“Remembering Vivian Saatjian-Green”

Vivian Saatjian-Green earned the plaudits of the entire Beverly Hills school community because she was an outstanding educator. I was privileged to work with Vivian for many years. Her laser-like focus as Director of Guidance allowed her to meet the needs of countless students whose lives she impacted. Problems and challenges for Vivian were opportunities. In the many meetings with her I found a commitment, passion and ability to work through student issues, to set higher standards and norms, and to assist families as they dealt with the rite of passage from high school to college. All of us owe her a well-deserved gratitude for making our lives better and demonstrating how to travel the road of educational excellence. Even after retirement she and her husband Howard graciously opened their home for an annual B.H.H.S. faculty reunion testifying to the central role she played in our lives. We will miss this kind, caring and giving educator.

Marilyn and I send our love and condolences to Howard and the entire family.

“City Details Policy Options for Rent Stabilization” [Issue 986]

The City Council has repeatedly stated that it held the seven Facilitated Dialogue sessions in 2017 (and two in 2018), and countless City Council meetings to understand the problem (after the RSO had been enacted). However, when the housing providers spent six months gathering the data and analyzing it -- a task the City could and should have done before it enacted the RSO -- and then presented the data to the City and to HR&A Consultants, they were informed that the “ship had already sailed” and that the analysis was beyond the scope of HR&A’s work.

So from the start, one might reasonably conclude that the City was not really interested in the data we uncovered or its implications.

Nevertheless, arguments were raised in the two recent Facilitated Dialogues, which we think should be examined.

First, the RSO was properly enacted and based on an “emergency”: rising rents and evictions. The problem with this argument, as shown above, is that there simply is no data (however defined) to support it. Argument yes, data no.

Second, there is data but it was not recorded. I call that the Tip of the Iceberg Argument. In other words, there is data, you just can’t see it like the iceberg below the water line. Some tenants spoke of their memories of massive numbers of evictions that were not recorded Adjudicated as a newspaper of general circulation for the County of Los Angeles. Case # BS065841 of the Los Angeles Superior Court, on November 30, 2000.

OUR DATA SPEAKS VOLUMES

or of rapid rent rises. The problem with this argument is that it applies to whatever data is considered. Tenants can always argue that the data is in error because it omits or undercounts cases. Without proof of such omissions or undercounts, however, it is nothing more and nothing less than an argument. The City needs data, not more arguments.

The point is illustrated by an ancient maxim: The faintest ink is better than the strongest memory. Anyone can say (and believe) anything. The question is: how to evaluate memories when data is or could have been made available. Without actual proof – and there was none of which eviction cases and/or illegal rent rise cases were actually unrecorded – it is difficult if not impossible to weigh in the balance the data where there was proof (as we demonstrated with the CE data above) and where there was no proof, just allegations.

There is a reason that Beverly Hills has Code Enforcement (CE). It is primarily for tenants' benefit so they can report and have their claims investigated and resolved. It would be anomalous in the extreme to give as much weight to data that is lacking as to data where there is proof and data. What's the point of having a process that gathers the data if the City Council is going to ignore the data?

As long as the City maintains a process to handle, investigate, process, and rule on complaints, surely the City cannot give the same weight to those complaints which allegedly are not lodged with the City. Why? For all the reasons above but there is a much more important reason. What would incentivize any tenant to lodge such a complaint if he/she knew in advance that it wouldn't matter whether their complaint(s), whether or not lodged, were counted in the same way?

Third, tenants fear to report complaints because they believe that housing providers may retaliate against them. Even if you concede that a small number of tenants fear retaliation, and even if you assume that housing providers are in the eviction business rather than in the business of providing housing, what is one to make of this argument without any data (who did not file a complaint with CE? Why did they not file? Did the complaints have any merit?).

At bottom, it is still only argument.

The argument is based on what was told to the Human Resources Commission ("HRC") in the period prior to the enactment of the RSO. Of course, the HRC did not keep any records or information that would corroborate the claims of fear of retaliation. Mr. Selvern, the HR&A official who has led the Facilitated Dialogues and who claimed in the first session that he was sure that most of the claims were not recorded (but who has failed to respond to an inquiry asking him to produce support for his statement) was not even hired by the City until after the RSO was enacted so his knowledge was based on some other undisclosed source. It is not as if the HRC has not had a full opportunity to test even now – whether there was a factual basis for the three arguments in favor of the enactment of the RSO (rising rents, rising evictions, inadequate regulations).

The HRC has had almost two months to rebut the arguments and gather data in support of the fear of retaliation. Even if there were some fears of retaliation communicated to the HRC, we have no idea and no support for the nature, quantity, or quality of such complaints (Was there one or many? Did they all have equal merit?). And, even if we knew the nature and quality of such fear of retaliation arguments, what would be the basis to give as much credence and weight to such complaints as to those complaints that were in fact investigated by CE?

