for work and children with early bedtimes.

"I think that 6 p.m. is very early," Nazarian said. "I think that's the time a lot of people start to come home from work. If you want to sit in your backyard—just so we all realize—if you want to sit in the backyard and have dinner with some music playing in the background that's considered amplified sound."

Ginsburg proposed a compromise.

OUR DATA SPEAKS VOLUMES

"[Six p.m.] seems a little bit limiting and 10 p.m. seems extreme in view of the fact [we] heard many people say, 'Please do not make a change,'" Ginsburg said. "I suggest for abatement of amplified music at 8 p.m. on weeknights. I think that would respect both extremes."

The Commission voted on the cut-off time for weekends in the same fashion, with Nazarian and Meshkaty favoring midnight, Ginsburg favoring 11 p.m., and Linder, Pease and Sherman favoring 10 p.m.

When asked if she had expected the Commission to reach consensus on the cut-off times, Nazarian said she had been hopeful.

"I'm disappointed the Commission wasn't able to come to consensus, but the votes are an accurate reflection of the different views of the community," Nazarian said.

Current City regulations limit the use or operation of sound amplifying equipment to the hours between 10 a.m. and 6 p.m. daily. The ordinance also presents guidelines for maximum permissible decibel levels. The ordinance is reportedly being enforced by Beverly Hills Police beginning at 10 p.m.

At the beginning of the meeting, Human Services Administrator James Latta highlighted a comment Mayor Barry Brucker made at the Commission's City Council liaison meeting the day before. "The Commission needs to be aware if we vote on no changes whatsoever, then police will start enforcing the noise ordinance at 6:01 p.m.," Latta said.

Latta also stated that the noise ordinance applies only to amplified sound, and that it would not limit the hours when residents are allowed to have social gatherings in their homes. Nazarian said that regardless of what time was decided for the ordinance, the police can respond at any time to complaints about disturbance of the peace.

The Commission also voted 5-1 to establish a social host ordinance, which would impose a fine on people who violate the noise ordinance. Nazarian voted no because she said it was punitive.

Earlier in the meeting, the Commission was unanimous in designating weekdays as Sunday through Thursday, and weekends as Friday, Saturday and the eve of public holidays.

Commissioners also unanimously recommended the establishment of guidelines and education about social gatherings for the public. The proposal to establish a permit process for having social gatherings with amplified sound was rejected with four commissioners voting no, and Linder and Ginsburg abstaining because they thought it was premature to consider the topic. Ginsburg then made a motion considering the "advisability" of a permit process for social gatherings with amplified sound, and Ginsburg, Linder, Meshkaty and Pease voted yes, and Nazarian and Sherman voted no.

The Human Relations Commission began deliberations on the noise ordinance on June 16, following three public outreach meetings, during which dozens of residents contributed a range of opinions.

"The key component to this whole process to me is a formal education campaign for the community, in which residents are educated about how to have a large party that is respectful of their neighbors," Nazarian said.

Hubbard returns to N-MUSD; new trial dates set for Hubbard, Christiansen

Jeffrey Hubbard

Former BHUSD Superintendent Jeffrey Hubbard returned to his post as superintendent of Newport-Mesa Unified School District on Tuesday, after more than five months on paid administrative leave.

The Daily Pilot reported Hubbard's anticipated return on June 30. N-MUSD Board of Education President Walt Davenport confirmed Tuesday that Hubbard had returned to work.

"[Hubbard] had asked to go on leave, which had been granted by the Board since it was a voluntary leave," Davenport said. "When it was decided he had things done he needed to do in preparation for the trial, he asked to come back."

Davenport said because Hubbard was on voluntary leave, Hubbard was free to come back without action by the Board. To cover all bases, Davenport said the Board would vote at next Tuesday's meeting to approve his return retroactively.

Davenport said there had not been a discussion of extending acting Superintendent Paul Reed's contract, which ended June 30.

"It had been assumed, frankly, when Paul Reed was appointed to be acting superintendent through the end of June that the trial would have been over by then, but that hasn't happened," Davenport said.

Davenport said he hoped that Hubbard's trial, set to begin Aug. 15, will not last long, and he expected Hubbard to take a personal leave, instead of an official leave, for the work days he will miss.

Hubbard and former BHUSD facilities director Karen Christiansen both appeared before Judge Stephen Marcus in the Los Angeles Superior Court on June 29 for a pre-trial conference and a status hearing, respectively.

Marcus is scheduled to hear both cases, with Christiansen's trial beginning Aug. 4 and Hubbard's trial set to begin Aug. 15. Christiansen faces four felony charges related to conflicts of interest, and Hubbard faces two felony charges for misappropriation of public funds.

Deputy District Attorney Max Huntsman, who will prosecute both cases, said the date of Hubbard's trial could be contingent on the completion of Christiansen's trial, because Marcus is scheduled to hear both cases. Huntsman said he expected Christiansen's trial to last between one and three weeks.

Huntsman said Christiansen's case will be heard first because it is more complicated than Hubbard's trial. Huntsman said Marcus is scheduled to hear a death penalty case at the beginning of September. If Marcus is not available for Hubbard's trial, Huntsman said another court would be able to handle the case. Huntsman said Marcus' court is a long cause court, which has been designated to handle complex cases, like Christiansen's, that require extensive pre-trial litigation.

Huntsman said regardless of the end date of Christiansen's trial, he expects Hubbard's trial to begin within a few weeks of the scheduled Aug. 15 court date.

Harmony Project celebrates 10 years of providing free music education to students in need

The Harmony Project, which recently celebrated its 10th anniversary, provides instruments, music lessons and ensemble opportunities to children ages 6 to 18 on full scholarship, with eligibility based on family income. Once a child enrolls, the Harmony Project is committed to that student through high school, and requires that participants remain enrolled in school.

"There's a tremendous amount of statistical information that indicates that children who participate in these types of arts programs, they develop the skills and character traits such as responsibility, discipline, and cooperation that carry over to all aspects of their lives," Board Chair Howard Banchik said.

