Goldberg elected Board of Education president; Hall, Margo join the Board

Brian Goldberg was elected president, Jake Manaster was elected vice president, and new members Lewis Hall and Noah Margo were sworn in Tuesday afternoon at the Board of Education organizational meeting in the Salter Theatre. Outgoing members Steven Fenton and Myra Lurie, who did not run for re-election, concluded their service.

Goldberg outlined 12 priorities for the BHUSD after being sworn in by Fenton as president, including bringing continuity and stability to the district office, hiring a director of college admissions, and bringing a "successful conclusion" to the Metro subway issue, "even if that means stopping the subway to the sea."

"I look forward to working with my colleagues on these [issues] and many others facing the district [so we can] continue to move from good to great to the best," Goldberg said.

Before passing the gavel to Goldberg, Lisa Korbatov, who has two years left of her term, reflected on her year as president, and the accomplishments of the board majority over the last two years.

"The very essence of leadership is that you have to have a vision," Korbatov said. "You can't blow an uncertain trumpet. I'm certain for the last two years, this board and board majority always stayed the course. I agree with Steven Fenton that urgency was a great motivating force for both of us. He gave me the baton and I understood how much ground this district recovered in his year [as president]."

In an emotional speech, Fenton individually recognized many members of the BHUSD community who inspired and supported him over the years, including retired Superintendents Dick Douglas and Jerry Gross, and Beverly Hills Weekly publisher Josh Gross.

"Thank you, Josh Gross for 'bleeding Beverly' like no other person I know and for supporting me through some very, very dark days," Fenton said. "You are the curator of our school district and the biggest cheerleader we've ever had."

Fenton said two men, Beverly High Principal Carter Paysinger and his father, former Board of Education member and mayor Frank Fenton, were responsible for him serving on the school board.

"I have never stopped learning from you," Fenton said to Paysinger. "At 14, you helped shape my character; at 40 you taught me what it means to persevere with class and dignity. Your legacy in the community was set as you received every accolade imaginable, only for your reputation to be annihilated overnight because one of your former players, me, had the idea to make you principal. I honestly don't know if it was the color of your skin or my last name, or both, but you took the beating of a lifetime from the community. Not only did you stay, you thrived and in your first year as principal, you delivered the highest API scores in our history. You are principal of our school because everyone looks up to you."

Lurie thanked the community for its support.

"I want to thank this community for placing faith in me," Lurie said. "I'm enormously proud of much of the work we've done together on this board and former boards with whom I have proudly served."

Margo focused his remarks on thanking those who supported him during his write-in campaign.

"Thank you all for supporting me and for believing in a write-in campaign, which I would have to thank our mayor [Barry Brucker] for the inspiration in trying to pull one of those off," Margo said.

Brucker was on hand to swear in Hall.

"Making this district the No. 1 in the country is a good idea," Hall said. "It might take some time, but it shouldn't be too difficult as we have the resources and we have smart kids, but having a good idea is not enough; it requires a commitment to make learning personal for every student, and having a great leadership team. Working together with our teachers, our parents and our community, we can accomplish this goal."

City Council rejects Roxbury Park bids; proposes community meeting for January

As anticipated, the City Council voted unanimously Tuesday night to reject bids for the construction of a new community center at Roxbury Park and demolition of the existing community center.

Mayor Barry Brucker recommended scheduling a community meeting for January, and for liaisons Vice Mayor Willie Brien and Councilmember Julian Gold to work with the Recreation and Parks Commission to revise the project. The date of the community meeting is to be determined.

Based on the lowest bid of approximately $14.4 million, City staff recommended rejecting all three bids that were received because the project would total approximately $16.8 million with the addition of contingencies and administrative costs. The City budgeted $14.65 million in its capital improvement budget for the construction of a new two-story, 26,000-square-foot community center and demolition of the existing structure.

Former Mayor Annabelle Heiferman passes

Annabelle Heiferman

Former Mayor Annabelle Heiferman, who served on the Beverly Hills City Council from 1982 to 1986, passed away this past Saturday in Rancho Santa Fe. Heiferman also served as president of the Senior Adult Association. Heiferman's daughter Dana Tomarken served on the Board of Education from 1985 to 1993. Heiferman's funeral will take place on Sunday at Hillside Memorial Park at 10 a.m.

Las Virgenes promotes Stepenosky to Deputy Superintendent

Dan Stepenosky

The Las Virgenes Unified School District Board of Education voted Tuesday night to promote former Beverly High principal Dan Stepenosky to Deputy Superintendent. He is expected to become superintendent beginning in August 2012.

"I'm honored and humbled with the promotion to Deputy Superintendent," Stepenosky said. "LVUSD, like BHUSD, is a district dedicated to the success of all of their children. Both districts have wonderful programs, coupled with strong leadership and community and parent support. I'm very proud of the relationships we have built here and the serious [budget] challenges we have worked collaboratively [to] address together.”

LVUSD includes Calabasas, Agoura Hills, Hidden Hills and part of Westlake Village.

Stepenosky started out as a physics and astronomy teacher at Beverly High in 1995. He became assistant principal in 2001 and principal in 2003. Stepenosky has served as LVUSD’s assistant superintendent of personnel since leaving Beverly High in 2006.

Library chooses renovation over reinstating hours

The City Council voted 4-1 to award a $3.2 million contract to W.E. O’Neil Construction, Inc. for renovations of 16,585 square feet of the Beverly Hills Public Library that will focus on the children’s area, the teen zone and the lobby. Councilmember

John Mirisch voted no, because of the significant cost and his feeling that the library is not in great need of renovation.

