City staff to poll businesses regarding South Santa Monica Boulevard name change

The Beverly Hills City Council directed staff to poll businesses located on South Santa Monica on changing the street's name.

The item was discussed during Tuesday's study session at the request of Councilmember Nancy Krasne, who said she was generally not in favor of changing street names, but had requested the item be discussed in response to a letter from Beverly Hills resident Fred Barman.

The staff report transmits letters from Barman requesting that the City Council consider the name change. Barman wrote an open letter to the city council, which he sent to the Weekly, and appeared in issue

#708.

In a recent letter to the council and City Manager Jeff Kolin, Barman suggested a "dual name" of both South Santa Monica and Burton Way be added to the signage over a period of two or three years, leading to the eventual phasing out of South Santa Monica Boulevard.

Barman suggested the term "Little" to describe a primary street in the City is demeaning and an "affront" to Beverly Hill City Founder Burton Green.

During Tuesday's discussion Councilmember Julian Gold said he would support leaving the street's name as South Santa Monica Boulevard. Gold said he thought the city had honored Burton Green's contribution and that the potential for confusion was "real" and the inconvenience to the businesses, "substantial."

Then-councilmember and current Mayor John Mirisch proposed a name change for South Santa Monica to Will Rogers Boulevard or another deceased Hollywood icon tied to the history of Beverly Hills in 2009, according to the staff report.

In 2010, staff conducted a survey of merchants along Little Santa Monica to gauge their support for changing the name of the street, resulting in 87 percent of merchants opposed to the change and 13 percent in favor.

Vice Mayor Lili Bosse noted that the survey conducted in 2010 had only a 30 percent response rate. Bosse agreed that she was not in favor of street name changes but was interested in resurveying the merchants on the street, calling the available data "insufficient."

"I think it's worth looking at if there's

Lisa Korbatov kicks off her campaign

Board of Education Member Lisa Korbatov kicked off her campaign on Sept. 8. The kickoff was hosted by Selma and Len Fisch. Over 200 people were in attendance and included all current members of the Board of Education, former L.A. mayor candidate and current City of Los Angeles Director of Economic Development Jan Perry, and Beverly Hills Mayor John Mirisch.

interest," said Bosse.

Councilmember Willie Brien said he generally opposed street name changes, but said that the opposition from merchants, cited in the staff report, was from a different time. Brien said he could support a name change if the businesses supported it.

Burton Way currently runs from San Vicente Boulevard on the eastern side of the City and becomes South Santa Monica Boulevard at the intersection with North Rexford Drive.

Mayor John Mirisch agreed he was interested in hearing from the local businesses as well as the rest of the community.

District replaces legal team in federal subway case

The Board of Education voted unanimously to approve an agreement with a law firm to represent the district in the NEPA lawsuit against the Federal Transit Authority at the Board's formal meeting on Tuesday night.

Kasowitz, Benson, Torres & Friedman will now represent the BHUSD.

"The Board has unanimously decided recently in the last few weeks that they are going to be substituting in this law firm for Venable to take care of federal litigation," said Board of Education member Lisa Korbatov.

Venable had previously represented the district in the FTA case.

"This firm has some skill sets and some expertise that is now required as we move forward," said Superintendent Gary Woods.

The district will be represented by Aaron Marks, William Goodman, and Jennifer Recine, according to a letter written by Marks, regarding "terms and conditions of engagement."

Former Senator Joe Lieberman (I-CT) and Clarine Nardi Riddle "will be available to counsel and advise BHUSD as appropriate."

BHUSD will receive a 23 percent discount off the firm's hourly rates, which Korbatov said "puts [the district's rates] squarely where Venable's were."

According to an attached schedule of hourly rates, Marks usually bills $875 per hour, Goodman bills $800 per hour, Recine bills $575 per hour, Riddle bills $750 per hour and Sen. Lieberman bills $1,200 per hour.

With the 23 percent discount, Marks will bill the district $673.75 per hour, Goodman will bill $616 per hour, Recine will bill $442.75 per hour, Riddle will bill $577.50 per hour, and Sen. Lieberman will bill the district $924 per hour.

Alan Kaye recommended as new Fine Arts Commissioner

Alan Kaye has been recommended to be the Fine Arts Commission's newest commissioner.

Kaye was chosen unanimously from an interview panel composed of Vice Mayor Lili Bosse, Councilmember Julian Gold, Fine Art Commission Chair Fiona Chalom, and Vice Chair Sandy Pressman.