The organization has Beverly Hills connections: Beverly High French teacher Irina Kashper and Beverly Hills resident Karen Platt are on the board of directors, and 2010 Beverly High graduate Oriana Falla played violin in the program for about nine years, and has returned to Harmony Project as a music teacher. Falla is an aspiring music teacher and currently attends Santa Monica College.

Kashper, who has been on the Board of Directors for three years, got involved with the organization because her husband has played violin with the Los Angeles Philharmonic, a partner of the Harmony Project, for the past 32 years.

"You see these kids achieve something and feel so good about themselves," Kashper said. "I see their essays, writing about how it changed their lives, enriched their lives and made them better. It's very touching and I'm very proud to be a part of that group."

Kashper's nephew recently made a donation to create a private lessons scholarship fund in Kashper's mother-in-law's name, Sofia Kashper.

The Harmony Project has grown significantly over the years, with participation expanding from 36 students in 2001 to over 1,300 students in 2011. The Harmony Project received the Coming Up Taller Award from the President's Committee on the Arts and the Humanities, which was presented at the White House by Michelle Obama in 2009.

This year, all 19 of the program's graduating seniors will continue on to higher education. Over the years, Harmony Project's Banchik Scholarship fund has awarded $5,000 college scholarships to 55 graduating seniors.

Harmony Project presents the Hollywood Summer Festival Concert at the Forest Lawn Hall of Liberty on July 24 at 2 p.m. For more information, visit www.Harmony-Project.org.

Judge continues hearing for protective order related to Kobor subpoenas

NOTICE OF COMMISSION VACANCY

HUMAN RELATIONS COMMISSION – deadline to apply August 19, 2011

The Beverly Hills City Council is seeking qualified residents to fill one vacancy on the Human Relations Commission.

building at 8767 Wilshire Boulevard.

The stay of discovery, which Hogue authorized to temporarily prohibit the enforcement of subpoenas before the June 28 hearing, will remain in effect. The City's motion for a protective order has been continued to Aug. 17, and the City's motion for summary judgment relating to two remaining causes of action will be heard on July 26.

"The Court acknowledged that the City has a motion for summary judgment that is scheduled to be heard on July 26 and if that motion is granted then the subpoenas will become moot," City Attorney Larry Wiener said. "Since the summary judgment presents issues of law that would not be affected by the proposed discovery, the Court determined that it would be prudent to defer ruling on the motion for protective order until after hearing the motion for summary judgment."

Wiener said the subpoenas seemed to target residents who voiced opposition to the Kobors' request to open medical offices at 8767 Wilshire Boulevard.

"We objected to the subpoenas on the basis that they are a misuse of the discovery process and an attempt to punish and intimidate citizens for exercising their First Amendment right," Wiener said last month.

In a 3-2 vote in February 2010, the City Council denied the Kobar Family Trust's appeal to change the land use at 8767 Wilshire Boulevard from general office to medical. Then-Mayor Nancy Krasne and then-Vice Mayor Jimmy Delshad voted in favor of the appeal.

The Kobar Family Trust filed a lawsuit against the City of Beverly Hills in April 2010. In January, Judge Hogue denied the Kobar Family Trust a writ of mandate that would have required the City to permit medical offices in the building.

The Kobar Family Trust has two causes of action remaining, alleging they were denied due process and equal protection. The City of Beverly Hills filed a motion for a summary judgment, which resolves a case without proceeding to trial, on the remaining causes of action.

For a summary judgment to be issued, it would have to be clear based on facts and the matter of the law that it would be impossible for the opposing party to prevail if the matter proceeded to trial.

Kobar Family Trust attorney Ben Reznik was out of town and did not return phone calls from the Weekly.

Recreation and Parks Commission considers three locations for off-leash dog park

Alan Block

The Recreation and Parks Commission considered three potential locations—two areas of Roxbury Park and one in the City's industrial area on Foothill Road—for an off-leash dog park during the June 26 commission meeting. The City of Beverly Hills currently does not allow dogs off-leash at any City park.

"The Commission wants to look into if there's a need and residents really want something of this nature," Commission Chair Alan Block said.

After discussing the three potential locations, the Commission directed staff to look into the availability and size of the three locations, the cost to implement a dog park, and issues regarding proximity to residences or offices at the various locations.

"Then we discussed as well how would [the park] pay for itself and would dogs have to be licensed [since there are] not really that many dogs licensed in Beverly Hills," Block said. "Before we get into that we wanted to see do we really have three feasible sites?"

The two Roxbury Park locations discussed were the current croquet and putting green areas. Block said only two Beverly Hills residents are current members of the croquet club, and that park rangers told him the putting green is used infrequently.

Block said up to 31,600 square feet in the 300 block of Foothill Road at Alden Drive could be made available for an off-leash dog park. Block said he preferred this location, but acknowledged "considerable cleanup, fencing, leveling and ground covering would be needed to make this an aesthetically pleasing location for patrons and their dogs."

Block said that once staff comes back with direction, the Commission is interested in holding a public outreach meeting to allow the public to weigh in on the topic.

Spadaro's legal troubles continue

Charlotte Spadaro

A notice of disciplinary charges was filed May 20 against former Mayor Charlotte Spadaro in the State Bar Court, alleging that Spadaro failed to repay a client for unused advanced attorney fees, failed to repay the same client $9,000 in loans, accepted a $5,000 investment from the same client for a company Spadaro never started, and accepted $5,000 from the same client for an investment in property but did not use the money as designated.

According to the notice and Prosecutor Erin Joyce, Spadaro faces involuntary enrollment as an inactive member of the State Bar and may be subject to restitution of all money Phyllis Williams paid Spadaro and payment for the costs incurred by the State Bar in relation to the matter, if Spadaro's conduct is found to pose a substantial threat of harm to the interests of clients or to the public. Joyce said Spadaro could be barred from practicing law for more than a year.