Though the library was last renovated in the 1990s, Assistant Director of Community Services Nancy Hunt-Coffey said the library’s current configuration is not conducive to integrating modern technology, and the library still has shortcomings in terms of lighting, lack of comfortable seating and study tables, and large monolithic staff desks that take up space and are incompatible with the library’s current staffing levels. Since the library has reduced staff by the equivalent of 18 full-time positions, Hunt-Coffey said more self-service technology will be installed.

According to Associate Project Manager Donielle Kahikina, the total cost of the project, which is part of the 2011–2012 Capital Improvement Project (CIP) budget and funded entirely by capital assets, is $4.52 million, including a $320,500 contingency, and $994,500 for additional costs including construction administration and furniture, fixtures and equipment.

Hunt-Coffey said the children’s area will undergo the most significant renovations. One priority is relocating the restrooms, which are currently not ADA-compliant, to an area directly behind staff desks and next to staff offices, giving staff members a clear view of who is coming in and out of the restrooms. Hunt-Coffey said parents have expressed concern that existing restrooms are out of staff’s sight. The new restrooms will include a family restroom.

The children’s area will have separate areas for quiet reading and active learning. An enchanted woods room has been proposed to house the library’s fairytale and rare children’s books collection. Though the bid included furniture and wallpaper for the enchanted woods room, the Friends of the Beverly Hills Public Library plans to raise funds for higher quality furniture and perhaps original artwork. The large room in the back of the children’s area will feature technology in the center of the room and more seating and areas for collaboration.

According to the staff report, construction is expected to begin in February 2012 and last for one year. Hunt-Coffey said the City had not yet met with the contractors to go over details of the construction schedule because the contract had not yet been approved. Prior to the contract, she said she had expected renovations to take 18 months.

During the renovation of the children’s area, the children’s collection will be relocated in the auditorium and two meeting rooms upstairs. Hunt-Coffey said she expected access to the children’s collection to be disrupted only on Feb. 4 and 5, 2012, the dates slated for moving the collection upstairs.

The teen zone, which will be 1,169 square feet, will be relocated to an area currently housing staff offices to accommodate the high demand of the existing teen area, which is about 500 square feet. There will be two rooms in the teen zone, one for quiet study and another for collaborative purposes.

Though Thursday night hours were recently restored to 8 p.m., library hours have not been restored to 9 p.m., the closing time on weeknights prior to July 2009.

“Under the current economic climate I don’t see us restoring the hours until 9 o’clock,” Hunt-Coffey said.

Hunt-Coffey said if additional funding becomes available, it may be possible in the future for the teen zone, which will be located adjacent to an emergency exit, to remain open past 8 p.m. to accommodate students who want to study.

“I understand most of these renovations are affecting the kids’ zone,” Mirisch said. “I will note that I’m at present the only councilmember who actually has a small kid and who takes his child and makes use of our library, but I do have an issue with the cost. I think to simply use our children and to say we must provide them with the best of the best and not look at whether we’re getting value for money is not actually teaching our kids a good lesson.”

Councilmember Lili Bosse said she spent hours reviewing the bid and plans for the

Highlights brings home awards from national high school journalism conference

Fourteen Highlights staff members, along with Highlights co-advisor Gaby Herbst and Watchtower yearbook advisor Malia Frutschy, traveled to Minneapolis, Minn. for the National High School Journalism Conference hosted by the National Scholastic Press Association and the Journalism Education Association between Nov. 17 and 20.

Five Beverly High students earned recognition for their performance in various on-site, write-off competitions. Senior Mallika Sen earned a superior ranking for news editing/headline writing, senior Austin Grant-Dixon earned honorable mention for editorial writing, junior Ben Hannani earned honorable mention for feature writing, sophomore Sasha Park earned honorable mention for editorial cartooning, and senior Vincent Brock earned honorable mention in the photo portrait category. The Nov. 15 issue of Highlights placed seventh in the Best in Show category for papers 9 to 12 pages long.

"In terms of the bid process, I take that really seriously and I went through each item line by line," Bosse said. "I can tell you from my own perspective, I need to be able to live with this decision. I feel 100 percent comfortable and confident if we do go forward, this was the right decision in terms of our money. To me, [the library is the] foundation of who we are."

Mayor Barry Brucker, Vice Mayor Willie Brien and Councilmember Julian Gold expressed similar sentiments.

"Of all the dollars we will spend in this year I think I will probably be most comfortable spending the money on this project because I think this in the end will have the greatest returns," Gold said.

A number of residents addressed the council with concerns about the cost and scope of the project, and questioned whether renovating the library should be a priority at this time.

"I'm concerned we're putting want ahead of need," Alma Ordaz said.

Ordaz said she is a strong supporter of the library, but she said it seemed strange to be talking about renovation one year after it was announced the library would close over the holidays for budgetary reasons.

Brucker pointed out that CIP funds cannot be used to fund staff salaries.

"I think that the renovations at the library for the most part are focused in two areas," Hunt-Coffey said. "The first is to provide even better customer service. The second goal is really to try to deal with the cuts to the library budget that have happened over the last couple of years."

Public parking at Horace Mann may be tough sell to parents

Councilmember John Mirisch addressed parents' questions and concerns at the Dec. 1 Horace Mann PTA meeting about the City's idea of including public parking—at the City's expense—in the school's proposed parking structure.

Deputy City Manager David Lightner also attended the meeting, but did not speak.

Mirisch and Lightner first proposed the idea at the Board of Education's Nov. 9 study session about construction and modernization plans for the Horace Mann campus. On Nov. 22, the board approved plans that will include constructing a 62,000-square-foot, two-story building on the corner of Robertson and Charleville boulevards that will house the middle school, library and a new multipurpose room among other things. The Board approved 100 subterranean parking spaces for the school's own use that will be located under the proposed building and the turf playing field, along Robertson Boulevard.

