“City employees, teachers to receive raises; But how much is too much?” [Issue #776]

To the Beverly Hills City Councilmembers:

I value our city employees. However, I believe that it is clear that their compensation already exceeds what comparable cities pay for the same work by a factor in the range of 15 percent to 25 percent, and more in some cases.

The residents of Beverly Hills depend on our elected officials to protect our interests. I believe that your priority should be to address the unfunded pension liability that now exceeds $100 million, and that no raises should be awarded until you have developed a viable plan to provide for such unfunded liability.

It is always tempting to go along to get along. Standing up for fiscal responsibility and fairness to the residents will not endear you to the city employees. But we did not elect you for the purpose of continuing prior bad practices so that you can be popular with the city employees. We elected you to do what’s right for the residents, and that does not include overpaying in order to keep the city employees happy.

“Looking Back: 40 years later – where were you during Nixon’s Resignation?” [Issue #775]

Loved the article Looking Back: 40 years later – Nixon’s Resignation. A few of the article’s contributors were my contemporaries from Beverly High. I was just recalling last weekend that I was summiting Mt. Rainier (first of two times) on Aug. 9 [1974]. We had left Paradise Lodge where they had a photo of Nixon on the wall (i.e., Rainier National Park). When we finally got down off the mountain, the photo was gone. Who knew?

City Council approves two percent water rate increase

The City Council approved a two percent water rate increase with a 4 – 1 vote on August 5.

Councilmember John Mirisch dissented.

“I’m glad that we’re not increasing as much as we have in past years,” Mirisch said. “That being said I think we need a rate increase vacation.”

The Metropolitan Water District recently voted to increase wholesale water rates by 3.6 percent for the 2014 – 2015 fiscal year. The Public Works Commission recommended to offset some of the consumer costs by using reserve funds, resulting in a two percent water rate increase to the city. This amounts to approximately $4.50 a month to residential consumers, according to a statement released by the city.

Utility Manager Trish Rhay said that the two percent water rate increase will only be for 2014 – 2015 in anticipation of a water enterprise plan that will outline water investments for the city, as well as taking into account future water conservation impacts.

There will be a penalty fee for not meeting the watering schedule or for overwatering. Residents north of Santa Monica Boulevard can water their yards only Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays. Residents south of Santa Monica can water on Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Saturdays. Between 9:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m. and on Sundays, watering is prohibited.

3/5’s Drama position reinstated

The Board of Education unanimously approved Theatre Operations Specialist Annie Terry to take on a 3/5 certificated assignment as Beverly High’s second drama teacher and a 2/5 classified assignment as a theater operations specialist.

“We need Annie in a half-time [certificated] position,” Beverly High drama teacher Brad Vincent said. “I believe we need to [eventually] restore this position to be full time like it used to be.”

Terry will hold both a certificated and a classified position, which is unusual.

“With every personnel decision that’s made, BHEA will take a look at it and see if the contract was followed,” BHEA President Telly Tse said. “While our top priority is to make sure that our rights are protected and that jobs should stay with certificated teachers, we are definitely open to the flexible solutions that the district sometimes needs to make.”

Tse said that along with taking into consideration if contract terms are being fulfilled and if the hiring process was followed correctly, BHEA also considers if a certificated position was being filled for the students’ benefit as well.

“We also take a look at the big picture and decide, were they doing this for the students’ benefit? Was there a unique situation tied to this? Or is it something we need to look at to protect our members?” Tse said. “We definitely want them to know that this is not meant to be a precedent situation.”

Vincent told the Board that he and Terry have planned the 2014 - 2015 theatre season at Beverly High to include an annual Shakespeare production in September, to be named in honor of the late former drama teacher (1964 – 85) John Ingle, a fall and winter play, a spring musical, and a children’s theatre tour in the spring.

“Our goal is that our students are two years above grade level than their peers across the state or across the nation,” Vincent told the Board. “Some of [the students] are going to go straight into a career, make very good money, and have a very exciting life traveling the world in shows. Some of them are going to college. Wherever they go they need to be the absolute top candidate. That’s what Annie and I are committed to doing.”