"Ms. Williams had been arrested for an animal abuse charge related to a kennel that wasn't operating with all the licensing," Joyce said. "Within a few days of Ms. Williams giving [Spadaro] a $7,500 check for legal fees, Charlotte Spadaro started hitting up the client for loans knowing that Phyllis Williams [was] an animal rescuer. [Spadaro told her] in order to feed [my] animals, I need this money."

The notice, which outlines six charges, alleges Spadaro failed to refund Phyllis Williams any unused advanced attorney fees after Williams terminated Spadaro's services. According to the complaint, Williams paid Spadaro $7,500 in advance and met with Spadaro once in August 2007 before terminating her services in June 2008.

Spadaro's response, filed on June 7, denies all allegations under the first count, including that Williams was her client.

"I became her lawyer later when she had a problem with animal control," Spadaro said during a phone interview.

The third count of the complaint alleges that Williams loaned Spadaro a total of $9,000 in a series of loans in August and September 2007, which Spadaro never repaid. According to the complaint, Spadaro provided no written agreement and offered no interest on the loan.

"There are specific rules an attorney has to comply with in order to make a business deal with a client and none of those formalities were followed by Ms. Spadaro," Joyce said.

In Spadaro's response, she denies or claims no recollection of most allegations stated in the third count, but she claims she has attempted to repay the loans.

"I tried to set up a payment plan with [Williams] a couple of times but she was not interested or approachable so I have not repaid her yet," Spadaro said. "I had tremendous legal fees still ongoing from the animal control matter that had come up against me. [That's] still ongoing. [That's the] reason why I have not been able to repay her yet."

Like the third count, the fourth and fifth counts of the complaint allege that Spadaro entered into a business transaction with a client without complying with the requirements that its terms were fair and reasonable. The fourth count alleges Spadaro accepted $5,000 from Williams for a 25-percent share of Foreclosure Co., a company Spadaro allegedly wanted to start to give legal assistance to individuals facing foreclosure. Spadaro never started the company.

The fifth count alleges Spadaro received $5,000 from Williams for an investment in a property in Redlands, but Spadaro did not use the money for the property and Williams was not provided with proper security or documentation. Williams was allegedly told she would receive $7,500 for the $5,000 investment.

Spadaro's response denies or claims incomplete recollection of most allegations under the fourth and fifth counts. Responding to the fifth count, Spadaro admits she did not repay Williams any portion of the $5,000, but she said she has attempted to begin a repayment plan but it was refused by Williams and her attorney Ann Cunningham.

Joyce said a trial will take place in the State Bar Court in September. The charges come months after Spadaro was sentenced to three years of probation in March following her conviction of an animal cruelty misdemeanor for keeping nearly 200 dogs and cats at a facility in San Bernardino County. Spadaro, who served on the Board of Education from 1979 to 1983 and the City Council from 1984 to 1988, represented herself in the case.

Board of Education to revote on tentative agreement with teachers union today

The Board of Education will vote a second time on the tentative agreement with the teachers union, Beverly Hills Education Association, at a special Board meeting at the district office today at 4:45 p.m., after the Board considers setting a policy capping K-3 classes at 20 students and hiring additional teachers to maintain a maximum class size of 20 students.

The revote comes about a week after the Board rejected the tentative agreement with BHEA 4-1 on June 28, due to concerns about class size and proposed changes to the academic calendar. Board member Steven Fenton voted to approve the contract.

Vice President Brian Goldberg said he did not support the tentative agreement because it could allow up to 22 students in K-3 classes. The district currently caps K-3 classes at 20 students.

"There's a way to salvage this agreement if we put our heads together and work together," Goldberg said. "If we can find a way to cap at 20 to one for 2011-12 and vote to hire teachers to accomplish that goal I could vote for the tentative agreement."

The tentative agreement states, "the district shall make every effort to maintain maximum K-3 class sizes of 20/1. However, should fiscal considerations make it necessary due to reductions in state aid, the district shall be given the flexibility to allow maximum K-3 homeroom class sizes of 22/1."

"Hiring enough teachers to keep class sizes at a lower level may be a way for the district to address the Board's concerns about the tentative agreement without having to change the language that has been tentatively agreed to," said Chris Bushée of BHEA.

Bushée said the Board's vote was disappointing after a year of negotiations. Sixty-seven percent of BHEA voters approved the agreement.

According to Bushée, other options were to renegotiate the agreement or walk away and make no changes to the contract for 2010-11.

"[During renegotiation] all items we're negotiating are open again for discussion, even items that the parties had reached consensus on earlier," Bushée said. "It's almost like a brand new negotiation."

Board member Myra Lurie expressed concern about proposed changes to the academic calendar, which would push the beginning of the school year up to mid-August. For students, the 2012-13 school year would begin Aug. 27 and end on June 13. For 2013-14, school would begin on Aug. 14 and end on May 29.

Assistant Superintendent of Human Resources Dawnalyn Murakawa-Leopard said the proposed calendar change was motivated by multiple factors.

"LAUSD is moving its calendar, which we believe will influence dates for summer programming in the area, but in addition, we've had longstanding concerns about the timing of AP exams and the need to adjust our calendar to help our students be more competitive on their AP exams," Murakawa-Leopard said.

Murakawa-Leopard added that after the two-year transition to the early start calendar, winter break will coincide with the end of the fall semester, which she said was also a motivating factor for the proposed calendar change.

Lurie was concerned that there would only be an eight-week summer between the 2012-13 and 2013-14 academic years.

"I felt that the calendar had some aspects of it that might be objectionable to our parents, and it would be better to have their input prior to finalizing the contract," Lurie said. "The short summer might be difficult for families to find time to go on vacation, especially considering many of our high school students take summer school and have a lot of reading to do for their classes in the fall, and other school related activities such as sports conditioning."

A number of parents spoke and sent letters to the Board expressing concerns about the academic calendar. El Rodeo PTA President Dana Young suggested polling parents on the topic and PTSA President Cindy Dubin suggested a more gradual transition to the mid-August start date.