Mirisch, who chairs a City task force focused on revitalizing southeast Beverly Hills, said the City does not have formal plans, but Mirisch said the City could consider acquiring the property across the street on the northwest corner of Robertson and Charleville boulevards at 195 South Robertson, to provide a separate entrance and exit for the public to a lower level of the parking structure. This option could also include retail space on the ground floor, one or two levels of parking above ground, and offer in lieu parking that the City could lease to businesses that do not have on-site parking, Mirisch said.

Mirisch said public parking could be pursued at this site even without school involvement, because the City could encroach only under Robertson Boulevard. If it made sense, Mirisch said, the City could also encroach under Horace Mann's footprint, with the school's permission and cooperation.

According to the Los Angeles County Assessor's office, the 195 South Robertson property is owned by Ohr Haemet, Inc. and is currently valued at $1.4 million. Rabbi David Akhazadeh of Ohr Haemet Institute identified himself as the representative of the property owner. He said he was not aware of the PTA meeting or the City's idea to acquire the land for public parking. Akhazadeh said he had no reaction because, "It's all news to me."

Mirisch, whose son will begin attending Horace Mann next fall, said providing public parking on Robertson would help attract new restaurants and retail to the street, which in turn would likely increase property values, ultimately benefiting the school district.

"This is one part of town where we have the opportunity to do something that is going to make our quality of life better," Mirisch said.

The meeting became lively at times as parents expressed concerns about potential security issues, increase in traffic, exposure to fumes, and having a commercial venture at the school.

"I think the school is sacred and I would just like to keep it as a school," Horace Mann parent Tina Wiener said.

Wiener said she recalled a proposal several years ago to make a section of school property on Robertson Boulevard a commercial property.

"Several parents said this is not an appropriate use for all the same reasons I think people are bringing up today," Wiener said. "That was taken off the table at the time. I think parents felt like we were safe, like the school was sacred and was safe. I'm surprised it's coming back again after that."

Mirisch said he was not on the council at the time, but he opposed the proposal, which he said was for commercial storefronts on Robertson Boulevard and considered that very different from the idea of public parking at Horace Mann.

Horace Mann parent Isabel Hacker questioned the decision to build underground parking at the school, citing the school district's safety concerns about Metro tunneling under Beverly High and the possibility of earthquake faults under Horace Mann.

"We would not be having this conversation if we had not agreed to 100 spaces underneath to begin with," said Hacker, who asked if there was a possibility of the school and the City cooperating to purchase the property across the street and locating the parking structure completely offsite.

Board of Education President Brian Goldberg explained the bond fund does not cover the purchase of additional land. In a phone call Tuesday, Mirisch said perhaps the City and the BHUSD could find another way to cooperate to construct offsite parking for Horace Mann and the City.

"In order to do what we're doing on campus and maximize space we decided to go underground one level," said Goldberg, who mentioned that following construction, playground area will increase by 10,000 square feet.

Goldberg also pointed out that as part of the BHUSD's Joint Powers Agreement with the City, members of the public will have access to the proposed parking structure after school hours in order to use designated facilities.

In a phone interview last month, Superintendent Gary Woods said the school district will have to mitigate a soil contaminant that has been identified in the area in which the new school building and underground parking are proposed. Woods said the source of the contaminant and how deep the district will need to dig to mitigate the site is under review.

"As a parent who will have a child at the school, I want to be sure our schoolchildren will have no exposure to any toxic chemicals or contaminants whatsoever," Mirisch said in a phone call Tuesday. "We need to err on the side of safety."

If the school district needs to dig deeper than planned in order to mitigate the contaminated soil, Mirisch said, "We might as well see if cooperation is possible to benefit the entire neighborhood."

Lightner said the next step would be for City staff to evaluate the feasibility of possible configurations and locations of public parking.

When asked how it would be possible to add parking if Horace Mann's plans have already been submitted to the Division of the State Architect, Lightner responded, "We don't want to slow the district down at all on their own plans. Even though there are plans, they're still in the development phase and this could be a further development of that."

Regardless of what happens with the Horace Mann parking structure, Mirisch said he and the Southeast Task Force would continue to look for parking solutions on Robertson Boulevard as well as on Olympic and east Wilshire boulevards.

Mirisch told Horace Mann parents he would come to the PTA first with any additional information or proposal.

Following the Nov. 9 study session, Horace Mann PTA President Howard Goldstein said the PTA had planned to vote on a resolution outlining concerns about the idea, but it was tabled to allow Mirisch and Lightner the opportunity to speak. Goldstein, who also serves on the Southeast Task Force, said the Horace Mann PTA executive board would discuss the matter on Monday.

"I appreciate the fact [Mirisch] made himself available to the community, [which] had the opportunity to hear from him directly," said Goldstein.

Police, City accord

And schools and people

By Rudy Cole

Although both the city and the police association are being very secretive on specifics, reliable sources have informed us that an agreement has been reached on a new contract, following weeks of negotiations.

Apparently association members have approved a compromise, despite not achieving all their goals. The exact wording of the new contract is now up to lawyers on both sides, followed by the city council ratification.

Congratulations to the association leadership for putting public safety first. The police have had some outstanding leadership throughout their history including the current team led by President Terry Nutall. Interesting juxtaposition of roles: Sgt. Nutall's primary assignment in the department? Recruitment.

Other associations, really unions, have been watching the police talks and contract terms with considerable interest. The agreements with the cops will probably mean similar contracts with the firefighters and other employee organizations.