Ultimately, the fear of retaliation arguments also overlooks a few simple points. Tenants who were actually in the midst of eviction proceedings presumably had no legitimate fear of retaliation. What would their fear have been? That they would be evicted? And how many of the tenants who stated they had fears of retaliation were in fact "bad" tenants (e.g. tenants who disturbed the quiet enjoyment of other tenants and who were told by their landlord that they would be evicted unless they behaved?). That is precisely the reason to maintain no fault or just cause evictions.

Given that the City has and will continue to spend significant sums of money there's no reason that the City could not send out a confidential form to tenants asking them to report on issues, which they allegedly failed to report out of fear of retaliation. The responses could be kept confidential just as reports to police and Code Enforcement are kept confidential. In the latter regard, we note that the data we received from CE was appropriately redacted so tenants' names were not disclosed. And there is a significant reason to do this if the City is really interested in gathering data.

The reality probably is that there are some housing providers who have acted badly (raising rents above the 10% limit, evicting some who did not deserve to be evicted, failing to repair air conditioning units) just as there are tenants who have acted badly (greatly disturbing the peace of their fellow tenants and driving some to threaten that they will leave unless the landlord evicts the bad tenant). But there is no data for any of this, and certainly no data that supports the notion that there was an emergency in 2017 or now.

There has been no showing or proof why some tenants filed complaints with CE while others, unidentified, did not, nor any argument as to why tenants who did not file complaints with CE should be given the same (or even more) consideration as those tenants who did file complaints.

The Facilitated Dialogues have a whole series of issues (relocation fees, no cause evictions, Ellis Act, habitability standard, banking of annual general adjustments, exemption of properties with 4 units or less, rent increase application process, and maximum allowable annual rent increases) and a plethora of "options" to consider under each issue. But, all of these issues and options can and should be considered honestly, openly, and in an intellectually honest way if the City Council deals with the first and most important issue: Was there/is there data that supports the RSO as amended in 2017? If the City Council concludes as we have done – based on an examination of the data – that there is no such support, the City Council will and should conclude that its 2017 RSO amendments were made in error.

BHUSD Faculty/Staff Speak Out at Board of Education Meeting

Dozens of BHUSD faculty and staff members spoke out against changing the current salary formula for teachers at the Board of Education's meeting on August 28, arguing that ongoing negotiations between the two parties showed a lack of appreciation for educators in Beverly Hills.

Christopher Bushee, a Beverly Hills High School science teacher and a member of the negotiations team for the Beverly Hills Education Association (BHEA), said that the salary formula was not the reason for the district's financial strain. Instead, he said the District Office administration was to blame.

"There is no financial doom and gloom coming," Bushee said. "Our financial reserves have never been higher than they are right now. Simply put, the salary formula fits nicely into the budget and is not a source of fiscal drain. If the district is worried about its finances, it should consider scaling back the ever-increasing bloat of District Office administration in a school district that is undergoing declining enrollment."

Bushee also addressed healthcare during his speech, something that appeared to be of particular concern for BHEA members present at the meeting.

"It should be no secret that healthcare costs are skyrocketing for teachers and with the District's very poor contribution rate to our healthcare, teachers wonder how much the district really cares about our well-being," he said. "The district would need to increase its annual contribution to healthcare by $6,000 just to make it to the median contribution level in the county."

Alexis Crane, a STEM teacher at Hawthorne, shared a personal story about the impact a lack of dependent healthcare has had on her family.

"This year alone I'll pay $10,000 out of pocket for my infant daughter's healthcare," Crane said. "That's ten percent of my income. If you can't imagine that, imagine lopping off a zero at the end of your annual income. That's why teachers are fighting for our salaries."

Beverly Hills Board of Education at August 28 meeting

Other issues brought before the board by BHEA members included class size, which teachers said they feared would reach a 29:1 ratio, teachers being forced to purchase their own classroom supplies, teachers completing maintenance requests and purchasing equipment to do so, and what Beverly High science teacher Lisa Dickens said was a depleted science budget.

"I spend hundreds of dollars in my classroom every year because I've been told repeatedly that the science budget at my school is zero dollars. I teach in Beverly Hills," Dickens said. "Come back to the table and bargain with us in good faith. Let your teachers know they are worth more than zero dollars."

Work-to-Rule, a union-recommended tactic that encourages teachers to pause outside-of-work activities like writing college recommendation letter and after-school tutoring, also came up during the meeting when parent Julie Macht addressed the Board.

"I'm so disappointed in this Board and the education my kids have received. Parents are furious that we got here. Kids are furious because they can't get letters of recommendation for college," Macht said before turning to look at the teachers and address them directly. "If you're going to strike, do it now. Do it before my kids really have to start looking into college. I've trusted this district would come through for my family, and time and time again it has not."