"[Class size and calendar] were both items negotiated by the district that the district had interest in passing," Goldberg said. "[They were] not issues the union put on

Insider and very new

And once around town quickly

By Rudy Cole

Let's begin with some really good news: Beverly Hills may soon have an exciting, innovative movie theatre complex on the 200 block of North Canon Drive, and almost all within city codes and height limits.

Not yet formally submitted, but in the "talking" stage are plans for a most unique motion picture venue. Tentative plans call for nine separate theatres, fifty seats each, with state-of-the-art technology.

There will be high end food and beverage service, inside the theatre, seating comparable to first-class airplane size with pillows and blankets for those who want to have the experience of viewing in total comfort.

First unveiled in Scottsdale, Arizona, the developer is "I Pic" and the local architect is Hamid Gabbay.

Beverly Hills once had several world famous movie theatres, and was the city of choice for new film premieres, but not for several decades. Even the small complexes still in the city have been in danger of closing for many years. Considering our deep involvement in the industry, it was paradoxical that we had no really comfortable and prestigious movie theatres, now that could change in a small, but interesting way.

The plans call for a three-story structure, code compliant parking and first run motion pictures.

The location is on one of our most successful streets: Canon has seen a continuing upsurge in dining with almost no store vacancies. Within a two-block area, Beverly Hills will have a world class hotel—Montage Beverly Hills, Spago—the Wolfgang Puck eatery that helped change our image as a fine dining destination, several of the renowned Drago family owned restaurants, plus Bouchon, Xian, Caffe Roma and many others.

The Glendale, Arizona operators should be given the fast track—this is an exciting opportunity for our village that should be expedited—a view I am sure is shared by our highly professional planning staff.

Back to the drawing boards and other updates:

9900 Wilshire, the former Robinsons-May property: Officially, the city has not heard anything from the new, Hong Kong based owners in over six months. But their initial conversations with the city were to continue with the entitlements previously approved for Candy and Candy – upscale condominiums with limited retailing.

Gateway, Little Santa Monica: Delayed inexorably by the not-too-realistic Broad Modern Art Museum proposal, the stimulus should be to finally renovate and develop various, and three separate owners, plans that would hopefully remove and improve a neglected into-the-city entry.

Friars: On the north side of Little Santa Monica, there were almost no appeals for historic preservation when this venerable, entertainment industry club was sold and the building demolished. New owners, a Century City sports building developer, have had very tentative discussions with the city, but our sources say it will be designed by a "world famous" architect, and within height codes. Most important change: adequate parking. The Friar's when it had any kind of event, made intrusions into surrounding residential that was invasive and most always drew angry responses from neighbors.

Saks/Casden: Sources indicate that following decades of attempts to improve the parking lots next to two Saks properties with various condo plans, another attempt at compromise will soon be floated. Hopefully, this will come to some conclusion. Benefit: Removal of surface parking, reduction of pressure to demolish affordable housing and a different kind of condominium plan than is usually found in our city.

Lexus: Apparent win for the neighbors: The owners have reportedly presented revised plans to the Planning Department that will reduce the size to comply with height limits and, equally important, create a barrier to entry for service going north. The only access would be from Wilshire Boulevard—a key issue for residents.

7 Eleven: Could we have our first ever 7 Eleven in Beverly Hills? There are plans for one at 461 South Robertson, near Olympic Boulevard that have been presented to the city. This may not be an easy sell to the planning commission or city council.

Speaking of developments, the city and the owners of the property at 8767 Wilshire Boulevard are locked into a very costly, for both sides, lawsuit. The city denial of some medical uses is being challenged.

Without going into the merits of the lawsuit, anyone viewing the building created at the northeast corner of Wilshire and Robertson should be excited about how this attractive structure has improved one of the most challenging sections of Beverly Hills.

The real tragedy is the amounts of money this will cost everyone involved. Again, no judgment on who is right or wrong, and clearly cities seldom if ever lose these kinds of legal actions, but hopefully both sides can sit down and arrive at some workable compromise.

At issue is the city's action in denying medical uses of much of the building—and a city wide ordinance restricting medical. Historically, that medical rule was adopted, not for peripheral zones, but to limit medical inside the business triangle. This Robertson-Wilshire area has become a venue for all kinds of medical uses.

On a personal note, I have known the Kobor family, mainly father George and his active hands-on manager daughter Kathy both socially and professionally for several decades, although I now have no involvement in the project.

However, you would have a hard time finding more community conscious, ethical people than this family. Just one example: When one of our leading social service agencies faced a fiscal crisis, without hesitation they immediately cut a check. They absolutely insisted this be done without any kind of publicity and they probably will wince when they read this, but that is their culture and their sense of community.

They wanted their building to reflect their values and sense of pride, and it worked, even though it might have even been different without the compromises they worked out with nearby residents.

City lawyers are highly competent as are the Kobor attorneys, but just maybe calmer heads can prevail and the two sides can forget the rancor of the past and work this out by, yes, actually talking compromise.

When the 405 closes next weekend, will it have any serious impacts on Beverly Hills?

Yes and no. Our primary city government concern will be problems our emergency service staff people will have in arriving on time. Many use the 405 and alternate routes will be jammed. However, city staffers and our two first responder agencies have been working for weeks in anticipation of the problem closing.

Hard to tell what effect this will have on our economy, but we do have one suggestion: stay home and dine and shop in Beverly Hills. Maybe the many hotel restaurants will feature 405 specials. Breakfast: Best buffet in the west at the Beverly Hilton. Most comfortable, sophisticated dining: Peninsula. Varied and interesting changing menu: Blvd at the Beverly Wilshire and, of course, "Cut" Wolf Puck's steak eatery in the rear of the hotel. Most interesting new offerings are to be found at the Montage Beverly Hills, including the newly redesigned dining room now Scarpetta, the Lounge with great harp music during lunch hours and piano in the evening. Dining with a great view: on the roof top. Also, of course, Polo Lounge and comfortable pool side at the Beverly Hills.