Kaye will fill the vacancy left by Commissioner Judith Friedman whose term ends on Sept. 19. Kaye was chosen from five applicants, three of whom were interviewed by the panel.

Alan Kaye

Kaye, president of Alan Kaye Insurance Company, has consulted families, business owners and individuals in insurance and estate planning for over 40 years. He is a member of the Beverly Hills Estate Planning Council, the National Association of Insurance and Financial Advisors, and the Beverly Hills Chamber Economic Development Council.

The abandoned baby boy found dead in a trashcan last Thursday in South El Monte marks the first abandoned deceased baby found in 2013, according to the Inter-agency Council of Abuse and Neglect (ICAN), the non-profit organization who runs the county's Safe Surrender program.

Cathy Walsh of ICAN said the organization will wait for a coroner's report because a baby born stillborn would not be considered abandoned and deceased.

Since California implemented the Safely Surrendered Baby Law in 2001, 107 infants have been safely surrendered in Los Angeles County.

Walsh said she has seen a decrease in the number of abandoned, deceased infants since 2001. In 2001, there were 11 abandoned, deceased infants. Since 2007, there have been no more than three each year. Last Thursday, a child was found dead in a trashcan in South El Monte.

Though no infants have been safely surrendered in one of Beverly Hills since the law took effect there have been safe surrenders in adjacent areas. One infant was surrendered in the Brentwood 90049 zip code area in 2007 and one infant was surrendered in the 90048 zip code of Los Angeles, in the Beverly Center area in 2012.

The Safe Surrender Program was created through state law, but is run by individual counties.

According to Walsh, efforts were spearheaded under the leadership of Supervisor Don Knabe and ICAN, runs the program in the county.

The organization has been mandated by the Board of Supervisors to bring people together in the county in the issues of child abuse prevention, treatment and services.

Any hospital or fire station in the county serves as a safe surrender site.

Of the 107 surrendered, 100 have been adopted, and seven were reclaimed by the families. Parents or legal guardians who safely surrender an infant have up to 14 days to reclaim their children.

The safe surrender program accepts newborns up to 72 hours of age.

Kaye is a chartered life underwriter, a professional designation for life insurance and estate planning specialists. Kaye is also a chartered financial consultant.

Kaye is also an executive committee board member of SLE Lupus Foundation and an executive committee member of Lupus LA.

Kaye's appointment was presented to the city council at the study session on Sept. 10. There was little discussion.

The council will vote formally to appoint Kaye at an upcoming meeting.

BHUSD secures legal team to create district endowment

The Board of Education unanimously voted to retain Hawkins, Delafield, and Wood to assist in the creation of an endowment at the formal meeting on Tuesday night.

"Our practice is dedicated to public finance," said firm partner Arto Becker. "We're bond counsel to the County of Los Angeles, the City of Los Angeles, to the Metropolitan Water District. The firm is one of the preeminent firms, if not the most preeminent firm in public finance."

Work for the BHUSD would be supervised by Becker, who attended Tuesday's meeting, Russell A. Miller, Diane K. Quan and Nnanna F. Ogbu.

The firm's services will be billed at a 20 percent discount. The firm's current standard rates for Becker, Miller, Quan, and Ogbu per hour are $725, $650, $575, and $415, respectively. Discounted, the rates per hour are $580, $520, $460, and $332.

The Board of Education previously approved a resolution directing staff to establish an endowment fund of $10 million on August 13.

"This is a turning point for this district and its financial stability going forward and so having sustained counsel on it to keep us on the straight and narrow, conservative and responsible is definitely where we need to be for our community," said Board of Education Jake Manaster, following the unanimous vote. "It's a privilege to have that opportunity."

Campus safety officers to return to BHUSD

The Board of Education approved "option one" of a campus safety program that would place six campus safety officers at the school sites in the district at the formal meeting on Tuesday night.

The district accepted a proposal from Evidence-Based, Inc., a private firm which "provides highly trained and skilled 'Campus Safety Officers' (CSOs) who are either law enforcement or military trained in tactics, to respond to an Active Shooter at any given moment," according to the company's website.

According to the motion made by Board of Education President Jake Manaster, the approval of "option one" was contingent upon a subsidy from the City of Beverly Hills. In which case if an agreement were not reached, then the Board would approve "option two," the lesser expensive option.