In an attempt to further explain the district's position on the salary formula, Board member Mel Spitz spoke directly to the union members present at the meeting.

"There is a disagreement in regard to the budget and what we can afford. I want to tell you that in the latest LACOE financial report our district and teacher payroll per ADA was $62,000," Spitz said. "I looked at five nearby, high-performing surrounding districts and their average is $42,000. Why is ours so much more? It's because we're overstaffed. When we fix that our budget will be right and we'll be able to work with you a little more and do a little more."

Spitz's suggested solution – ending the district's overstaffing problem, as he called it – resulted in many teachers leaving the meeting altogether. After their departure, Board president Lisa Korbatov spoke on the issue and said she regretted ever voting in support of the salary formula because it resulted in an inability to negotiate and greater "disrespect" for the Board.

"I regret voting for the salary formula for one reason only. I thought it'd stop some of the fighting and bickering, but it didn't. It has only gotten worse. Now it's gotten to be that any time we ask for anything the union hands us a bill," Korbatov said. "It took away the natural give and take of negotiations. People come here and attack and insult us. I've sacrificed to be here. You have no idea how I've bent over backwards for teachers. So, I leave this place guilt free. I have enormous gratitude and respect for teachers, but I regret my vote. We could've given these raises within the normal negotiations without disturbing the flow."

Shooshani Negligence Case to Go to Trial

The parents of Brandon Gonzalez, a 21-year-old man killed in West Hollywood in 2015, are suing Beverly Hills Planning Commissioner Farshid "Joe" Shooshani for negligence they allege caused the wrongful death of their son.

Others named as defendants alongside Shooshani include Shooshani Developers, LLC, Bobco Metals LLC, BigRentz, Inc., Mako Equipment, LLC and the City of West Hollywood.

According to the complaint filed by attorneys representing Edward and Maritza Maldonado, Gonzalez was driving a Toyota Prius eastbound on the 8400 block of Sunset Boulevard within the city limits of West Hollywood on April 27, 2015 when his car slammed into a JLG lift parked on the side of the boulevard. The vehicle caught fire and Gonzalez was transported to and later died at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center.

The lift in question was being used to change out signage in front of Shooshani's 8410 Sunset Boulevard commercial property when Gonzalez's car collided with it. His parents' attorneys allege that the lift was 17 times the weight permitted by code and that its tires illegally extended 12 inches into the rightmost lane of traffic, effectively turning a two-lane street into a one-lane street. They also claim that the encroachment permit allowing the lift to park on the street from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. had expired the day before the incident and, even then, would not have allowed the lift to be parked on the street over night.

No cones, reflectors, barriers, lights, or other devices used to alert drivers of the lift were in place, according to the complaint.

"If Defendants had followed the law, Brandon Gonzalez would not have died. If they complied with their own encroachment permit or made any effort to increase the visibility of the tire that was obstructing traffic, Mr. Gonzalez would not have died," Maldonado's attorneys wrote in a case filing on June 18. "These facts are not reasonably in dispute. If not for their negligence in parking the lift when, where, and how they did, this tragic accident never would have occurred."

In a request for summary judgment, attorneys for Shooshani and the other defendants claimed that Gonzalez was impaired at the time of the accident and that his alleged state at the time of the incident negated the negligence claim against them. Attorneys for Gonzalez's family denied this.

"Superseding cause is an affirmative defense that may only be used by a negligent party who would otherwise be liable," they wrote. "It does not prove or disprove the causation element as to the original Defendant. Furthermore, it only applies to actions by third parties. Brandon Gonzalez is not a third party to the wrongful death suit of his estate and sur-

Attorneys assigned by insurance companies are representing Shooshani and the other defendants in this case, however, Shooshani’s personal attorney Michael Collins, who said he has been involved since day one in the lawsuit, told the Weekly that he believes further investigation will show that the defendants did not cause Gonzalez’s death through any of their actions.

“We feel that this is a tragic, tragic accident that is very, very unfortunate,” Collins said. “We have real empathy for the family, but at the same time we feel very confident that, at the end of the day, it will be shown that there were no wrong doing by any of the defendants.”

Ronald Richards, president of the Beverly Hills Hillside Protection Association, recently sent a letter to the City requesting Shooshani’s removal from the Beverly Hills Planning Commission. Attached to the letter was a list of nine reasons why Richards believed Shooshani should be removed, one of which included information pertaining to the lawsuit filed by Gonzalez’s parents.

Other reasons for Shooshani’s removal included in Richards’ letter include the view that Shooshani “repeatedly fails to enforce the General Plan,” alleged “inappropriate or rude behavior” directed at a member of the public, and an alleged conflict of interest.

“Given the nature of this case, it is hard to imagine that this situation would not bias one’s judgment,” Richards wrote in the letter. “Furthermore, it now seems apparent why Mr. Shooshani wants to curry favor with developers for some sort of support as he is one of them.”