Vincent mentioned that though Beverly High has three professionally sized theatres, the technical equipment is not comparable to theatre standards. Advanced software and advanced hardware will enable students to pursue careers outside of theatre, according to Vincent.

In addition to having a full time theatre specialist to maintain the performance spaces, Vincent recommended hiring scenic, lighting, and sound designer specialists.

“Theatre is about engineering, theatre is about specialists,” Vincent said. “Those skills are easily transferable to engineering and architectural fields. These kids need to be working with industry specialists in order for them to get the best absolute training.”

Board member Howard Goldstein asked Vincent to create a plan and to work with the human resources department to see what kind of budget the Performing Arts program needs to upgrade its technological features and to hire additional specialists

Vincent mentioned that there are grants and funds that are available to help fund the positions and performing arts activities that “people use throughout the country for those who know its there and have a program worthy of it.”

“It’s a department of excellence,” Terry said. “I really believe that the two of us can do that together; to make us a nationally famous department rivaling [other] schools of performing arts.”

Vincent was previously Laguardia High School of Music and Art and Performing Arts’ theatre assistant principal in New York, and has taught undergraduate and graduate courses for New York University and the University of Texas at Austin. He has served as a Theatre Director or Technical Director for four public high schools and produced close to 100 plays and musicals with students and has developed curriculum and instruction for 30 different courses.

The BHUSD started off the school year with 4,153 students as of August 12, down slightly from 4,261 students last year in August.

The Board of Education’s 2010 decision to phase out the opportunity permits program has led to a lower total student population. At the same time, since BHUSD is a basic aid district, which means funding comes from local property tax, the State of California doesn’t pay the district per pupil, as in an ADA district.

The district has currently issued 212 total permits, which include 115 permits for district faculty/staff, 37 permits for city employees, and 60 permits assigned to other students, which include continuous enrollment through their senior year for students who moved out of the district.

For the 2014 – 2015 school year, the only new permits issued were for children of Beverly Hills city employees or BHUSD faculty/staff, according to the BHUSD website.

Horace Mann has kept enrollment low due to ongoing construction.

Chief Administrative Officer Dawnalyn Murakawa-Leopard said that the BHUSD will still be enrolling students daily, so the numbers may change.

City to cover half the cost of BHUSD’s campus security program

The City Council approved funding half of the BHUSD’s campus security program, Evidence Based, Inc. (EBI), cost for one year at the August 5 study session.

Total cost to EBI with a contract term from January 1 to June 30, 2015, amounts to $881,423. Total cost to the city would be $440,712 per year, which for the next three years would be $1,322,135 and would come from the general fund reserves.

Though the City Council was in favor of a one-year contract as opposed to a three-year contract to share half of EBI’s cost, a few council members expressed concerns on the program.

BHUSD legal expenditures for the fourth fiscal year quarter (second quarter calendar year) representing the period from April 1, 2014 to June 30, 2014 totaled $2,885,852.60, paid to various law firms, as of August 13. The total legal fees for the fiscal year from July 1, 2013 to June 30, 2014 amount to $4,376,864.48, as of yesterday.

To put these numbers in context, Las Virgenes Unified School District's legal fees, which has almost triple the number of students as BHUSD, for the entire 2012-2013 school year totaled $676,000, including special education and general legal fees.

Currently the district is still adjusting legal fees with late invoices and more accurate legal fees should be available by the end of August, according to Budget and Food Services Executive Director Mary Anne McCabe.

General Counsel Vincent Ewing's fees are reflected through the law firm, Alvarez Glasman & Colvin.

Venable represented the district in the NEPA case against the Federal Transit Administration, which pertains to Purple Line extension that would require tunneling underneath Beverly High. Venable was replaced by Kasowitz, Benson, Torres & Friedman in Sept. 2013. Quinn Emanuel represents the district in the litigation involving former BHUSD Facilities Director Karen Christiansen. Quinn Emanuel was replaced by Greenburg Glusker in June 2014. Hill Farrer & Burrill, LLP represents the district in the CEQA case against Metro in opposition to the Purple Line extension route. Murphy & Evertz, LLP replaced Hill Farrer & Burrill, LLP in January 2014. Gibeaut, Mahan & Briscoe is retained as an insurance company panel counsel as part of the district's risk management program to handle small claims. Best Best & Krieger is retained to handle general counsel affairs, such as bond funds and bond projects. Rutan & Tucker was retained for an independent investigation on a classified, draft report that was leaked to the LA Times. Haight, Brown & Bonesteel is retained for oil relations. Hawkins Delafield & Wood LLP is retained for fiscal information. Atkinson, Andelson, Loya, Ruud and Romo is retained for human resource matters. Lozano Smith, LLP was retained for an independent investigation on the Sports Academy.