Councilmembers did hear from many community leaders who supported a responsible completion of the lengthy talks.

The school board held its "organizational" meeting Tuesday afternoon, bidding farewell to retiring board members Myra Lurie and Steven Fenton, inducting new members Lewis Hall and Noah Margo and installing Dr. Brian David Goldberg as president and Jake Manaster as vice president.

Although traditionally held in the evening, this year's afternoon ceremonies, changed to accommodate some scheduling issues of President Lisa Korbatov, had a moderate sized turnout.

Lurie did not leave quietly. She raised serious questions relating to the use of school bond funds to pay for lawyers and lobbyists on the subway route process.

Did have a chance to catch up with former board member Gerald Lunn Jr., who, with former mayor Nancy Krasne, swore in Goldberg. Lunn said one of the "biggest mistakes" the district ever made was losing Supt. Sol Levine. It took all these years to discover we were in total agreement, at least on this issue.

***

Spotted former school board president Lillian Raffel and hubby Stuart "jogging" past city hall Monday. Significance? Stuart may well be the poster boy for a successful hip replacement operation which he only recently underwent. He looks good, walks without pain and is his usual cheerful self.

However, both were wearing very bright red sweatshirts, a notice to car drivers to

Assemblyman Mike Feuer gave an informative outline of state government problems Wednesday at a luncheon hosted by the Economic Development Committee of the Beverly Hills Chamber of Commerce.

Although Feuer will soon be "termed out" he is remaining in the political world by preparing a campaign for Los Angeles City Attorney, not to be confused with Los Angeles County District Attorney.

A series of "Thanks Mike" events will be held in Beverly Hills, the first likely to be hosted by Bahador Mahboubi. Although his district extends to large portions of the Westside and the valley, Feuer has been very attentive to our needs in the legislature on everything from education to public safety.

He is one of the best arguments against term limits.

Advance notice, or warning. This column will once again attempt to list the "Best in Beverly Hills," first with local eateries.

So, we welcome your nominations. Send us your vote for best places to dine in all possible categories including cuisine, service and ambiance. Each suggestion will be mentioned. (See below for email address.)

Our restaurant options have gone through enormous changes and expansion in the past few decades. For many years, we could only point to four or five as really world class, including Romanoff's, Bistro and Bistro Garden, the old La Scala, the Brown Derby and those in our major hotels. On our borders were Scandia, Chasen's and, of course, La Cienega's restaurant row.

Now, we probably have more Italian dining options per capita than Rome, and Canon Drive and South Beverly Drive are the new La Cienegas. Clearly, Spago and the even earlier The Grille on the Alley helped start the movement for excellence and Nat h' Al's still keeps us in chicken soup and brisket.

What are your favorite delis, fast foods, French, hotel, steak houses and even coffee venues? The column needs your help.

Now, everyone is a journalist. From Facebook, Twitter, assorted blogs and even mass email distribution, the options for opinion molding are massive but quite different in terms of responsibility and balance.

Send us a letter disagreeing or approving and unless it is libelous or only mean spirited, it will, in all likelihood, be published. This is not always true with the new, very personal electronic tools.

A recent mass email regarding Roxbury Park may be a good example of the questions of balance. One writer demanded to know why the city council was not "listening" to what the author insisted was a clear majority view—no major improvements.

The questions on how to move forward on renovating Roxbury do not lend themselves to simplistic solutions. The council and staff are trying hard to balance the interest of nearby residents, many of whom, but not all, oppose any increases in usage that impair their desire to have park proximity without intrusions of quiet enjoyment of their homes.

However, Roxbury was never intended as a passive venue. It is home to an enormous range of community needs—everything from youth sports, senior programs and, in recent years, tennis, basketball, lawn bowling and croquet.

Clearly, the park needs modernization.

Roxbury, and the less contentious La Cienega, uses are for the whole community, not just neighbors. That does not in any way mean those living nearby either should be ignored.

Back to the question of "listening" to the majority opinions. First, it is hardly certain that a "majority" of residents throughout the city oppose the improvements now on the table, although it is a work in progress.

But elective bodies were not given responsibility only to always heed the "majority." That is not, my emailing friend, how democracy works. We have a representative form of government and it does include the need, no the importance, of doing what is right, frequently avoiding caving in to electoral mood swings.

To slightly exaggerate the process, the first impacts of the McCarthy witch hunts probably did have "majority" support only to be defused as extremism became obvious to most fair minded Americans. What of the Hamas in Gaza, is their turn to terrorism acceptable because they "won" an election? It may even be argued that both Stalin and Hitler had "majorities" for their heinous programs.

We could, as anarchists once argued, do away with government, hold mass meetings and make decisions only by popular vote. It might even be possible to simply submit questions to an electronic vote and abolish elective office.

No, we thrive as a democracy despite often and obvious failures, because we have a democratic system of electing decision makers, hopefully immune to temporal passions and extremes. In other words, however imperfect, we entrust our council to balance all of the ingredients of community needs and not simply react to the most strident voices.

There are remedies, and they are called elections.

There were some misstatements of facts in some of the anti-improvement message senders emails. One claimed that in recent ballot measures, the council decisions were overturned by referenda or initiative. Not at all accurate.

Efforts to set aside approval of both the Montage Beverly Hills and the Beverly Hilton plans were rejected by the voters, and council actions supported.

As for the earlier Four Seasons ballot measure, it was placed on the ballot in 1984, not by circulating of petitions, but by city council action.

Roxbury neighbors have a very legitimate right to be at the table when the too lengthy process is finally brought forward, but so does the rest of the community. Then the council will decide. As for "threats" of a popular vote, of course all part of the process but not a reason or argument for aborting the democratic method of elective responsibility.