Collins said he thought it was important for the people to remember that Shooshani is not a developer and, thus, didn’t have the conflict of interest Richards alleged he might have in the letter.

“I think there’s a misunderstanding that Mr. Shooshani is a developer, and he isn’t. One of the companies that was sued was called Shooshani Developers. Richards has suggested that Shooshani owns those companies but he doesn’t. He’s not affiliated with them in any way. It just happens that people with the same last name own that development company,” Collins said.

“Developers find projects and come up with financing to build townhouses or condos or whatever from that point. Mr. Shooshani doesn’t do that. I think it’s important for the public to understand this because the inference is that he would have a conflict of interest on the Planning Commission because of his being a developer and would, if this were true, want what developers want in terms of making decisions,” Collins continued. “That’s not what he’s doing. It’s not his business or his background. It’s a real stretch to suggest that he has a conflict of interest or bias.”

Beverly High Students Receive 2017-2018 AP Test Scores

The results have come in for Beverly High’s Advanced Placement (AP) testing that took place in May at the conclusion of the 2017-2018 school year.

The AP program allows high school students to complete college-level course work to prepare them for greater academic success and, potentially, to receive college credit for their efforts. AP exams are graded on a scale of 1 to 5, with most colleges and universities accepting scores of 3 or higher for credit, advanced placement, or both.

Students at Beverly High took a total of 1,041 AP exams this year. Of that number, 24 percent scored a five, 28 percent scored a four, 27 percent scored a three, 15 percent scored a two and five percent scored a one.

BHEA Files Unfair Practice Charge Against BHUSD

The Beverly Hills Education Association and its parent organization, the California Teacher’s Association, filed an Unfair Practice Charge against BHUSD

City Clerk Byron Pope and Susan Mishler

Mishler Sworn in as Recreation & Parks Commissioner

City Clerk Byron Pope swore in longtime Beverly Hills resident Susan Mishler as the newest Recreation and Parks Commissioner at the commission’s August 28 meeting, replacing outgoing Commissioner Howard Rosoff.

with the California Public Employees Relations Board on August 22.

In the filing, BHEA alleges, “the Beverly Hills Unified School District (BHUSD) has interfered with, and imposed reprisals on, bargaining unit employees because of the exercise of their rights guaranteed by the Educational Employment Relations Act (EERA). Extraordinarily, the District’s own agents specifically admitted, before witnesses, that the reprisals occurred because of the concerted bargaining activities of the union bargaining team. In its efforts to effectuate these reprisals, the District has enacted unilateral changes to long-standing local site practices and mandatory subjects of bargaining.”

BHEA President Ethan Smith told the Weekly that the changes in question involved moving instructional assistants who’d been “working in their positions for years” into different positions.

“Laura Chism interfered with bargaining members,” Smith said. “She moved instructional assistants who’ve been in their positions for years. We were even told by Jeanne McCrea, the Assistant Principal at the high school, that the reason for the moving of aides was directly due to bargaining, which is against the rules. This is the district engaging in unfair labor practices. They need to stop and do what’s right by working with us rather than against us.”

Smith issued a statement shortly after BHEA and the California Teacher’s Association made the filing calling upon the district to return assistants to their previous assignments.

“We call upon the district to stop retaliating against our teachers and instructional assistants, return the assistants to their normal assignments and provide the instructional assistant support to our teachers they and our students need and are supposed to have.”

BHUSD Superintendent Michael Bregy argued that the district was not engaging in retaliatory actions and that their policies for scheduling and assigning staff has not changed due to negotiations.

“The very same practice has been in place every year for assigning teachers and instructional assistance. Every year, we have the challenge of having to staff the district based on student need. This past summer was not unlike any other when we reviewed student and staffing needs,” Bregy told the Weekly. “Our practices haven’t changed. They’re the same as they’ve always been.”

Constellation Boulevard to Close on September 21

Constellation Boulevard between Century Park East and Avenue of the Stars will be closed for 15 months beginning on Friday, September 21 due to construction associated with the Metro Purple Line Extension.

During the 15-month closure, Metro will build a launch box for the Purple Line Extension tunnel boring machines to be placed prior to digging the twin tunnels for the underground subway through Century City. A work zone will be put in place featuring protective concrete barriers, fencing, and sound blankets and will remain throughout construction.

Public access will be prohibited to the driveway on the north side of Constellation Boulevard, behind Watt Plaza, during construction. Local access will be maintained on eastbound Constellation Boulevard up to the closure for Craft LA Valet and Century Park Towers driveway, and limited access will be available for delivery trucks, waste disposal and construction.

Flaggers will be present during work hours to provide access.

Recreation and Parks Award Given to Music Mends Minds

At its last meeting, the Recreation and Parks Commission presented its commission award to Music Mends Minds and the three individuals, Carol Rosenstein, Myra Lurie and Steven Weinglass, who were key in bringing the weekly program to the Roxbury Park Community Center.