Speaking of hotels, the Peninsula is doing a major renovation of the main building guest rooms, without too much interruption of service; all hotel occupancies are good, but our sources tell us the Beverly Hilton is setting records with a 90 percent recently.

Great reading: The recently released biography of our legendary Fred Hayman, the primary visionary for the creation of Rodeo Drive. Not only is this a faithful and honest account of his life from hotels to restaurants to Rodeo Drive innovator, it is a must read for insights into the life and times of our village.

the table. We didn't vote no on anything the union negotiated."

BHEA and BHUSD negotiate contract terms annually for the current academic year, or in this case, the year that has just been completed. The tentative agreement that was voted on was for 2010-11. Bushée explained that if there's agreement, certain terms could be implemented retroactively.

Beverly High to implement new attendance policy

A committee of Beverly High faculty and administrators presented the high school's new attendance policy to the Board of Education on June 28. The Board approved the policy with one revision, which was to limit college visits to three days per year, instead of per semester.

"The current policy hasn't been revised in over 10 years," said Beverly High math teacher Stephen Madaris, who was on the committee. "It lacked consistency and uniformity."

Madaris said the committee was comprised of representatives from every department and that it presented the new policy at a faculty meeting, consulted Assistant Superintendent of Educational Services Ilene Straus and Assistant Superintendent of Human Resources Dawnalyn Murakawa-Leopard, and welcomed feedback from PTSA presidents.

Madaris added, "The current policy is not used by every faculty member and there's a lot of discretion in the current policy and a lot of holes in it actually."

The attendance policy addresses nine categories of anticipated absences that fall outside excused absences outlined by California Education Code. The Beverly High committee proposed a policy that would require students to request approval for certain absences five days in advance and obtain signatures from teachers of all missed classes.

Under the new policy, students must submit written requests to attend funeral services for individuals outside of the immediate family; personal, individual religious celebrations or ceremonies; and college visits, among other reasons. The policy states, "Prior approval may be waived by the principal or designee only under exceptional, unanticipated circumstances." Family vacations and DMV appointments would not be excused under the policy.

President Lisa Korbatov asked if the committee thought there was a possibility that college visits could be abused. Principal Carter Paysinger responded that he anticipated that could be a problem, but that was partly the reason for addressing college visits in the policy.

"That's why we're asking it to be mandatory that teachers weigh in and counselors weigh in on that visit before [students go]," Paysinger said. "Counselors know where

Return to the negotiating table: An agreement, in principle, between the Beverly Hills Education Association (teacher's union) and the school district (see story on page 5).

What is incredible about this is the fact that the teacher's reached a compromise with the representatives of the district that did not have the approval of the board majority. Last week, the board voted four to one not to approve the agreement.

How did the administrative team come to accepting terms that were not preapproved, creating problems for the union? The union had agreed, giving up many contract points in order to complete the painful process only to find that the district's representatives were not authorized to make some procedural changes in the contract.

At stake were two separate problems:

Class size and school calendar. Vice President Brian Goldberg was most concerned about any increase in class size and member Myra Lurie objected to a change in the start of the school year without consultations with school parents.

Hopefully, many of the compromises worked out by the administration and the union will be retained and the contract quickly approved. However, there is something missing in a process that has the board staff representatives fronting an agreement that they were not prepared to approve.

President Lisa Korbatov, Vice President Goldberg and members Lurie and Jake Manaster voted against the tentative agreement and board member Steven Fenton was the lone vote in support.

Late breaking news: The Board will hold an emergency meeting tonight to reconsider and adopt a compromise.

Sad ending: Peggy Kaus, a longtime friend and role model for civic involvement, passed away Tuesday after a lengthy illness. When I wrote about her life and times recently, I was never able to tell Peggy how many expressions of fondness for her came from throughout the community. She was a class act and a wonderful citizen of Beverly Hills.

TRAVELS WITH IRMA

Delivering Beverly Hills Weekly is a tough job, but someone has to do it
By Melanie Anderson

WEDNESDAY JUNE 29, 2011

7:30 p.m. After a full day preparing the paper for publication, I send Gary, our graphic designer, an e-mail authorizing him to send Issue #613 of Beverly Hills Weekly off to press. On a typical Wednesday night, I would head home, have a bite to eat, and get some rest, but in a few hours, I'm headed to the Gardena Valley News to meet the distribution team that brings the paper to your doorstep.

11:30 p.m. The Weekly is still printing when I arrive at the Gardena Valley News printing facility. The stream of paper is a blur as the Weekly races through the press, which fills much of a high-ceilinged warehouse. I meet Carlos in the shop, who introduces me to Irma Gonzalez, who is prepping two vehicles for the night's delivery in Beverly Hills. Although the papers have not finished printing, Irma's mother "Irma Senior," Irma's brother Jonathan Gonzalez, Jonathan's fiancée Ashley Souza, and workers Fish and Pasqual are busily folding and rubber-banding newspapers and piling them in the white Ford E350 van. Workers grab bundles as they come off the press and get to work folding the papers into quarters.

I ask if I can help roll the papers, but Ashley discourages me because she says the ink would get all over my hands. She said the "blue" issues are the worst (The Weekly alternates a red and blue masthead each week). Ashley says that the paper is almost always ready when the team arrives at 11:30, but sometimes the machine jams, delaying the process.

11:45 p.m. I chat with Jonathan, who tells me about the family distribution business his late father Rene Gonzalez started as he continues to roll papers. "My father, he's been doing this—prior to getting the account in Beverly Hills—roughly 25, 30 years, so when we got the account it was pretty important," Jonathan says. "It's been a good, good while getting used to the route, but it all started with my dad. About three years ago he passed away, [so] it was kind of handed down to us. I've been doing this since I was about seven."

Jonathan explains that around age 15, he started regularly accompanying his father on the Beverly Hills route and got to know the business district and southern Beverly Hills very well. He taught his sister the route, which she now drives each week. Jonathan and Ashley deliver to the residential areas between Santa Monica and Sunset boulevards and the hillside areas.