"The idea of somebody walking around with a gun on campus disturbs me enormously," Council member Nancy Krasne said. "I'm wondering if the money would be better spent on counselors and psychologists that would go through and assess the students on a regular basis."

Krasne was concerned that having an armed officer on campus would provide an opportunity for individuals on the campus to have access to a gun.

Board of Education President Noah Margo said that after some budget cuts were restored, psychologists were reinstated at each school site and a new position for a dean of college admissions was filled to allow students more face-time with other counselors.

"The effectiveness of having some sort of presence on campus is immeasurable," Margo said. "The comments and feedbacks, the appreciation for all of us concerning ourselves with our children's safety are some of the things that drive the continuation of this program."

Councilmember Willie Brien questioned the amount of officers necessary for the program. The contract proposes one supervisor, with one security officer at each school site with the exception of the high school, which will have two officers to cover the whole campus.

"Some of the major incidences in the U.S. in the last couple of years have occurred with armed officers on campus," Brien said. "They may have mitigated the potential number of deaths, but it does not appear that way because when the police department and SWAT arrived most things were over at that point."

EBI Vice President Joe Chirillo, a retired BHPD officer, said that in active shooter situations, the event is over quicker once the suspect is confronted, and having a security resource officer (SRO) on site will reach the suspect faster than the police department.

Brien gave examples of larger school districts with SRO programs, such as Newport Mesa who has shared funding with their city, and Santa Monica-Malibu who doesn't have shared funding with their city, yet both districts have two SROs. Manhattan Beach has no shared funding and is smaller than BHUSD and has no shared funding.

"We're putting quite a few people on our campuses, I'd like to understand how that perspective works," Brien said.

Brien said that the BHUSD receives funding from their general fund, $10 million in joint powers funding from the city, donations from the Beverly Hills Education Foundation, and a $10 million endowment fund.

"I do believe that when the city gives money to the school district for anything, that the community has some right to know where other funds are being spent," Brien said. "Why is the city being asked to pay another $400,000 per year when you have a $10 million endowment fund? I'd like to know your plans for that endowment fund and what your reserves are."

Historically, until the fiscal year 2008 to 2009, the BHPD provided trained school resource officers at each BHUSD school. The cost for the BHPD school security program, which included one sergeant and five police officers, totaled approximately $1 million per year. Due to budget cuts and shortage of active officers, the SRO program was discontinued in the fiscal year 2011 to 2012.

According to Captain Mark Rosen with the BHPD, in 2008 to 2009 there were 140 active officers, but due to previous budget cuts and recent retirements, the force now has 105 active officers, which excludes disabled and injured officers.

"It's not a matter of money, we can't provide the function," Rosen said at the meeting. "With our current growth and retirement, we don't anticipate being at full strength within [three years]."

Vice Mayor Julian Gold said that though he prefers the BHPD to operate the SRO program, since the program was historically paid for by the city then it "makes some sense" for the city to share in the cost of the EBI program. By paying for half the cost, Gold proposed that the city should be able to co-manage the contract and asked for more information on where the money is going towards, in terms of hourly pay and exact costs incurred through the program.

"It is our responsibility now to provide and help provide for a safe environment," Mayor Lili Bosse said. "If there are ever any issues in the schools, our fire will be there, our police will be there, [and] our community will rally behind. We need to do whatever we can on the onset to ensure the safety of our schools."

Roll over collision on Olympic and Crescent

A collision involving an SUV and a four-door vehicle occurred at the intersection of Olympic Boulevard and Crescent Drive on Monday at approximately 7:40 a.m., causing the SUV to overturn.