Founded by Carol and Irwin Rosenstein, Music Mends Minds is a nonprofit musical support group for patients with Alzheimer's disease, dementia, Parkinson's, traumatic brain injury, stroke and for Veterans with post-traumatic stress disorder. Currently, the organization boasts 11 active bands worldwide, including its flagship band, "The 5th Dementia" and "Band of Heroes," which performs most often at the Los Angeles Veterans Affairs campus.

Carol and Irwin Rosenstein

Carol Rosenstein currently serves as the organization's Executive Director and brought together the Rotary Club of Beverly Hills and City staff to work collaboratively to form the group for the community. Myra Lurie, who was also honored at the meeting, worked with Rosenstein to ensure that the Rotary Club became involved with the program and teamed up with the City's Community Services Department to offer the program at the Roxbury Park Community Center.

Lurie attends the program each week and greets each of the more than 60 senior adults who attend the classes. Members range in age up to 103 years old and participate by singing along to lyrics and by creating music with drumsticks, maracas and other rhythm instruments.

"Myra wears a lot of hats in the City and she really is one of the biggest assets that we as a City have," Chair Frances Bilak said. "She has given a lot of her time and energy to this community and we wanted to acknowledge and recognize her for doing so."

The commission also recognized Steven Weinglass, another member of the Beverly Hills Rotary Club, for his work with Music Mends Minds.

Weinglass is a professional musician and music producer who has produced, recorded and toured with famous musical groups. Each week, he attends the organization's meetings at the community center and plays the piano and other instruments as background to the songs sung by attendees.

"You know how they say water runs deep and you have to look underneath to see what's there? At one point, Steven was an agent and music director for Bill Haley and the Comets and so many others. This guy, from New Jersey, and he got into music at age 14, I think. He plays such a mean bass. We've been fortunate enough

Music Mends Minds musical support groups are free of charge and held at the Roxbury Park Community Center, located at 471 S. Roxbury Drive, every Tuesday from 1:30 p.m. to 3:00 p.m.

Running for Suicide Prevention

Pam Kluff

Vice Chair of Didi Hirsch Mental Health Services' Board of Directors

Beverly Hills philanthropist and Vice Chair of Didi Hirsch Mental Health Services' Board of Directors Pam Kluff discusses the Didi Hirsch Suicide Prevention Center's 60th Anniversary and 20th Annual Alive and Running 5K walk/run for suicide prevention, which will be held on Sunday, September 30 at West 88th Street & La Tijera Boulevard at 7:00 a.m.

Your sister, Beth Joy Hess, died by suicide in 2012. Is that what first inspired you to get involved with suicide prevention?

Yes. My sister took her own life on March 22, 2012. When she did, I was looking for a very specific kind of bereavement group that dealt with suicide. I was told if I went to a bereavement group I needed to go to one that dealt with suicide directly. The Didi Hirsch Suicide Prevention Center was the only place I found that dealt with loss due to suicide. I joined a group called 'Survivors After Suicide.' That group still exists now and, unfortunately, I hate to say it, there's a bigger demand because suicide is still so prevalent. That said, the group is still servicing people and is really thriving.

How did you get involved with Didi Hirsch Mental Health Services, where you now serve as the Vice Chair of the Board of Directors?

I actually participated in the Alive and Running Walk. I was so inspired by the people that I met there and by the suicide prevention aspect of it. The funds from Alive and Running go toward the Suicide Prevention Center. Getting involved there helped me find out about the Mental Health Services part. I became very active and voiced my story many times over. Because I was raising awareness and much needed funds for suicide prevention, I was asked to join the Board of Directors. Ultimately, though, I think the answer is just that I was extremely impressed by how many people's lives are transformed through this work, in the Mental Health piece and in the Suicide Prevention piece, and wanted to get involved.

The proceeds of the Alive and Running 5K are going to benefit the Center. Can you share a little bit about the type of work that is done there?

In September, we will be opening a new suicide prevention center at the corner of Century Park West and Olympic Boulevard. They are going to be able to do many more services by having this extra space, so part of it will go to that. Funds will also go to the bereavement groups, which as I've said are so amazing and helpful, and they will also go to our counselors. The counselors I'm talking about go out when there has been a suicide at a school or a workplace and they provide counseling for co-workers and students and even teachers. We also deal with, and the funds will go toward, helping survivors after suicide; that being, survivors who previously tried to commit suicide.

One thing that we do is encourage people to talk about what happened either to make them feel that suicide was their only option or about their loved ones who died from suicide. When someone takes their own life survivors are in a unique position because so few people share their stories with others. There's a lot of shame and stigma associated with it, even in 2018. That's something that makes me very sad.