"[The two routes are] totally different. One's well-lit, the other one's pitch dark. The northern part you think looks a little bit safer because it's residential, but it's really, really sketchy at night," Jonathan says with a laugh, and he and Ashley proceed to tell me about some of the unusual things they have seen on the route, including late-night parties, abandoned vehicles and accident scenes. They recently called the police about a mysterious man dressed in black from head to toe, who seemed to be following them.

12:05 a.m. Suddenly it is quiet, because the printing press has shut off. The papers have finished printing and moments later, a forklift is unloading thousands of copies directly behind the van and the Mitsubishi Montero. Within seven minutes, the workers have loaded the entire batch of papers into the two vehicles.

12:20 a.m. The two Irmas, Fish and Pasqual are off. I say goodbye to Jonathan and Ashley, who stay behind to continue rolling papers. Jonathan says he expects to be there until between 2 and 2:30 a.m., just rolling papers. He explains that his mother and sister don't need to roll all their papers before departing because they drop off stacks at businesses and continue to roll during the route. Once Ashley and Jonathan roll the entire batch, they are ready to go because their route involves tossing individual papers into driveways.

12:45 a.m. Our first stop is the La Cienega Park Community Center, where Irma drops off a stack, and Fish starts his walking route at Gregory Way and Tower Drive. Irma helps Fish pack as many papers as will fit in his pouch, which is slung over both of his shoulders, and she drops off stacks of papers on the corner of Gregory and Tower and Gregory and Gale Drive for Fish to pick up as he makes his way through the neighborhood. He has his own stash of rubber bands so he can roll the papers as he walks.

1 a.m. We drop Pasqual off in front of Aston Martin on South Robertson Boulevard, where he begins his delivery route on foot. At this point, there is now room in the van for me, so I climb in amidst a sea of rolled papers scattered throughout the back of the van. All the backseats have been removed, except for a side-facing seat directly behind the driver's seat, which Irma Senior clears off for me. This will be my perch for the entire route. Eric, the photographer, continues to follow us until he finds a place to leave his car without fear of a parking citation. Both Irmas tell us that Parking Enforcement is very aggressive overnight. Throughout the course of the night, we will cross paths with officers several times.

1:10 a.m. From Wilshire Boulevard, we head south on Wetherly Drive, where Irma begins flicking papers out the window and her mother continues rolling and rubber-banding papers. She drives on the opposite side of the street, hazard lights flashing, to get closer to the target driveways as she throws. The hazard lights remain on for the entire delivery.

Irma tells me her father taught her how to toss the papers, and she shows me how to hold a paper between her thumb and forefinger. She flicks her wrist and I watch as the paper lands squarely on a driveway. "The wrist does everything," she says. Sometimes she must toss papers in rapid succession to hit driveways that are close together. Throughout the route, there are only a few instances when we have to reverse to hit driveways that we skipped, or in one case when a paper deflected off the side mirror. When asked if she finds tossing tiring, Irma says she's used to it but, "If this was your first time throwing, you'd be sore tomorrow."

1:45 a.m. We head back to La Cienega Park to pick up Fish, who has finished his first walking route. As we're crossing Burton Way on Oakhurst Drive, Irma tells us she once saw a coyote wait to cross the street until the light changed. Less than five minutes later, a coyote trots toward us on Oakhurst at Alden Drive. We drop off Fish for his next walking route, and Irma tells him to be careful. Ten minutes later, we run into the coyote again at Burton and Oakhurst as we head toward Foothill Road.

2 a.m. Although I attempt to keep track of the route we're taking, it's a whirlwind and it feels like we're going around in circles. In some cases we are, as Irma tosses papers on one side of the street and flips a U-turn to hit driveways on the opposite side. She takes advantage of alleys, but one time we run into a dead end. The pace is nonstop, and Irma frequently calls out "Hold on!" as we turn corners, and several times she asks that we let her know if we feel like vomiting.

It amazes me when Irma says she learned this route, the same route her father followed for years, after just four or five weeks. "We've had mistakes here and there, but you learn," Irma says. "[Fish and Pasqual] help me because they were on the route with Dad all the time." Irma now knows the route by heart, pointing out a house on Alpine Drive and Burton Way that requested no delivery, as well as a house at Charleville and Camden that requests two papers so the husband and wife can each read their own copy. In addition to the south Beverly Hills residential neighborhoods, we deliver to City Hall and the businesses on South Beverly Drive, Rodeo Drive and the surrounding area.

3:30 a.m. Irma tells me that her father delivered Beverly Hills Weekly since roughly the paper's inception when he was working for CPS and he shared the route with another employee. It was a few years ago, not long before he was diagnosed with multiple myeloma, that he took on the Weekly account with his own company, Johnny Distribution. When he became ill, Irma says her father added "Adelante," which means to move forward, to the company name, Adelante Johnny Distribution, knowing Jonathan and his family would keep the business going. Irma Senior says she misses her husband, but enjoys having the opportunity to work with her children.

4:15 a.m. I ask Irma to tell me her favorite part about delivering papers. “No traffic,” she says without hesitation. “Imagine doing it with [traffic].” I realize that aside from the parking enforcement vehicles, we have seen very few cars on the road. “Sometimes we see more cops driving around,” Irma says.

I ask if she finds it peaceful being the only car on the road for so many hours. “That’s what I like, it’s nice and quiet. I’ve got so much on my mind, but it’s relaxing, and [I like the] fresh air,” Irma says. Both front windows remain open the entire night, for throwing purposes. She acknowledges how different the job is from a “regular job.” I learn that in addition to distribution—the family also regularly delivers advertisements on the weekends—Irma works full time as a cast member at Disneyland. She can’t say more, she says, because of Disney’s secrecy. Her brother Jonathan studies music at USC. He started his education at Yale, but he returned to Southern California to be closer to family when his father was ill. “We have to keep the memory of my dad alive,” Irma says.

4:25 a.m. Finally, a drop-off location that has a restroom. Irma expects the security guard at 211 Spalding to be asleep, but in fact he is alert and quite agitated at the sight of Eric’s camera. “No photos,” he calls out, but we just want to use the restroom.