Option one calls for six full-time equivalent campus safety officers at a total cost of $735,090 – the average cost for each campus safety officer is $125,917 per year -- and one full-time equivalent supervisor for the total cost of $146,333 annually. The total cost of option one is $881,423. Option one also includes four campus safety officers for home high school football games, and one for board meetings and parent teacher nights.

"Option two" would place five full-time campus safety officers at the five school sites and one full-time equivalent supervisor. Three campus safety officers for five home high school football games a season, and one campus safety officer for board meetings and parent teacher nights. The total cost of option two is $762,324.

A contract will return to the Board of Education for formal approval.

The campus safety officers are expected to be retired BHPD officers who are familiar with the city and the school campuses.

"In all of our implementations, we look for officers that come from the local jurisdiction [and] that are familiar with it," said retired Irvine officer and Evidence-based, Inc President John McLaughlin. "In the event that there may be one or two people that may not, we find people who are highly qualified from a close by area. They go through extensive training. They will be integrated into the team over a period of time. The board would ultimately have final say on the officers that would be chosen."

Board of Education member Lisa Korbatov said the use of retired BHPD officers was one of the "linchpins" for supporting the proposal.

"I'm sure who ever else comes aboard may be just as wonderful and qualified but there is a comfort and there is an institutional knowledge that a former police officer from Beverly Hills has that is very hard for someone new, as qualified as they are, to gain," said Korbatov.

Board of Education member Brian Goldberg echoed Korbatov's comments and said that retired BHPD Lt. Joe Chirillo, who is now the firm's vice president of the campus safety program, will be the BHUSD's direct contact for the implementation of the safety program, and the use of retired BHPD officers would be a key factor in his voting for the contract voted on by the board.

"I see this as a first step, and hopefully, a reassuring step to our parents and community with having personnel trained that can respond on our campuses. I think that it's sad that we live in a society where we need to have armed officers on K-8 schools and the high school site but that's the reality of the situation we find ourselves in and we need to be prepared," said Goldberg.

Board of Education member Lewis Hall, the lone no vote, said he was not comfortable with voting for the proposal at this time.

"We had heard that there would be not just putting people on different campuses but that there would be an entire program

Saban Theatre becomes first property in City to enter Mills Act Contract

The Beverly Hills City Council unanimously voted to approve a Mills Act Contract for the Fox Wilshire-Saban Theatre at the formal meeting on Tuesday night.

"I was on the planning commission when we first started talking about the Mills Act so this is a night I'm very excited about," said Vice Mayor Lili Bosse. "Finally this is going to be the first property and of all properties, it's wonderful that it's the Saban Theatre."

The Saban Theatre, located at 8440 Wilshire Boulevard, is listed on both the National Register of Historic Places, as well as the Local Register of Historic Places. The theater is the city's 13th landmark.

The City Council established a two-year Mills Act Pilot Program on Oct. 18, 2011. The Saban Theatre submitted an application on May 31, 2012 for participation in the Mills Act Program.

The pilot program had been set for a two year period for a maximum of six properties and a capped maximum annual revenue loss of $50,000. Another property has applied for the pilot program but has not yet been considered by the Cultural Heritage Commission.

The Mills Act, which was enacted in the state of California in 1972, authorizes participating local governments to enter into contracts with owners of qualified historic properties to receive property tax relief by agreeing to actively preserve, maintain and rehabilitate historic properties. Under the pilot program, initial contracts would last for 10 years. Typically, Mills Act contracts reduce property taxes by 20 to 60 percent. To qualify, properties must appear on a local, state or national historic register.

"I'll add that this is really a great moment for the city: another milestone in historical preservation where we're actually offering incentives for people to preserve historical buildings," said Mayor John Mirisch. "It is appropriate that the Saban is the first. Hopefully, there will be a lot more that follow in its footsteps."

According to the report, the applicant plans to use savings in property taxes to design and install removable seating, remodel existing dressing rooms, restore the main lobby rotunda, paint all exterior elevations, and refurbish historic seats in Mezzanine and Balcony areas, among others.

Councilmember Nancy Krasne had concerns about the installation of new LED reader boards for the marquee. Rabbi David Baron said the architectural commission had approved the design and restricted the theater's use of colors to only black and white so the marquee would keep in with the historic integrity of the property, but bring the theater in to the 21st century.

Loss in annual revenue to the City would be $10,400 per year. Loss of revenue to BHUSD, a basic aid district, would be approximately $9,100 per year.

Urban designer Bill Crouch said he had been in contact with Superintendent Gary Woods, who said the district would be in favor of the contract.