We lost two very influential people in June, Anthony Bourdain and Kate Spade. You would think she had everything in the world. She was beyond talented, beautiful, smart, a fantastic business woman recognized around the world. Bourdain was a confident and amazing chef who everyone who knows food knows about. How do these people who are so high functioning in society do this? We don't know what's going on inside. Outside appearance and success is a façade for what is truly going on in someone's mind and that's why we're so devastated by these losses. We try to wrap our minds around it and we can't understand it. That's why we encourage others to talk about it.

There is a free, 24/7 hotline with counselors who are well trained to call and chat and text, even in different languages, with people who are thinking about suicide. Anyone can access it. We want people to know they're loved and cared about, even when they don't feel they can go on anymore. I wish my sister had made that call. There is help out there. I already lost my sister, but my goal is to save at least one life by helping someone else make that call and get that support they need.

All the services I've talked about have to be funded through things like Alive & Running that allow us to keep well-trained people working on this.

You live in Beverly Hills. Tell us a little bit about the other philanthropic work you do in the city.

I am a reading mentor at Wonderland Avenue Elementary School, which is in Los Angeles. I've done that for many, many years. My husband recently passed away from cancer and, maybe ironically, City of Hope was one of our favorite organizations for many years. They do cancer research. I also work with the Tower Cancer Research Foundation, which is in Beverly Hills, and that's another favorite charity of mine. Unfortunately I've experienced a lot of loss in my life, but working with these organizations is something I use to heal by giving back. It makes me feel better to help other people have better lives in the ways that I can.

Tell us a little more about the 5K.

We have speakers, music, and expo booths. There's a beautiful memorial tree for people to place the name of their loved ones or someone they're walking in memory of on. We also encourage people to design t-shirts in honor of their loved ones, or they can wear one of the Alive and Running shirts they get when they register.

I find this event to be one of the most beautiful and bittersweet times in my life every year. The loss of my sister is heartbreaking. The loss of all the people we are there running for is heartbreaking, but the work we do is vital to our community.

How much is the registration fee for the 5K and where can people who are unable to attend donate?

You can choose to register either as an individual or a team, or you can join an existing team. Registration for adults costs $35 and children 12 and under can participate for free. The last day to register online is September 26. Registration will also be open on the day of the walk for $35.

"I already lost my sister, but my goal is to save at least one life by helping someone else make that call and get that support they need."

MARCUS AND WALKER-SHUMAN: QUESTIONS FOR THE BHUSD BOARD OF EDUCATION CANDIDATES

By Kelcey Caulder

Board of Education candidates Rachelle Marcus and Tristen Walker-Shuman sat down separately with the Weekly after taping a recent episode of Beverly Hills View to discuss their candidacy, vision for the district and the biggest issues they hope to tackle. Candidate Marvin Winans Jr. was invited to the taping, but did not attend.

Why are you running for the Beverly Hills Board of Education?

Walker-Shuman: I'm a product of the district. I went to school at Beverly Vista and Beverly High, as did many members of my family and as do my children. I've had this great opportunity over the last year to become really deeply immersed in the concerns and challenges of the district.

Beyond being a PTA parent of 10 years, of elementary, middle and high school students, the Future Focused Schools Team gave me an opportunity to get to know and understand from a different perspective what the challenges are of the district, and I think this is where the disconnect happens between parents. It's so intricate that unless you participate in a committee like that you really have a hard time accessing the information and understanding. Once you're there, it's almost impossible to walk away. So, that's kind of how kind of got started.

I became very passionate. I was so interested in what was going on in the district and how we got to where we are. Then, as a problem solver, I started thinking about how we get ourselves out of the hole that we seem to be in. You know, I've leaned on teachers that I've known for decades – my kids teachers and even administrative staff – and it's really just been an incredible experience. When we concluded the Future Focused Schools Team effort it was like when you see a really good movie or finish a really good book and you get that feeling of, kind of, depression where you wish it wasn't over. I had that experience and it was really sad for me. I wanted to continue to stay engaged with the district and what was going on and with moving things forward.

Shortly after the FFST proposal and those Board meetings, the Board of Education decided to put a measure on the ballot in June for the construction of the schools. So, I co-chaired the bond measure and that was another way for me to stay engaged and really look at a completely different side of it. I say that because in the Future Focused Schools Team, we were really focused on improving education and thinking about what would be the best delivery of education. While facilities are one component of that it really wasn't our focus. This gave me an opportunity to really make that my focus and learn about the different projects that are going on, their statuses, what the hurdles are, what kind of funding we need, the timeline and trajectory, all of it. I got a very deep understanding of where we are, where we were and where we want to be. So, I worked very hard on the bond measure.

It was an excellent way to get to know the community because even the folks who didn't support the bond measure had very valid reasons for not supporting it. It was really great to hear what their concerns were in terms of trust of the board, the checkered history of past spending, all that. It was, again, a great experience that really gave me a good springboard for going forward and helping to, hopefully, move the district forward.