An historical perspective: Some years back when I had the real pleasure of serving as chair of the Recreation and Parks Commission, a very serious movement was launched to end the Affaire in the Garden semi-annual art program on Beverly Gardens Park.

That park was created as a "passive" park and the art show was probably the only activity that made the park totally active, at least on twice yearly weekends.

Some of the neighbors did object to the noise and traffic the show brought to the north of Santa Monica area and demanded that it either be moved to another site or, at the very least, held only once a year.

We held public hearings and guess what? Not only did the community speak out to bolster what this event means for all of Beverly Hills, but many nearby homeowners also came to voice their support.

City staff made visits to every neighbor to address improved traffic control and the process worked. The Affaire in the Garden continues today because responsible voices understood its value to our cultural resources.

No question, Roxbury has to be renovated and improved, although not every single or new activity will survive the decision making process. Again, residents living near the park need to be heard, but so does the rest of the community. This park belongs to all of us.

Sad passings: Two of our most appreciated community leaders, though in different worlds, passed recently: Marcie Greenberg and Debbie Grossman.

Marcie was charming, lovely and worked her incredible talents on behalf of the organized Jewish community and in her city. Never flappable, always rational and fair, she provided a steady hand in the Federation and our city. I will remember her for her leadership in making the Jewish Journal an independent voice and not just an in-house tool when it was first founded.

Mrs. Grossman was an accomplished musician who used her considerable skills to organize the Beverly Hills Symphony. The orchestra had a long run of contributing to our cultural resources, but Debbie also cared about her community and was a true activist.

Both will be missed.

State Bar Court finds Spadaro culpable of misconduct; recommends suspension

Charlotte Spadaro

Former Mayor Charlotte Spadaro plans to appeal the State Bar Court's decision finding Spadaro culpable of five out of six charges of misconduct related to one client matter.

Following a trial on Sept. 14 and 15, the court recommended Spadaro "be suspended from the practice of law for one year, that execution of suspension be stayed, that she be placed on probation for three years and that she be actually suspended for six months," and pay back $16,500 plus interest to Phyllis Williams. The Weekly last covered the case in Issue #614.

Spadaro was not found culpable of a sixth count alleging moral turpitude, because the Court found "no clear and convincing evidence that respondent willfully committed an act involving moral turpitude, dishonesty or corruption."

Spadaro, who represented herself in the case, has not yet filed the appeal, but she said she is working on it. Spadaro maintains that Williams was never her client.

According to the complaint filed against Spadaro, Spadaro allegedly failed to repay Williams unused advance attorney fees and a series of loans and investments totaling $26,500, and failed to avoid interests adverse to a client.

"That was loan money so that I could take care of a very large number of animals. She's an animal lover as well," Spadaro said. "I never represented her in any way, shape or form. There was never an agreement for me to represent her."

Deputy Trial Counsel Erin Joyce represented the State Bar in the matter.

"[Spadaro] admitted all loans were unsecured without interest," Joyce said. "Her only defense was, '[Williams] was not my client.' The judge did not buy that because the woman was her client, and the woman didn't even know [Spadaro] until she got bailed out of jail by that attorney. The client was looking for a lawyer because she had just been arrested."

According to Joyce, Williams was arrested for an animal abuse charge related to a kennel that was operating without required licensing.

"Within a few days of Ms. Williams giving [Spadaro] a $7,500 check for legal fees, Charlotte Spadaro started hitting up the client for loans knowing that Phyllis Williams [was] an animal rescuer. [Spadaro told her] in order to feed [my] animals, I need this money," Joyce told the Weekly in June.

According to Joyce, the State Bar's recommendation of discipline must be reviewed by the California State Supreme Court, but final review will not take place until after consideration of an appeal. Spadaro filed a motion for reconsideration but the motion was denied last week. Spadaro's motion to disqualify Judge Richard A. Platel, which was filed after the trial, was also denied.

Spadaro said she offered a repayment plan to Williams and her attorney Ann Cunningham, but it was declined.

"I offered her a certain amount to start with and I was going to make payments but they refused," Spadaro said. "I think the reason is the attorney suggested to her that she go to the State Bar so she could perhaps get the entire amount."

Spadaro said she was sorry it happened. "I'm sorry that [Williams] got the advice that she did to do what she did. She did help me and I did appreciate it," Spadaro said.

In March, Spadaro was sentenced to three years of probation for her conviction of an animal cruelty misdemeanor for keeping nearly 200 dogs and cats at a facility in San Bernardino County. Spadaro, who served on the Board of Education from 1979 to 1983 and the City Council from 1984 to 1988, represented herself in the case.

Joyce said Tuesday that additional disciplinary charges, unrelated to the Williams case, have been filed against Spadaro in the State Bar Court. Joyce said the trial date will be set at a hearing in January.

Traffic & Parking Commission recommends headsets for open-air tour buses

Beverly Hills residents that have been subject to tour bus loudspeaker broadcasts while inside their homes may soon have some relief.

The Traffic & Parking Commission voted unanimously Nov. 3 to recommend the City Council adopt an ordinance requiring open-air tour buses to install headsets. Commission Chair Jeff Levine called the recommendation a no-brainer.

"The impetus was the concern by the residential community with the noise created by the loudspeaker system coming from the tour buses as they're cruising through residential areas," Levine said.

Levine said the plan is to first apply the ordinance to residential areas and then possibly expand to commercial areas.

The matter has not yet been scheduled for the City Council's consideration.

Philip Ferentinos, director of Starline Tours, said the company installed headsets in its open-air vehicles that cruise through residential neighborhoods about two years ago. Ferentinos said Starline's covered vans also go through Beverly Hills, as well as double-decker buses, which are not yet equipped with headsets because they drive only through non-residential areas.