"The dynamics of the crash lifted one end of [the SUV] and the speed in relationship to the way it was hit caused it to topple over," acting BHPD information officer Kurt Haefs said.

The driver of the SUV sustained injuries and was transported to Cedars-Sinai Hospital for treatment, according to a press release. He is currently in stable condition.

The cause of the accident is still under investigation by the BHPD traffic bureau.

Designs conditionally approved for 308 North Elm Drive

The Design Review Commission conditionally approved an Italianate design for a two-story, single family residence at 308 North Elm Drive with a 4 – 0 vote on August 7.

Commission Ilene Nathan was absent.

The project architect Ben Borukhim presented a second image at the end of the meeting, which showed the project with no quoins, which are decorative blocks that enhance corners of a building, and a continuous roofline.

Though Borukhim originally stated that the quoins added character to the house and the continuous roofline seemed to increase the perception of bulk and mass of the project, the commission preferred the second image.

Conditions included that the colors should be lighter colors, have the French doors moved from the second floor to the first floor, and to follow Italianate design better, smaller windows should be added to the second floor and larger windows on the first, and the first floor should be higher than the second floor.

The first image that Borukhim presented to the commission (shown above) at the beginning of the meeting was not approved, and Chair John Wyka said that unless a completely new design was presented before the commission, the project was not going to be approved.

“If your clients are really wedded to this and they want to proceed [with this design], what we can do is offer to not approve this and you can appeal to the Planning Commission,” Wyka said.

Though Borukhim addressed the concerns of the commission from the previous hearing on July 8, with the exception of having a continuous roofline, the commission was still against the boxy appearance.

“It goes exactly border to border on the boundary lines and it has no grace, there’s no detail, [and] there’s no elegance in the finish,” Vice Chair Arlene Pepp said.

Out of eight projects that were presented to the Design Review Commission, Borukhim was the architect for half of the projects.

“They all look very similar,” Commission Susan Strauss said. “Give us something that will make the neighborhood look a little more alive. If all these houses start to look the same, I don’t think it’s the best thing for the streetscape in the City of Beverly Hills.”

Borukhim said that though this particular project looks different than his other projects, he does see some resemblance in his other projects.

“At the end of the day I do have clients that are looking for a certain look,” Borukhim said. “We do our best to articulate them differently and produce different projects to be a little creative.”

Wyka said that though he still believes the design has too many heavy elements, he still understands Borukhim’s position.

“I’m an architect, and I understand clients have a certain idea of what the house should be and you do your best to accommodate them,” Wyka said. “If you don’t you might find yourself with less clients down the road.”

Highly ranked center transfers to Beverly High

Chance Comanche, a 6-foot-11 center ranked 87th on ESPN’s list of the top high school boys’ basketball players in the class of 2015, has transferred to Beverly High, coach Jarvis Turner confirmed Wednesday.

“Him and his family moved into the area,” Turner said. “We’re extremely lucky he moved into our area.”

Turner said he did not talk with Comanche’s parents before they moved.

Comanche helped lead View Park High to the championship of the Los Angeles City Section’s Division V, the division for its smallest schools.

View Park, a charter high school in South Los Angeles that opened in 2003, advanced to the state tournament’s Division V Southern California regional final, where it lost to Renaissance Academy.

Comanche has received scholarship offers from UCLA, NCAA champion Connecticut, Arizona and Oregon, Turner said. NCAA rules prohibit college coaches to discuss players they are recruiting until they sign a letter of intent.

“For his size he has a great touch and a great feel for the game,” Turner said.

“He can really shoot the basketball from about 16, 17 feet. He finishes pretty much everything around the basket. He catches the basketball. He can run the floor. At that size, (and) the ability to do all of that makes him pretty special.”

Turner said it will take time for Comanche to become acclimated to his new teammates and the team’s style and for them to become acclimated to him.

The Los Angeles Times was the first to report on Comanche’s transfer.

Beverly High alum starts for Seahawks in preseason opener

Caylin Hauptmann, a 2009 Beverly High graduate, started at left guard for the Seattle Seahawks in the Super Bowl champions’ preseason opener last Thursday at Denver.