Councilmember Willie Brien suggested the council receive annual updates to ensure preservation work is being completed for all Mills Act applicants.

The applicant's preservation plan estimates cost of maintenance and work over 10 years would be $1.4 million.

for this and I haven't seen what that is," said Hall, who clarified he was not against campus security but wanted to see some details before voting yes. "Also, I'm not comfortable with this not knowing what the city might be able to come up with to finance this."

Chief Administrative Officer Dawnalyn Murakawa-Leopard, answering a question from Board of Education Vice President

Noah Margo, said there was some wiggle room in district funds if they were unable to secure outside funding for the proposals.

"Our School Resource Officer program was a product of taking over LAPD's program that [former BHPD] Lt. Joe Chirillo took on because LAPD could no longer fund it," said Manaster. "The state of California was looking for someone to train SRO officers over the entire state of California and he took on that responsibility being the incubator, and I'll just say, savior of that program."

The City of Beverly Hills previously funded an SRO program.

Chirillo, who worked for the BHPD for 32 years, was supervisor of School Resource Officers, wrote and implemented the BHPD's school safety plan.

"I'm looking forward to the opportunity for the [campus safety officers] to interact with our students and really do what needs to be done in connection with some of the openness that we all cherish here and the tradition of having schools that are warm, friendly, and accessible while also being behind the scenes making sure that they're secure in a way that is not always visible," said Manaster.

Three Beverly High seniors named National Merit Scholarship Semifinalists

Beverly High seniors Jessica Lu, Max Stahl and Daniel Raban have been named among 16,000 semifinalists in the 2014 National Merit Scholarship Program.

Semifinalists are competing for 8,000 National Merit Scholarships worth about $35 million that will be offered in the spring. In early September, about 16,000 students, or approximately one-third of the 50,000 high scorers, are notified that they have qualified as Semifinalists. In February, some 15,000 Semifinalists are notified by mail at their home addresses that they have advanced to Finalist standing. From March to mid-June, approximately 8,000 Finalists will receive a Merit Scholarship award.

Opener

Team to play at San Marcos tonight

By Steven Herbert

Beverly High began its 87th football season Saturday with a 42-13 loss at Santa Barbara in a nonleague game in Charlie Stansbury's debut as the Normans' coach.

Damiyon Brown scored both Beverly Hills touchdowns, returning a kickoff 76 yards for a score in the first quarter after the Dons took a 14-0 lead.

Santa Barbara (1-1) scored 21 unanswered points in the second quarter, increasing its lead to 35-7 at halftime.

Brown scored the first points of the third quarter on a one-yard run.

The Normans "don't have a lot of guys with varsity experience" and Saturday's game "was a great eye-opener for us at the tempo and speed of the game at the varsity" level, said Stansbury, hired in February to replace Donald Paysinger after being the offensive coordinator and offensive line coach at Golden West College for four seasons.

The Beverly Hills offense "definitely has some things to work on," Stansbury said.

"After that game on Saturday, we have a better understanding of what pace we need to play at and where we need to go and how we need to get there," said Stansbury, whose father Bill held or shared the Normans' head football coaching position from 1981-89.

The Beverly Hills defense "has to work and keep getting better and keep understanding where we need to be and where other guys are going to be," Stansbury said.

The Normans "had some guys play with really great effort on our defensive line," said Stansbury, who praised the play of defensive lineman Calvin Silvera, Brandon Davis and Boris Mitrofanov.

One factor in the loss was that the Dons were playing their second game of the season and Beverly Hills its first, Stansbury said.

"Most teams make a big jump from the first game to the second game," Stansbury said. "All the nerves are out after the first game. You could tell that with Santa Barbara and with us, it was the opposite.

"We had a lot of guys (who were) playing significantly for the first time on the varsity level. You could tell we had some guys who were nervous. All those things you work on practice that seem easy, you start to forget."

The loss was the Normans' 19th in their 23 games dating back to the 2010 season.

What's Next?

Beverly Hills is scheduled to return to Santa Barbara tonight to play at San Marcos (2-0).

The opening kickoff for the nonleague game is set for 7 p.m.

"We've got our work cut out for us," Stansbury said. "They're much improved from last year."

The Royals were 1-9 in 2012, including a 33-12 loss to the Normans.

To win, Beverly Hills must "play consistently," Stansbury said.

"A big part of it is just our effort in our tackling," Stansbury said. "That's what we really have to improve."

The Normans also have to improve their blocking, Stansbury said.