TAKING CHARGE

New Board of Education President Brian Goldberg on the new board, technology and USC football

By Melanie Anderson

What do you think will be the strengths and weaknesses of the new board?

I think one of the strengths will be continuity and the fact that we have three board members returning to this board. Particularly with a brand new superintendent, having that history and that continuity I think will be beneficial. I also think having two new board members that haven't been part of some of the major personality battles that have taken place on the school board will also be helpful in moving the district forward.

What about weaknesses?

I think that not having Steven Fenton there is going to be a real weakness for the board. I think that Steven's contributions haven't always been as recognized by the community; the role that he played is really helping move this district forward. I know on a personal level I'm really going to miss having Steven sitting up there next to me on the dais.

Specifically, what issues do you want to tackle as board president?

I think first and foremost I want us to make sure that the cultural change that is taking place in the district continues to take root, and what I mean by that [is] a culture that encourages transparency, accountability and oversight of the district. That is something that I want to see us continue and deepen during my tenure as president.

On a more specific [level], technology integration K-12 is a very important goal of mine; it has been for quite some time. I'd also like to see us finally do zero based budgeting for the district, and I would like to see us hire a director of college admissions for the district. If we're serious about increasing the number of and type of colleges that our students get into, we need to refocus and prioritize dollars on our college admissions program. I think that the reorganization of the counseling department [and designating a college counselor] was a good first step but we need to do more, and if we're going to compete with top private schools in the area and top performing public schools across the state, we need to have a director of college admissions.

How do you plan to fund these initiatives?

Funding is always a very tricky question. That's why we need to do a priority-based, zero based budgeting process because we're not going to be seeing any additional funds in the near future coming either from our property taxes or certainly from the state of California. If [we] want to continue to advance our academic programs, we're going to need to make cuts in other areas and reprioritize how we're spending our limited resources, and they are limited. I also would like to work with BHEF on specific designated fundraising opportunities with either corporate sponsors or individuals to help advance some of these priorities.

What kind of technology integration do you have in mind?

It's really not just about buying a bunch of hardware, [but also] providing the professional development for our teachers and administrators to know how to use technology to the benefit of our students in the classroom. Once we have that in place, then it's about going out and buying the hardware, whether it's tablet technology, whether it's laptops, whether it's using cloud-based technology, whatever it is, we'll know it's not going to just sit on a desk and collect dust. We'll integrate our curriculum in a way that will inspire our students and engage them in ways they're not being inspired and engaged right now. It's a long-term process; there's no quick fix or silver bullet to fix what [is impacting] public education in California and across the country, but Beverly Hills can once again be a model of what we can do to compete on a global level. Technology integration is a key component and we must take the time and do it right.

Small class size has been one of your key issues. Tell us what still needs to be done to accomplish this.

We need to stop making decisions that are economic decisions and start making decisions on what is in the best interest of our students. What I mean by that is the goal should never be to have as many students as possible in a particular class and I think what's happened at the middle school and at the high school is we have skewed classrooms. 145 [students] is the total caseload for any particular teacher but what that means is sometimes you have a class that [has] 36 students in it and other classes have 18, but the average is 29.

I'd like to see a harder cap and we did a very good job this year in the middle school of having 32—not a hard cap but staff had to come back to the Board of Education and discuss each and every section that was 32 students or more. Now across the district I don't believe we have any sections in middle school that have more than 32 students, which is a step, because last year we had classes of 36-37 students in middle school. We still have this issue at the high school. Nobody has been able to show me that having smaller classes when teachers can have more individualized time with their students is a bad thing.

Relations have been strained between the school board and city council with regard to the subway. What will you do to encourage cooperation between the BHUSD and the City of Beverly Hills?

I think there has been more made of this than actually exists in terms of a rift between the city council and the school board. We have worked collaboratively; we will continue to work collaboratively. I think you can always have more dialogue and communication so that we can understand one another. I will hopefully continue what Lisa [Korbatov] began with Mayor [Barry] Brucker by having ad hoc committees of two members from the school [board] and two members of the city council meeting on a regular basis to discuss ways we can work together. I think the community focuses oftentimes too much on the rumor mill and not enough on what's actually happening on the ground.

The Board voted to formalize major construction plans for Horace Mann on Nov. 22. What is your position on the City's recent idea to incorporate public parking in the proposed Horace Mann parking structure?

I think that the [Horace Mann community] has spoken loudly and clearly at the last Horace Mann PTA meeting that they're not interested in having additional public parking underneath the 100 spots that have already been dedicated for our staff during the school day and will be used as part of the Joint Powers Agreement after school lets out. I support the plan that I approved, obviously, and that does not include a public parking garage underneath Horace Mann. Having said that, I appreciate the efforts of Councilmember John Mirisch to address the lack of parking and the lack of development in the southeast part of the City and wanting to partner with the school district on ways to enhance our property values, which ultimately will benefit our schools and our community.

Do you think this will be pursued further?

I don't. We've already given direction to our staff to submit our plans to DSA [Division of the State Architect] for approval. We're not looking to delay in any way, shape or form moving forward with those plans and getting construction underway as soon as DSA has a chance to review and get final approval from the Board of Education on the plan.

Next, the board will consider construction plans for Hawthorne. Tell us about that.

I was very surprised to learn that from an educational delivery standpoint that Hawthorne had such serious concerns, at least according to our master facilities [consultant] group [DeJong-Richter]. I'm interested in seeing their final report, which I know should be coming shortly, and looking forward to seeing proposed plans for Hawthorne and getting that project approved and underway as quickly as possible.