The 6-foot-3, 300-pound Hauptmann was shifted from offensive tackle after starter James Carpenter was sidelined by a knee injury.

The Seahawks signed Hauptmann from the Cleveland Browns practice squad Sept. 23 after they placed offensive tackle Russell Okung on the injured reserve/designated to return list because of an injured toe.

Hauptmann was on the active roster for three regular-season games with Seattle last season, but did not play. He was not on the active roster in the Super Bowl or the Seahawks’ other postseason games.

CITY EMPLOYEES, TEACHERS TO RECEIVE RAISES

But how much is too much?

Proposed salary increases

2015 - 2016	1%	3%	3%
2016 - 2017	-	3%	3%

• The City of Beverly Hills will enter into another negotiation process with the five employee bargaining units in 2015 for the next contract cycle. The current salary increases will be only for 2014 - 2015 and 2015 - 2016.

• Beverly Hills Education Association (BHEA) certificated and classified members percentage salary increases for 2014 - 2015 and 2015 - 2016 are projections.

Both city employees and BHUSD certificated and classified teachers will receive salary increases within the year.

The City Council approved the memorandum of agreements for city employees belonging to five bargaining groups with a 4 - 1 vote Tuesday night, which increases employee salaries by 10 percent in the first year, and 1 percent in the second year, caps health coverage to a fixed dollar amount as opposed to a health insurance plan, and eliminates salary surveys, which previously determined which employees received a salary increase.

Councilmember John Mirisch was the lone dissenter.

"We have been paying everything up to now," Mirisch said. "We have a problem that is systemic and it's a long-term problem. I really would like to encourage the employees in the bargaining units to be part of a sustainable solution. To solve everything on the back so our residents is just not right."

• The Municipal Employees Association, Safety Support Association, Supervisors Association, and the Confidential Association employees receive city-funded life insurance of $50,000 each; the Management and Professional Employees Association receive life insurance of $100,000 each.

• 157 out of the 428 employees in the five associations would earn an annual base salary of less than $65K after the 11 percent salary increase.

• 219 employees of the 428 in the five associations will earn an annual base salary of less than $65K after the employees pay their 8 percent CalPERS member contribution.

The 10 percent salary increase includes an 8 percent offset to have employees pay 100 percent of their pension plan, as opposed to the having the city pay for the full share. Historically, the City of Beverly Hills has paid for both the employee and employer pension share entirely. The total salary cost over the two years to the city for all five bargaining units would be $919,616.

According to Councilmember Willie Brien, the monthly salary increase would average out to approximately $89 a month, which would be about $3 a day, with some employees receiving a little bit more or less of that amount.

The City of Beverly Hills' lead negotiator Peter Brown said that the Pension Reform Act does not mandate that the employees pay anything, but that they are legislative goals. By 2018, all California public employees will pay half the normal cost, with 8 percent being the maximum percentage, to contribute towards their pension plans.

After the City Council voted down the MOUs on June 24 with a 3 - 2 vote, the bargaining units were offered a 13 percent salary increase with a four-year contract, with all the other terms staying the same, on July 2. The bargaining units rejected the new contract, and were then offered the same MOU that was previously agreed upon by the City and the employee bargaining units. By approving a two-year contract, the bargaining units will enter into negotiations again in 2015.

"Unfortunately, they get a sense of entitlement that they can get more next year," Mirisch said.

Brown mentioned that if there was an offer that all the associated parties had agreed to, then those terms would set the baseline, and there could be no regressive bargaining.

WANDA GROUP TO INVEST $1.2 BILLION INTO 9900

Entitlements to expire in 2016

By Nancy Yeang

China commercial property developer Wanda Group announced Friday that it purchased 9900 Wilshire and will invest $1.2 billion to build a mixed-use development.

"The Los Angeles project is expected to aid in China's entry into Hollywood's film industry and generally promote Chinese culture abroad," according to the company's statement.

Wanda Group handles commercial property, luxury hotels, culture and tourism, and department stores. It acquired the U.S.-based AMC Theatres chain for $2.6 billion in 2012.

In 2013, the company's assets totaled $62.8 billion dollars, with an annual income of $30.8 billion, and their net profits exceeded $2.06 billion, according to the company's website. Chairman Wang Jianlin was named the richest man in China according to Forbes.