Marcus: For the last two years, I have seen the problems because I've been teaching in the schools. I feel at this time I have ample background experience and would be able to deal with these issues. Number one, the math curriculum is weak. Number two, we need a reconfiguration because the mismanagement of the middle school is quite apparent when there are only eight or nine kids in every class. So, I want to see something to change because we need a critical mass in our classes. We don't have it now.

What do you think the biggest issues facing the school district are?

Walker-Shuman: I think our number one challenge and the reason why we're all here is for education. So, the number one challenge that we have right now is getting the district back to a place where kids are more fully prepared and have more exposure earlier on to sports and clubs and really have an opportunity to develop a more firm background and foundation that they can use to springboard into college and career readiness. There are a lot of things that we really do well here, but one of the challenges is that we don't really have parity across all of the K-8 schools and that causes the kids to come at different levels of preparedness when they start at Beverly High. I think our first mission then has to be recommitting to education. We have to think about what we're delivering and some different modalities of delivering that. How can we better use technology? How can we give our teachers the support they need to maximize the output of their efforts in their classroom? How can we support our students in an emotional and social atmosphere so that they feel safe going to school with their classmates, not just emotionally but also physically? It's a wrap-around.

Education is so many things to students. It's not just one thing. We have to provide a safe environment so that they can be comfortable and really absorb material. So, I think education is the first thing we should be focused on. I'll also say that, because there is no short list of challenges in the district, we don't have the luxury of focusing on only one. We need to run parallel paths and really make sure that we're multitasking and solving all of the problems coherently and in a parallel manner so that these things are resolved. The longer they go on, the harder they are to manage.

People ask me why I'm doing this all the time and there's something to be said about the amount of work, but I'm not afraid of the work. I'm not afraid of the time commitment. I am absolutely committed and believe wholeheartedly that we can get there. It's just going to take consistent work every day, showing up and being prepared to make the best decisions even when they are hard. I think if we do that we will ultimately get to where we want to be.

Marcus: There are a couple of issues. One is the budget and reconfiguration, which I addressed in the first question. The other is going to be the MTA [Metropolitan Transit Authority] and its impact on the staging area where they're putting it. We're not going to be able to move it. We've lost there, but we do need to monitor very closely the three biggest issues. Those are air pollution, tremors and shaking, and noise. We have to work with the City on that because they have a Memorandum of Agreement, and we need to be able to monitor in case something needs to be done immediately.

Why do you think you are qualified to sit on the Board of Education?

Walker-Shuman: I started and ran my own business for 17 years in manufacturing. That gave me a great view into how business works and how to maintain profitability, what revenue and expense balances should look like, how to read a balance sheet. The manufacturing business in particular requires you to be involved in every step of the process, from the concept to the development of materials and patterns to samples and quality checking to distribution and dealing with sales representatives. All of those components are built on relationships. They rely on you being able to build trust. When you know you can trust someone you're going to give them your business. When buyers know you'll deliver their product in a timely and accurate manner, they'll come back to you and that's exactly what happened. So, it was a tremendous experience for me in terms of relationship building and how to cultivate things like that. I still get calls, and I'm not manufacturing anymore, from buyers and people that I used to work with saying, "Can you do this again?" It's nice. There's a parent in the district who was a sales rep of mine. It's funny how worlds come back together and cross.

I also learned things like how to manage finances and how to stay on top of expenses and make sure your expenses don't exceed your revenues. That actually lends itself perfectly to trying to stabilize the budget here in the district. There are inherently differences between the private and public sector, particularly with education, but my experience has certainly given me a very strong background in how to deal with those things and how to be conservative in estimates to make sure you stay on target.

Marcus: I am qualified, I believe, after 55 years in the district, 45 years in the community and having two children go through the schools completely. The background is there. The institutional knowledge I have is there. My experience is there. Plus, some other important things: passion, dedication and devotion to the school district. I'm really passionate about the schools and the kids. That's most important, of course.

What is your vision for education in Beverly Hills?

Walker-Shuman: I would love to see more innovative versus traditional paths. With so many different learning styles represented among the students here in the community, I think we have some distance to cover in terms of the way that we teach. I would love to see more of the Socratic method of debate used in the classrooms. I would love to see cross-curricular efforts made. When I say that, I mean that we have to make sure that in every class students have a chance to open up with each other and learn from one another. That's really the skill they'll take with them going into college and later into their career.

Tristen Walker-Shuman

There are very few times in your career when you're asked to sit down and take a test rather than work with someone else. I think part of preparing our students for the 21st century is letting them have attempts at working together to see what works and what doesn't work when working in a group setting. You don't know that if you haven't tried it. I think the earlier we encourage things like that, the better we'll deliver education.