Former BHHS Coach Paysinger Resumes Career at Hawthorne High

Two games into his career as Hawthorne's football coach, former Beverly High coach Donald Paysinger is still looking for his first victory with the Cougars.

Hawthorne opened its season with a 56-0 loss to West Ranch Aug. 30 and lost to Lawndale 26-21 Friday.

Paysinger resigned as the Normans' coach in January after four seasons, after his youngest son Cameron, a Beverly Hills lineman, completed his high school football career.

"At that moment I didn't have any intention of coaching again," said Paysinger, a 1977 Beverly Hills graduate and a younger brother of Carter Paysinger, the school's principal who was the football coach from 1990 to 2008.

Paysinger then learned Hawthorne was looking for a coach and said he decided to apply because of the program's winning tradition in the 1980s and 1990s, when its players included Curtis Conway, a future USC and NFL star.

The Cougars have been among Southern California's worst teams in recent years, including 0-10 records each season from 2006 to 2009. Hawthorne was 2-8 in 2010, 5-5 in 2011 and 1-9 in 2012.

"Over the last couple of years playing Hawthorne (I could see) they had tons of talent, but they just weren't winning," Paysinger said.

Paysinger called his new job "very challenging" with the losing creating a mentality of "here we go again" instead of a winning mentality.

"It's very tough to break that and teach them how to win," Paysinger said. "We have talent. Now I've got to teach these guys how to take that talent and win with that."

For their opener, the Cougars were bedeviled by bus problems.

Two buses were ordered to take the team to Valencia for the game, but only one arrived and it came one hour late, Paysinger said.

The team arrived at West Ranch High at 6:30 p.m. for the 7 p.m. game, said Paysinger, who had hoped to arrive at the school by 4:45 p.m. or at the latest 5 p.m.

Hawthorne played "well in spurts" against Lawndale, leading 14-12 "the majority of the game," Paysinger said. The Cougars had chances to increase their lead, "and we figured out a way not to do it," said Paysinger, whose team is scheduled to play Blair of Pasadena Friday night at John Muir High.

Hawthorne is scheduled to play host to Beverly Hills Nov. 1 in what Paysinger called "an interesting game" because it is Hawthorne's homecoming game and his birthday.

EMBRACING CIVILITY

The Weekly's interview with incoming Human Relations Chair Rochelle Ginsburg

By Andrea Aldana

How did you get involved with the Human Relations Commission?

After I retired from Stephen S. Wise [School] where I was the principal for nine years, I didn't really have a plan, but I had been sort of absent from active life in our own community because I had been so busy with my own professional life, so I decided that one of the first things I wanted to do was to reengage myself in this community where I had taught and worked for so long. I really wanted to come back to the community and be present and Human Relations seemed like the most natural fit for me.

What about the commission appealed to you?

It felt like a natural fit to me because I was really accustomed, since about 1978 probably when the first influx of our Persian students came in, to the challenges of changes in the community and working in schools, so much of what you are doing is human relations. It's about civility. It's about how people treat each other. It's about the social dynamics of a community. For all of my years, while I was teaching English and being an administrator and running a school, the bottom line really was, how do we as a community – whether it's a school community or a civic community – navigate these dynamics of human relationships so that we benefit from one another and embrace one another and not exclude or reject one another?

What are your goals as chair of the commission?

I've been giving it a lot of thought since this month I do take over the chairpersonship of the commission and I've had some wonderful people to follow. Our commission is a little bit different from other commissions. Other commissions have more concrete objectives, whether it's the design commission or the fine arts commission, the planning commission or the traffic commission. Those are very specific things and their [tasks] are to observe and create policy and procedures. The Human Relations Commission isn't about policy or procedures. It is much more abstract and it's much more conceptual and so I think that as chair, what I would really like to focus on is articulating the ideal of human relations and then finding ways to do it.

For example, the ideal [is] to be mindful about how people treat each other. The action is having an anti-bullying video contest where we get people to be thinking about it, talking about it, and actually creating something that sends that message. If our ideal is that there will be civility in city hall, then the action would be that we have a civility statement that is posted outside of the council chambers, that is posted in every one of the commission meetings, and that candidates running for office actually sign when they register to run for office. So [my goal is to] try to find out what the ideal is, articulate it, and then find ways of activating that into some kind of action.

The commission just chose four winners for the anti-bullying PSA. What were you looking for in a winning entry?

They were judged on creativity, educational value, and message effectiveness – that was the criteria.