9900 Wilshire will become the company's second U.S. office. The New York office will handle its commercial investments, while the Beverly Hills office will become headquarters for the company's entertainment sector, which includes investments in local film production companies or global theatrical releases, according to the statement.

Previous plans approved for 9900 Wilshire

The Beverly Hills project will bring Wanda Group closer to Hollywood's film industry to help support the Group's Qingdao Oriental Movie Metropolis and Qingdao International Film Festival projects in China, according to the statement.

Though the City of Beverly Hills has yet to receive any plans or held any discussions with Wanda Group as of Monday, the entitlements for 9900 Wilshire will expire on December 18, 2016, according to Community Development and Planning Assistant Director Jonathan Lait.

"If somebody is looking to make a significant departure from what was approved, they would

The renegotiated contract could not offer anything less than what was offered before, otherwise it would be considered “an unfair labor practice.”

“If during the public comment period, the City Council were to receive comments that criticize the MOUs, the council cannot engage in any regressive bargaining, meaning that the terms of what was proposed were going back,” Brown said.

Total spending for the city in the budgeted year is $414 million, with $178 million coming from the general fund, and the city anticipates revenue of $197 million, with an additional $424 million in reserve funds, according to Vice Mayor Julian Gold.

“It’s not to suggest in any sense that salary should be tied to any of those numbers,” Gold said. “But it’s the dispel the sense that these increases in salary are inflationary, or we’re spending money we do not have, or [that] we’re deficit spending.”

Across town, the Board of Education unanimously approved tentative contracts for BHEA certificated and classified members that ties salary increases to property tax revenues and other high-paying LA County districts.

“The idea is that [property tax revenues and salary raises] are linked so that the district can maintain financial stability by having a certain proportion or a fixed ratio [of the revenues] go towards salaries,” former BHEA president Chris Bushee said.

Based upon a formula agreed upon by the district and the BHEA members, when there is an increase in property tax revenues, a percentage of it will be designated to the members’ salary using that formula. The contract prevents salary cuts by designating a zero percent salary increase when revenues decrease or stay stagnant.

BHEA President Telly Tse

“Schools are one of the absolute necessities in building a great community,” Board of Education president Noah Margo said at a meeting on August 8. “Great communities define property values [and] property values will now define salary.”

For the 2014 - 2015 school year, 70 percent of the property tax revenue will go towards the certificated employees and will result in a guaranteed 5.16 percent salary raise, according to BHEA president Telly Tse. The second year will divert 65 percent of the revenues, which would approximate to a 3 percent increase, and for the third year and every year after that, 55 percent of the revenue will be diverted towards salaries, which would approximate to another 3 percent increase.

“To me, it’s a gesture from the district office wanting to make this a priority,” Tse said. “It’s an acknowledgement of doing something immediate that benefits teachers, and then we can bring the percentage closer to 50 percent so that there’s an even benefit for the district and the teachers.”

Across LA County, there are approximately 50 school districts. By using the highest paid salary in each district, if another district is paying a higher salary than the BHUSD, then the certificated faculty will receive a salary raise. When the BHUSD eventually has the highest salary in comparison to the other districts, then there will be a freeze on the salary raise until another school district surpasses the pay.

“It will take a few years to [be the highest paid district] because there are still several districts that are more competitive than us,” Bushee said. “But again, we’re the only basic aid district in LA County. Basic aid districts have historically received better or more revenue than non-basic aid districts, so we’re hoping that it won’t take very long at all for us to achieve our goal.”

There is no monetary cap on raises for the members’ salary, only limitations on when the formula can go into effect to increase BHEA members’ salary, according to Tse.

“While many working in the teaching profession cite intangible rewards as reasons for staying in the profession, concrete remunerations such as salary, benefits and working conditions are inexplicably linked to tracking, developing and retaining highly qualified teachers,” Board of Education member Howard Goldstein said at the meeting.

Approximately 85 percent of the BHEA members who voted agreed with the contract stipulations with 193 certificated members approving the contract and 33 against, according to Tse. The other members didn’t vote.