Can you talk about what are some of the concerns about educational delivery?

I really can't, but what I can say is there are some issues with how we're delivering and the size of the classroom, the configuration of the classroom, the distance that students have to travel to get from one part of the school to the next, and some issues with the auditorium and how we can deliver performing arts and music programs in a better way. That's generalized. Before I see that final report from DeJong-Richter, I can't speak more specifically.

Does that response also go for what the plans for Hawthorne might be?

Yes, I'm waiting until we have a study session similar to the one we had on Horace Mann where they bring actual proposals. Let's wait and see what the architects present, which will be in conjunction with review by the local site [Hawthorne] and the Facilities Advisory Committee [that] will be coming to the board for a study session where we can make an informed decision.

You're a supporter of bringing the International Baccalaureate curriculum to Beverly High. How will this program benefit the BHUSD?

I would love to see us do it middle school through high school; 6th-12th grade would actually be the best. What I like about the International Baccalaureate [IB] program is [No.] 1, it immediately raises the academic profile of our schools and our students who would participate in the program, which I think would help us tremendously in being able to attract colleges and universities to select Beverly High graduates for admission. I think first and foremost it would raise the caliber of the programs across the board at Beverly.

No. 2 is it's a program that's not just in the United States but involves international components as well. I think anything we can do to enhance and expose our students to the global marketplace of ideas is a good thing. I like that the [IB] is a very flexible program that will allow students who have varied interests and passions to be successful in the school system whether they prefer performing arts, the sciences, or the humanities. The [IB] program is a very broad program and curriculum that exposes students to lots of different subject areas and subject matter.

How would implementing the program affect AP classes?

Usually schools choose one or the other, but that's not set in stone. I have a tremendous amount of respect and support for the Advanced Placement program. I don't think it's an either/or; it's about finding a way to provide another opportunity for our students in a dedicated curriculum like [IB] that will raise our profile and the academic environment in our schools. Again it goes back to money and priorities. If we make this a priority in the community, and we go to the community to help us raise money to pay for this and we show them the advantages for students, for the community to have a rigorous and well-rounded program, I believe our community will step forward and support it. Part of my job as president and board member will be to help sell that to the community and I want to be a cheerleader for that.

Last week in Issue #635 Steven Fenton told the Weekly, "we have tremendous continuity and stability" with regard to school administrators. Tell us how the shakeup of principals and administrators in the past couple of years has benefited the BHUSD.

We were very clear in sending a message that we have expectations for our principals and their individual sites, and if you're not meeting those expectations, we're not afraid to make a change. I don't want anybody living in a state of fear, but I want our principals and administrators to understand that we mean business when we talk about accountability, oversight and transparency, and those expectations are not going to change.

The morale in our school sites is 100 percent better than when I started on the school [board]. I think that means dividends for our students in the classroom because if administrators and teachers are at odds and not working together, our students suffer in the classroom. Certainly our API scores are a reflection of that cooperation between our new principals and their teaching staff.

How will your leadership be different from Lisa Korbato's?

I think we have different issues facing us now in the district, so different responses to those issues. On the board we have new board members; it will be a new mix and we'll have to feel each other out. In terms of our various personalities, interests and expectations, I also think that I will probably be more formal than Lisa, because I use parliamentary procedure and Robert's Rules [of Order] quite a bit in my nonprofit role, and having been involved in other boards, I bring that experience to the table and I think the community will see a formalization of Robert's Rules.

I am a firm believer and I will be trying to educate this community at each meeting that board meetings are not public meetings; they're business meetings done in public. The focus is going to be on the five board members and the superintendent and his staff, so we can get the business of the district done in a timely fashion, allowing for appropriate discussion and debate but ultimately decision making is on the part of the Board of Education. Robert's Rules can be used to help keep us on track as a board.

You're a major USC football fan. What's your opinion on the team this year?

I'm very proud to be a member of the Trojan family. The success the USC football team has experienced in face of the unrelenting criticism and attacks on the university and the fact they cannot play a bowl game this year, their 10-2 [record] finish is just an incredible testament to their coach, the coaching staff and the players. I couldn't have been more pleased with the 50-0 drumming of UCLA to end our season on a high note. [As a side note,] this is the first time in [recent memory] that there's a Trojan majority [on the Board of Education: Goldberg, Korbato and Noah Margo].

the City of Beverly Hills," Ferentinos said. "We understand the needs of the locals and try to balance that with the needs of the tourists."

Monique Chu, owner of L.A. City Tours, said her company sends open-air vans to residential areas in Beverly Hills. She said some vans have headsets, but they are not always used because some customers find them uncomfortable. Guides use microphones, but at a reasonable volume, Chu said. According to Chu, it costs about $3,500 to install headsets in each van.

"Headsets sound good, but they do not really solve the problem," Chu said. "It's the company training the driver how to behave and respect the neighborhood. When we train a driver, they must be respectable and cooperate with the neighborhood."

Representatives of City Sights LA did not return phone calls from the Weekly.

1989 Beverly High grad Thottam says Occupy the Rose Parade

Peter Thottam

1989 Beverly High graduate Peter Thottam, one of the organizers of Occupy Los Angeles, wants to take the Occupy movement to the Tournament of Roses Parade in Pasadena on Jan. 2, 2012.

Traditionally, the parade takes place on New Year's Day, unless it falls on a Sunday.

"The situation with the Rose Parade is there are a million people physically present, 50 million Americans watch it live, 200 million estimated around the world see excerpts from the Rose Parade," Thottam said. "We're going to use the parade as a messaging vehicle for our primary message. That message is corporate money out of politics."