Can you anecdotally tell us about one of the winners?

One was without any dialogue. It was completely without dialogue and just by demonstration. Ultimately, this girl took her life. The end result was so stunning. At first, it seemed like it was very, very casual, and then you almost were laughing. It was funny until all of a sudden the impact was so deep. It was like you just felt like you'd been socked in the stomach and so, it was very impactful. It really was outstanding.

Why do you think it's important to encourage students to make these public service announcements?

I think it's important to have students think about the potential impact, harm and danger, in some cases, of bullying [and] that this is not a recreational sport to see how miserable you can make somebody else feel and make yourself feel better. What we really have an understanding of is that a bully can create a problem for someone else, but a bully really has a problem because people who are secure and people who feel good about themselves don't do that. I think maybe we're not paying as much attention to the bully as we should be because we're so busy taking care of the damage they create.

So when you say, why is it important for the kids to make the PSA's, I don't think it's so important that they make the PSA's; it's important that they think about this issue of bullying, which is not local to a school or a group of kids. This is endemic to our nation, particularly with the variety of media access people have. It's important they be thinking about it, be mindful and then the PSA is the product of their thinking.

You mentioned the "ideals" of the Human Relations Commission. What are they?

We're really talking about civility in all of its forms, whether it's in our business, on our streets, in City Hall, and neighbor to neighbor. It's all over. It's not targeted at an age group, ethnic group, or neighborhood. We're really seeking to create a sense that Beverly Hills is so well-known for so many things. And I think that the opening of our performing arts center is going to have a fantastic effect on furthering positive human relations in our city. First of all, it's going to get people out and coming together in a central place, so we may see more of the face of our city, which we really don't do a great deal. If you're a Rodeo Drive person or if you're a Roxbury Park person, or you're a Horace Mann School person, you're likely to live a little bit in that smaller community, but I think having this big civic center as it will be with performing arts in itself -- the literature, the plays, the dance, and the artistic impression very often focus on human values and the conflicts in human values, so I think that's going to be a great asset to our city, and maybe further, possibly unintentionally, the purpose of human relations.

For instance, right now we are working, and it has not been fully rolled out yet, out of our civility statement, "Embrace Civility," where we now give an Embrace Civility Award once a year, to someone. It may not be for some grand thing, but the Embrace Civility Award is [given to] someone who has exhibited in a non-required way sensitivity to someone else, generosity to someone else, respect for someone else by doing something. It might be neighbor to neighbor. It might have been in some kind of a business interaction, but we encourage people to nominate people that they've observed doing something like that. We have the civility statement that we talked about in city hall that is now really visible. Our next step is to take that civility concept from city hall to our city streets because we now have people on bicycles, we have much more pedestrians than we used to have, and we have lots more automobile traffic than we used to have. Everybody's in a hurry; everybody has their own personal need to get somewhere. Our streets, certainly places like Charleville and Beverly Drive or Gregory Way, and certain intersections that are difficult, can be hazardous, so we're working on a campaign that will raise consciousness and with some kind of concrete manifestation of that whether it be stickers, taking a pledge, or possibly banners. I hesitate to be too specific because everything that we do, we work through city council so if we can come up with an idea or they can give us a direction, we can work through that idea, create a plan, and make recommendations. We then have to take it to our liaisons at city council and ultimately to the city council itself for approval before we move ahead. One thing you learn in commission work: it's not fast. This isn't a "today we'll think of it and tomorrow we'll do it." It's a lot about process. The bad thing about that is that it can be frustrating when you're excited about something. You want it to happen immediately, but the good thing about it is that you are required to think things through carefully and not be sloppy when you are rolling things out. You have thought through all of the steps, which means you've also thought through some of the hazards along the way and by the time you roll it out, you have a well thought through plan, so that's exciting.

Some residents feel the Human Relations Commission addresses issues that are beyond the scope of municipal government. How do you respond to that?

I'm not sure I really understand that. If I knew for instance that some resident felt that the Human Relations Commission addressed a particular issue, I could respond to it but I'm not aware of what people think the commission is doing that is beyond the scope of municipal government. Again, because we wouldn't be doing anything that the municipal government, which is our city council, didn't endorse. We don't have autonomy.

How does your experience as an educator help you with the work of the commission?