Other contract terms included an additional method for job performance evaluations and an increase of $250 per year per active employee towards health payments. For the 2014 to 2015 school year the benefits cap will be $7,250, and the 2015 to 2016 school year will be $7,500.

A BHEA member who has one or two dependents pays thousands of dollars per year out of pocket, according to Tse. BHEA members have the option to buy life insurance, though the district does not pay for it, nor is it included with the health benefits, as is the case with city employees.

“We want to improve our health benefits and we have to explore where that money is coming from,” Tse said. “It’s not just going to come out of nowhere. The district has to look at their cost and lost. We’re aware of the bigger picture and we want to work with the district to find a way to improve benefits for teachers without hurting teachers in other areas

BHUSD Finance Committee member Terry White mentioned that though the Board and district staff does not consult the committee on the salary increases, the committee did discuss the possible scenarios involving property tax revenue increase or decrease.

“My personal comment, which is not a view of the committee necessarily, is that it’s not how do you deal with the [BHEA member] salaries, it’s how do you pay for it?” Finance Committee member Terry White said. “I’m not sure if in certain circumstances it could restrict the district’s options in terms of managing itself. It may have unintended consequences if they have to cut expenses elsewhere or even if they have to cut staff, because you can’t pay for things you don’t have the money for. Right now they do, and that’s terrific, but you’ll never know what’s going to happen in the future.”

The district and the BHEA have the option of looking over the contract at the beginning of every school year, Tse said.

“The BHUSD and BHEA can decide that there are certain things they don’t want to do anymore, even something that was agreed upon a year ago,” Tse said. “In that sense, these kind of things can change. But I believe both sides are committed to this for at least the next three years.”

have to go through a similar review process that it had gone through before,” Lait said.

The review process could include a re-hearing in front of the City Council or the appropriate commission, depending on what Wanda Group would propose for the eight-acre site compared to what was already approved. A new Environmental Impact Report may also be required if the project changes in a way that was not previously studied or contemplated, according to Lait.

“For example, if they’re talking about a new office building that was not contemplated before, then they may require a more formal review,” Lait said. “If they come back and do exactly what [9900 Wilshire] got approval for, then they wouldn’t have to go through any other kind of additional review.”

The approved plans for 9900 Wilshire included commercial and residential uses. The residential component includes 235 units spread between two towers with the north tower at 161 feet in height and the South tower at 185 feet in height. The commercial space was approved for retail and indoor and outdoor dining, with 522 hotel rooms permitted on-site.

In order for the entitlements to be valid before they expire, the project would need building permits from the city, which may take up to several months to be approve at the staff level, according to Lait.

If 9900 Wilshire does not obtain the permits prior to the entitlement expiration, the project is allowed up to three, one-year extensions, which may be approved by the City. The first extension fee paid to the city, which does not include their legal fees, is $500,000, $750,000 for the second extension, and $1 million for the third extension.

In 2008, the State of California enacted a law that extended land-use permits for one or more years to assist real-estate development projects that were approved during a certain time period, which may have buckled during the recession. 9900 Wilshire’s entitlements benefited from the extension, as did the Waldorf Astoria Beverly Hills project, according to Lait. 9900 Wilshire has yet to extend its entitlements under the fee provision.

The former Robinson’s May building, which was recently demolished, was bought by New Pacific Reality in 2003 for $33.5 million. British developer Candy & Candy bought the site for $500 million in 2007. Development plans were approved in 2008, but lender of the project at the time, Mexico’s Bank

Imbursa, foreclosed on the project in 2010. A Hong Kong-based private equity group, Joint Treasure International Ltd., bought the site for $148.3 million.

Wanda Group won the bid out of ten other bidders for an undisclosed amount.

According to CBRE Vice President Laurie Lustig-Bower, 9900 Wilshire has not been officially sold as of Monday, and the payment will take “a month or so” to be officially transferred over.

“We’ll have a better sense of what the path forward is once we know what it is somebody is interested in doing,” Lait said.

“If they’re talking about a new office building that was not contemplated before, then they may require a more formal review. If they come back and do exactly what [9900 Wilshire] got approval for, then they wouldn’t have to go through any other kind of additional review”