This is not the first demonstration Thottam, who ran for the California State Assembly as a Green Party candidate in 2006 and as a Democrat in 2010, has organized at the Rose Parade.

"I led the national impeachment movement out of Los Angeles, focused on impeaching Bush and Cheney," Thottam said. "Toward the end of 2007, we really needed to come up with a strategy and message to the American public about the existence of and the concerns of the impeachment movement."

Thottam joined anti-war activist Cindy Sheehan in forming the White Rose Coalition that organized a peaceful demonstration at the 2008 Rose Parade that communicated anti-war and constitutional violation concerns.

"We had 440 activists demonstrate in an entirely nonviolent, non-disruptive day of protest," Thottam said.

Thottam said he became involved in the Occupy movement because of what he sees as the increasing militarization and corporatization of the United States economy and political system.

"It's reached a tipping point where funda-

BHHS Boys' Basketball Team Wins Tournament Opener

The Beverly High boys' basketball team began play in the Sax Elliott Invitational by defeating Shalhevet, 75-48, Monday night in a pool play game at the Swim-Gym.

The Normans led 36-29 at halftime, then broke the game open by outscoring the Firehawks, 16-5, in the third quarter. Beverly Hills outscored Shalhevet, 23-14, in the fourth quarter.

Brodric Smith, who had been sidelined because of a broken wrist sustained during football season, “was the difference in the second half,” Norman coach Jarvis Turner said.

“He gave us a lot of energy on the defensive end that led to easy opportunities offensively,” Turner said. “I credit him to our turnaround in the second half.”

Austin Mills scored a game-high 20 points for Beverly Hills (2-1), despite missing a portion of the game when he needed nine stitches to stop the bleeding from a tooth getting knocked into his upper lip when he tried to block a shot, Turner said.

Ronan Massana added 13, Ben Cohen and Smith seven each, Siavash Yektafar six, Frank Brown five, Daniel Dayan four, Tyler Hensley and Topaz Levi two each and Peiman Rafeizadeh one for the Normans.

Beverly Hills was scheduled to conclude pool play Wednesday night against Hamilton in a game set to begin after Beverly Hills Weekly's deadline. The Normans will play their third tournament game today or Friday, depending on Wednesday's result, and conclude tournament play Saturday.

The tournament is named for the late Sax Elliott, a Beverly High coach and athletic director responsible for construction of the Swim-Gym.

Elliott is also credited with the introduction of basketball's glass backboard, the square on the backboard intended to aid shooting accuracy and the multi-colored basketball.

The Normans lost to South Torrance, 67-62, in a nonleague game at the Swim-Gym Nov. 29, despite Mills scoring 15 of his 31 points in the fourth quarter.

The score was tied 41-41 entering the fourth quarter, when the Normans were outscored 26-21.

Beverly Hills led 18-13 at the end of the first quarter and 35-27 at halftime, but was outscored 14-6 in the third quarter.

Hensley added eight points, Brown, Massana and Nick Retskin five each and Cohen four for

Now that Sedaghat has recovered, she has committed herself to raising awareness about carbon monoxide poisoning.

BHHS Boys' Soccer Team Defeats Warren, Windward

Nick Marmureanu scored the tie-breaking goal in the 59th minute off Elijah Lichtenberg's corner kick as Beverly High defeated Warren, 2-1, in a nonleague boys' soccer game Friday at Warren High School in Downey.

Lichtenberg tied the score on a first-half penalty kick, his third goal in three games.

Norman goalkeeper Matt Davidov made three saves in the second half, including two coach Steve Rappaport called “unbelievable”

Fox shares memories of Pearl Harbor Day with Horace Mann eighth graders

Former Beverly High Alumni Association President Bob Fox spoke to eighth-grade students at Horace Mann about his memories of Pearl Harbor Day on Wednesday, the 70th anniversary of the attacks. Fox was an eighth-grade Horace Mann student on Dec. 7, 1941, and graduated in 1942.

and “a huge part of the” victory.

Adrian Spitz made two saves in the first half for Beverly Hills (3-0).

“It was a very physical game,” Rappaport said. “We played exceptionally well.”

Ben Abebe, Lichtenberg and Angel Jaramillo “all had outstanding games”; freshman midfielder Cole Offer really controlled the flow of the game; Bryan Khalilirad “had an exceptional game in the midfield, said Rappaport, who also praised the play of sweeper Golen Khorshidi.

The Bears were ranked sixth in the Southern Section Division 3 preseason poll. The Normans were ranked eighth in the Division

4 poll released Monday.

Caio Carvalho and Lichtenberg both had a goal and an assist for the Normans and Davidov and Spitz combined on the shut-out as Beverly Hills defeated Windward, 3-0, last Thursday in a South Bay/Westside Tournament game at Nickoll Field.

Abebe also scored for the Normans.

Davidov made five saves and Spitz three.

Abebe, Caio Carvalho, Josh Horowitz and Lichtenberg drew praise from Rappaport.

“We played exceptionally well,” Rappaport said. “We controlled the flow of the game.”

A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by Lawrence F. Meyer in the Superior Court of California, County of LOS ANGELES.

THE PETITION FOR PROBATE requests that Lawrence F. Meyer be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

THE PETITION requests the decedent's will and codicils, if any, be admitted to probate. The will and any codicils are available for examination in the file kept by the court.

THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A HEARING on the petition will be held on January 25, 2012 at 8:30 AM in Dept. No. 5 located at 111 N. Hill St., Los Angeles, CA 90012.

IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the deceased, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within four months from the date of first issuance of letters as provided in Probate Code section 9100. The time for filing claims will not expire before four months from the hearing date noticed above.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court.