4:30 a.m. We drop off a stack at Beverly High. Irma says they try to stick to the same route each week, but it all depends on when they get the paper. If it comes off the press late, Irma says they deliver to and around the school sites, Beverly Vista and Beverly High, earlier to avoid drop-off congestion. Since school is out for the summer, we don’t have to worry about that, but we still hit Beverly High hours before typical drop-off time.

Whenever we stop to roll or unload papers, Irma turns down the radio, set to 103.5 FM. She sings along to Dido and Natalie Imbruglia as she tosses papers out the window. Irma Senior said a resident once called the police on them to complain about the volume of the radio. I ask the two Irmas if we weren’t there, if they would chat more or turn up the music. “I turn up my music,” Irma says, but adds she and her mom talk as well.

5:40 a.m. Jonathan calls. He and Ashley have finished their route in the hills, and want to check in with us. I ask him if they spotted the mysterious man, but Jonathan had nothing unusual to report. It is now quite light outside as we deliver south of Olympic Boulevard, and the radio station has transitioned to its celebrity gossip morning show. We stop at Camden and Virginia to roll up the remaining papers. I can’t believe that the back of the van is empty.

6:10 a.m. This morning it’s quiet at a house on Spalding and Hillgreen, but Irma says the man who lives here often greets them and thanks them for delivering the paper. She comments that she knows how popular the Weekly is because she watches people steal it. She sees early-morning exercisers snatch papers from driveways as they pass by. Sometimes, she’ll offer them a copy from the van and ask them to replace the papers in the driveway. She has seen a woman pick up multiple copies in front of the businesses on Canon, and stash them in her purse.

Irma tosses the final paper out the window, and we head to Roxbury Park Community Center to pull a handful of papers from the stack we had dropped there earlier. She gives them to Pasqual so he can finish his route, since he has come up a bit short. Now, all we have to do is wait for Pasqual and Fish to finish delivering the last of the papers.

7:05 a.m. We’re back at Gregory Way and Le Doux Road, where we left the car. I’m grateful that I live close by because I’m more than ready to get some sleep, but Irma still has to drop off Pasqual and Fish in Los Angeles before heading home to Carson. Sometimes they don’t arrive home until 10 a.m. When I get home, my mind is racing as I think about the night’s experience, so I scribble down some notes before climbing into bed.

On Thursday mornings, a sense of relief always washes over me when I see copies of the Weekly in driveways as I walk to our office on South Beverly Drive. From now on, seeing those papers will remind me of the adventure I had with the hard-working Gonzalez family that cheerfully delivers the Weekly to Beverly Hills doorsteps week after week.

[students have] been accepted and teachers know whether a request is legitimate or not.”

Paysinger said Beverly High already had a process in place for college visits, but it was not written into policy. He said there has been no set limit to college visits in the past.

Board member Steven Fenton proposed limiting the number of college visits to three per year, instead of six. “It’s about choices [and] prioritizing,” Fenton said. “I don’t want the system to run amok because kids choose to be in AP courses, play sports, [attend] summer school, and go on trips. Something’s got to give.”

The Board determined that additional visits could be granted at the principal’s or designee’s discretion.

The policy also updates the penalty for unexcused absences, which is a 3 percent deduction from the semester grade for each absence. The policy provides that at a teacher’s discretion, students may have the opportunity to make up the penalty of one unexcused absence by completing five hours of community service or course related work. Madaris said under the past policy, five unexcused absences led to automatic failure in the missed classes.

The new policy also determines that each tardy counts as one-fifth of an unexcused absence, and a 0.6 percent semester grade deduction. If authorized by their teachers, students can make up tardies with one hour of work.

Board of Education approves 2011-12 budget with 4-1 vote

The Board of Education approved BHUSD’s 2011-12 budget on June 28 with a 4-1 vote.

Board member Myra Lurie voted no because the budget relied on the assumption that the Joint Powers Agreement with the City of Beverly Hills would remain at its current $10.3-million level for the next three years. The new JPA has not yet been negotiated, but at a previous meeting, the Board directed staff to factor $10.3 million into the budget for the JPA.

“The fiscal stability of BHUSD is evident by the in-depth assessments that have been conducted by rating agencies of late,” said Mary Anne McCabe, Executive Director of Budget and Food Services. “[We received the] best possible short-term debt rating by Standard & Poor’s. Moody’s affirmed the district’s AA+ rating. [We have a] positive certified budget [and the] district will meet all obligations in the current year, plus two subsequent years.”

McCabe called the $50-million budget she was presenting realistic, and explained that it was based on assumptions that included flat funding for property taxes in 2011-12 and 2012-13 and a 1 percent increase for 2013-14; flat funding for state revenue for the three-year period; and flat funding for local revenue including the JPA.

The budget also takes into account $620,000 raised by the One Campaign, maintaining a cap of 20 students in K-3 classes, the 8.92 percent fair share reduction, and Board-enacted staffing reductions, among other things.

McCabe said the budget does not account for possible district-wide furloughs, which were proposed by BHEA President Mark Frenn at a special Board meeting in May and could save the district up to $320,000. The furloughs have not yet been negotiated, but Chris Bushée of BHEA said the district and BHEA plan to discuss furloughs this summer.

Lurie said she was concerned that it appeared the district was deficit spending.

McCabe acknowledged that expenditures exceed revenue, but she said the budget was balanced. McCabe explained that the $620,000 from the One Campaign was accounted for in the 2010-11 budget, even though the expenditure will occur in 2011-12.

The budget shows 2011-12 expenditures exceed revenue by $491,000. Expenditures are projected to exceed revenue by $747,000 in 2012-13, and by $465,000 in 2013-14. The total reserve available for 2011-12, 2012-13, and 2013-14 are 8.1 percent, 7.3 percent and 6.4 percent respectively.

Lurie asked if the positions saved by the One Campaign were accounted for in the out-year budgets or if another One Campaign might be needed to maintain them.