My experience as an educator really helps me in everything that I do and in particular with regard to the commission. I'm used to working collaboratively because my last 20 years in education, I was working as part of a collaborative, administrative team and with large groups of people. I have developed the skill or ability to function as a member of a group and also to lead a group in terms of organization, long range vision, day to day planning, [and] all of the things that I did as an educator – and I'm not really talking about the teacher part in the classroom, but I think even that, when you're teaching, you have to have a plan. You have to have an objective. You have to know what you want to have happen. It's just given me a construct for everything I do.

You retired from 34 years in education in 2008, including many years as a teacher in Beverly Hills and were interviewed in the Weekly issue #450. Would you ever consider a position in administration?

I think that there's a time for everything and I loved what I did. I loved every single minute of it. I loved everybody I worked with. I was very fortunate wherever I went that I always worked with people that I enjoyed but also that I learned from and learned with and I never left anything because I had to or left anything because I didn't like it anymore. I always left because there was something more compelling ahead of me and up until when I left Stephen Wise five years ago, I just felt like the time was right. I had done what I did. I hope I did it well. I enjoyed it, but there were other things that I had never done. I never would have had time for instance [to be on the Human Relations Commission]. I'm doing some other things in the community now that I couldn't have done had I continued that work. There's so much that I want to do.

There's so much that life has. There's a saying, "you can't have it all." I think that you can have it all; you just can't have it all at the same time. And there's wonderful young talent and wonderful young people who should be filling those shoes now. I don't feel like I wish I could go back. In my mind, there's a lot of stuff I miss, but I think I did the right thing at the right time, I hope I did it well and now it's time for me to be thinking differently and I'm doing differently. What I am doing and have done is some educational consulting.

What other ways are you involved in the community?

In the community right now, I am chairing a task force for Jewish Federation for children with special needs and that task force is an offshoot of another committee that I co-chair called "Caring for Jews in Need." That's a part of Federation, so I've been quite involved with that. I'm presently, and this is short term, on a search committee for a new head of school for Echo Horizons School, which is a private school in Culver City, and I am a UCLA graduate, so this year, I am chair of the faculty prize committee for the Gold Shield Alumni Association. We select a faculty prize winner every year – a tenured faculty person – and it's a big deal. It's a $30,000 unrestricted cash prize for this person who is nominated by the head of their department. I'm on the board of overseers of Hebrew Union College, which is a seminary for training rabbis and cantors. I'm also deeply involved with Wilshire Boulevard Temple. But also, my other love, which goes with all the way back to my beginnings, is I'm a book group facilitator, professionally. I have seven groups and they meet monthly and that keeps me quite busy.

What kind of work does the task force do?

What I'm trying to do with that is encourage groups and organizations. For instance, an organization that comes to mind that I went to visit recently was Etta Israel that ran a summer camp for special needs teens through age 22. We're trying to encourage them to create sustainable programs that are also innovative and that can be models for others.

Tell us about your family.

I am so blessed to have a great family. My husband [Eli] is a physician, and he's been practicing in this community for over 50 years. He's with the Cedars-Sinai Medical Group. I guess our whole family is about human relations because he takes care of people. He really is a 21st century, classic, old-fashioned doctor. [He is a] caregiver. He cares about his patients and goes beyond. We have two daughters and one of them was in the entertainment industry and has gone back to school and has just opened her practice as a therapist on Robertson Boulevard, so she's back in the community where she grew up, and she interned at the Maple Center. Her name is Carolyn Carlson. Her husband works at [William Morris Endeavor], so he works in the community although they don't live in Beverly Hills. They have twins who just started middle school and they're just great kids. My oldest daughter, Ellen Sugerman, also grew up here and went to Beverly Vista. She is a speech pathologist by profession, but she is not practicing right now. She also is a cantor and she works in her husband's business and she has two children. Her children are just great. Her husband is in communications and he has engaged in many ways with this community and a lot of the Southern California communities in doing some very important civic work and so everybody is very close and great and very productive. We're very lucky.

A year from now, what do you hope to have accomplished as chair?