“You have an adequate ending balance that could absorb those,” McCabe said. She said that anticipated natural attrition—faculty and staff retirements—was built into the out-year budgets, which she said are “fine-tuned” as the district receives more information. Goldberg pointed out that the out-year budgets are projections.

“To say we’re deficit spending in outlying [years] really isn’t accurate,” Goldberg said. “That’s a projection, not a passed budget by the Board.”

Goldberg added, “Given what’s going on around the state, this is a very impressive budget.”

McCabe said that because the State of California had not passed its budget prior to the June 28 meeting, the district would have 45 days to revise the budget after the state budget passed. Governor Jerry Brown signed the budget June 30.

Government efficiency task force aims to streamline building process

Willie Brien

At the City Council Installation Ceremony in March, Mayor Barry Brucker announced that Vice Mayor Willie Brien and Planning Commissioner Noah Furie would lead a government efficiency task force to work on improving the City’s building process for all participants.

The committee—consisting of Chair Brien, Vice Chair Furie, Planning Commission Vice Chair Craig Corman, former Planning Commissioners Kathy Reims and Jerry Felsenthal, Traffic and Parking Commissioner Howard Fisher, and Matt Construction President Steve Matt—met on June 14 to establish its working goals.

“We are working on ways to enhance and improve the processes in the city for our residents, for our businesses, for our staff and our commissions,” Brien said. “We’re looking at ways to basically bring metrics to the processes that we’re rolling out. We want to measure performance by getting feedback from stakeholders.”

The committee plans to meet with residents, businesses, contractors and architects who have gone through the process of building or remodeling in the City of Beverly Hills, and have had both positive and “challenging experiences,” Brien said. Brien said the committee will also look at best practices in other cities, to see what might work for Beverly Hills.

One goal of the committee is to improve services offered online, such as allowing for plan checks to be submitted electronically, as well as changes, which Brien said could eliminate hundreds of pages of a draft document and allow all staff members involved in the process to see updates in real time. The committee will also look at improving staff consistency, so that staff assigned to a project remain on that project throughout the process.

Brien said the committee has scheduled six meetings that will extend through mid-October, with the goal of coming up with a recommendation to the city council for updating the building process.

City staff supporting the committee are City Manager Jeff Kolin, Assistant City Manager Mahdi Aluzri, Director of Community Development Susan Healy Keene, Assistant Director of Community Development Jonathan Lait, and City Building Official George Chavez.

Brien wanted to be clear that the committee is not looking at issues related to the general plan, or looking to change requirements for

BHHS Runner Twice Sets School Records in State Meet

Beverly High senior Sydney Gray set two school records in the girls' 800 meters in two days at the state track championships June 3-4 at Buchanan High School in Clovis.

Gray won her heat June 3 and posted the fastest qualifying time, two minutes, 10.51 seconds, breaking the previous school record of 2:11.12 set last year by Raquel Hefflin.

Gray was last at the end of the first lap, moved even with leader Katie Fry of Exeter with about 250 meters to go, and took the lead about 10-20 meters before the finish. She finished .13 ahead of Fry.

Like she did after winning the Southern Section Division 2 championship, Gray praised Norman coach Jeff Fisher.

The Beverly Hills Active Adult Club recognized two 2011 Beverly High graduates for their high level of scholarship, strong character and involvement in extracurricular activities at its June 20 meeting at Roxbury Park Community Center. Nicole Star earned the Dr. Ruben Cordova memorial award and Rachel Levi earned the Bill Berg memorial award.

"He's given me the confidence that I can take the lead in those situations," Gray said. "He's trained me enough to trust myself that I have enough strength and skill to be able to do that."

Gray finished fourth in the final June 4 in 2:09.15, .04 behind the third-place finisher, Charlotte Kuzminsky of San Diego Canyon Crest Academy.

Gray was also last in the nine-runner field at the end of the first lap, which she ran in 1:03.916.

"The whole group went out really fast," said Gray. Amy Weissenbach of Studio City

Harvard-Westlake, the eventual winner in a national-record time of 2:02.04 was timed in 57.834 seconds for the first 400 meters.

Gray said that about 300 meters from the finish, "I started catching more and more people."

Gray said she felt "incredible" about her fourth-place finish.

"At the beginning of the season if you asked me if I thought I was going to state, I'd be honest and say no," Gray said. "I'm just grateful with all my hard work I was able to do that."

THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A HEARING on the petition will be held on July 14, 2011 at 8:30 AM in Dept. No. 5 located at 111 N. Hill St., Los Angeles, CA 90012.

IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the deceased, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within four months from the date of first issuance of letters as provided in Probate Code section 9100. The time for filing claims will not expire before four months from the hearing date noticed above.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

What? New Tax Laws Again?

Ask for our complimentary, concise, easy to understand summary of federal estate tax changes.

Call about your insurance needs
310.277.9400

Tax Change Checklist: What about my life insurance?

New tax laws are on the books. And they pose a challenge to seniors and anyone who already owns at least $500,000 in life insurance.

Is this you? Ask yourself:

- Do I still need or want the life insurance I bought before the laws changed?
- If not, is there a smart way to sell it for more than its cash surrender value?
- Is my existing coverage still the best way to accomplish my estate planning goals?

Opportunity is knocking. Let it in!

New tax laws are creating opportunities and new uses for life insurance! Like the "gift windfall" letting you pass millions more to your loved ones. Couples now can gift up to $8 million more than last year – without gift taxes!

And life insurance can help you legally leverage – in effect, multiply – that amount much higher in many ways. Our creative planning can allow you to use new gifting opportunities to help pay future insurance premiums and get the most out of trusts and other financial agreements critical to your family's security

Isn't that what life insurance should be all about...security? Take action before the laws change again!

Big new breaks are out there waiting for you. Some are even retroactive to January 2010. Lawmakers had you in mind when they updated the tax code.

TAKE ADVANTAGE!

Consult your professional financial, tax and legal counsel. Then... Call Alan Kaye at 310.277.9400 about your life insurance needs