As chair, a year from now, I certainly hope we will have our Beverly Hills Civil City program in full swing. That's very important to me, but there are some things that I would like to be thinking of. I'd like to go back to the origins of the Human Relations Commission to its intent. My term is going to be during our city's 100th year. One of the things I'd like to do is create some means of really knowing who we are. What could we collect in terms of information about knowing who we are as a city? We're old and we're young. We're renters and we're owners. We're businesspeople and we're professional people. We're residents. There are all kinds of things. And then there are the ethnicities. I think people sort of divide the city into thinking we're two major ethnicities – Persians and non-Persians. If you look at our graduation pictures from our schools and you read the names, there are a lot of people in the city who bear names that tell us that there are a lot of people in the city with origins that we are not very familiar with. I'd like to be thinking, at least initiate, who are we? And how do we capitalize on our diversity to see ourselves not just as a place where people come to look at movie star homes or to shop on Rodeo or stay in the great hotels? We have all of that and it is fabulous and so exciting but also who are we in our own neighborhoods and how does that enrich us? What opportunity does our diversity provide for us? I don't know that we've tapped into our diversity as an opportunity. We've barely tapped into it as recognition but if I see it as an opportunity, then what is the opportunity and what should we do with it? If I could have made a little crack in that during this 100th year where we're going to be celebrating so many aspects of our community that should be celebrated, then this is a year then really to be thinking about that. What can we do to really highlight our cultural diversity as a plus as much as any of our other pluses that are more commercially known and appreciated? We have some very nice things going and I want to continue that.

quished by the state of California in 2005. According to the staff report, the quality of the pavement and the drainage system have deteriorated.

The agreement with Psomas will be divided into two phases. Phase one would include public outreach, geotechnical surveys and necessary studies to accomplish cost of design options, development of a construction mitigation plan and work hours.

The goals of the public outreach program include obtaining public input on the inclusion of bicycle lanes, landscaped medians and street lighting, as well as construction mitigation and scheduling. The public outreach phase will also provide the community with information.

Phase two would include project design.

Staff suggested expanding noticing of future public meetings to residences between Santa Monica and Sunset Boulevard as well as residences within 500 feet south of North Santa Monica Boulevard. Additionally, suggested city-wide noticing included the city's website, social media accounts, advertisements and press releases.

Vice Mayor Lili Bosse suggested the entire community be noticed. Bosse said she believed North Santa Monica Boulevard was one of the most traveled streets in the city and outreach should be community-wide.

Sean Vargas of Psomas presented various layout options to the city council which included installations of medians, widening of the street, and installation of bike lanes.

The majority of the council opposed taking away green space and agreed that bike safety would be important.

City council is expected to select a conceptual design by early 2014 with construction starting spring 2015. Construction is expected to last 18 to 24 months.

Board of Education Candidate John Dohm will not run active campaign, he says

Though his name will still appear on the ballot, RealD executive John Dohm said he will not run an active campaign for the November Board of Education election.

"I'm running, but I'm not going to run the kind of campaign [some of the other candidates] are running," said Dohm.

Dohm said while other candidates are spending and raising money, that is not something he is prepared to do because he signed up just a month ago. Dohm said he had not anticipated running a campaign with

Dohm said his expectations had been that he would file for the seat, attend coordinated candidate events and take the seat if he were elected.

Dohm said he intends on attending candidate forums and telling people he is on the ballot, but won't hold fundraisers or create a campaign team.

Candidates Howard Goldstein and Board member Lisa Korbatov have both created campaign websites and held campaign kick offs. Beverly Hills dentist James Fabe is also on the ballot.

You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. Don't sell your life insurance policy until you know the rules!

ALAN
AGENCY

Most people over the age of 70, who want to sell their old insurance policies for more than their cash surrender value, are not getting the most money from their assets.

AVOID RISKS OF INSURANCE FINANCING STRATEGIES

Others, who expect to create “something from nothing”, participate in insurance financing plans without having full knowledge of the chances they are taking. You can avoid these risks by becoming informed of established procedures and you won't make costly mistakes.

Alan Kaye Insurance Agency is a leader in the field of insurance and estate planning with over 40 years of experience. We work with most of the major life insurance companies and have access to their resources to be able to provide the latest in planning strategies.

THREE ESSENTIAL RULES THAT CAN PREVENT YOU FROM MAKING COSTLY DECISIONS

- Provide full and accurate descriptions of all offers relating to the sale of your policy.
- Acquire at least five offers from unrelated insurance purchasing companies.
- Complete background checks on potential purchasers to make sure they are financially and commercially acceptable firms to do business with.

ARE YOU COMPLETING A LIFE INSURANCE SETTLEMENT OR JUST SETTLING?

What kind of insurance professional is helping you sell your old life insurance policy? Are you dealing with a life settlement specialist? Are you represented by a licensed professional with E&O Insurance that covers life settlements? Has your agent explained the risks involved in financing your life insurance?

Call us today to find out what your insurance is really worth and we will help you decide whether to sell, surrender, keep or replace your old insurance policy.