Marcus: My vision for education in Beverly Hills is for us to revitalize, reenergize and rededicate the kids so that they're both ready and wanting to go to college. I think so many of our kids today are opting for junior college. That disappoints me, but only if that's the way they look at going through school. Some kids go that route for monetary reasons or because they can't afford a four year college. I buy that. That's not a problem. We graduate 95 percent of our kids. That's awesome. I want them to come out of school knowing that they could go to USC, UCLA, Arizona, or whatever school they want, and that they could get in. Money is a factor and I understand that, but I want to make sure they're making that choice for reasons that are right for them and not because they went through high school just assuming they have to make that choice because it's how to move through school.

As a Board member, how accessible would you be to community members, parents and teachers?

Walker-Shuman: By virtue of the fact that I put my cell phone number on my post card that is now circulating to 5,000 people or so, I hope people know I'll be very accessible. That's actually what I've built my campaign around. I'm meeting with people in small groups and talking with them about my their beliefs, my experience, my background and, of course, I'm listening to their perspective and things they see. It's been helpful for me to be really immersed in the community in a way that I had not been before. The position of board member is only as effective as the information you have to make the decisions you're in charge of making, so having community input and hearing people's concerns is integral to making good policy. I plan to be very accessible.

Marcus: I'm a pretty open person and I'm very transparent. I tend to speak the way I feel. If I don't have anything to say about something, I don't say anything. I don't need to talk just to talk. If I feel a certain way about something I will speak up.

How do you plan to address declining enrollment in the district?

Walker-Shuman: There are several components that contribute to declining enrollment. We need to address as many of them as we can, as efficiently as we can. They include the construction program, the educational outcomes offered, and community relationships, among others.

In regard to construction, we are on our way. It was clear to me when I co-chaired the bond measure campaign that the renovation programs were a vital and necessary piece of the puzzle in addressing the community trust concern in addition to the morale and community spirit concern. I am very pleased that the bond measure passed and work has already begun to restore our beautiful and soon to be state of the art campuses.

In regard to educational outcomes, the curriculum audit that was completed last year has provided an excellent roadmap, clearly defining what we do well and where we need work. It should be priority one to make adjustments that can deliver the highest quality education. I know that the district has been hard at work creating programs to remedy the deficiencies that were exposed in the audit and create more parity across the district. We should continue to monitor and revisit the progress of these programs as they are implemented, while simultaneously exploring new ways of delivering the curriculum more effectively to all students.

One intangible hurdle that has created apathy among families in the district is the ongoing battle among board members, the City, and the union. I believe all sides would be well served to take a step back, take a breath, re-frame the objectives and come back to the table in a professional, and not personal, manner. Obviously these challenges do not exist in a vacuum, but increased hostility rarely yields a satisfactory result.

Marcus: I think if we attract them with the latest technology that will do something to attract more students. Many parents think they're in a run down state or what have you, so I think that might bring them back. Also, I think that once we improve the middle school and do the reconfiguration and they see how great it is for kids, people will bring kids back to the middle school and hence to the high school. I really think it all starts there. Offering better and more electives and classes, and maybe even higher honors type things like French 2, will make a difference. Those are the things I'm hoping will change it.

What do you think makes you stand out among the other candidates?

Walker-Shuman: I am incredibly thankful for the democratic process and the opportunity not only to get to know the other candidates personally but for the community to get to know us as well. I applaud anyone who chooses public service, particularly in a volunteer position. My education, work experience and personal experience as the parent of elementary, middle and high school children, in addition to my history as a student in this district naturally lends itself to my being an extraordinarily qualified and capable candidate.

Marcus: I think that after my many years of being in the district there is no substitution for my experience, my knowledge, my dedication and my passion for the students of this district. I think that just makes me a very strong candidate. I don't want to talk about the other candidates at all. My background and institutional knowledge makes me qualified. I'm close with the community. I've touched so many lives over the last 55 years that no matter where they are they feel comfortable with me.

Do you, or do you not, support the current salary formula for teachers?

Walker-Shuman: I like to make my decisions based on data and evidence. I haven't been involved in the process. I haven't sat at the table and I don't know what's been offered or rejected, so I don't think it's fair for me to comment on the state of the negotiations. What I can say is that I think the challenge between the teacher's union and the district right now is twofold. There's the financial aspect of it and there's an emotional aspect of it.

The financial aspect is something that will have to be resolved in the near future. The emotional aspect is going to take a little bit more time because it's clear that the teachers have developed a feeling of being underappreciated and disrespected. So, I think that's something that takes time to rebuild. You can't just assume that two new board members will create trust automatically. It's something that will have to be earned back. I think it is fair, however, to say we have a really great group of teachers. We have rock-star teachers who do an amazing job for our kids every day and it's important to recognize that. I'm confident there's a path to a solution and I hope to be a part of that.

I come from a school of thought that says you're more productive when you're working together. I realize that sentiment often exists in a vacuum and that reality doesn't always yield that result, but I think that what's happening now is our students are in the crosshairs and are being used as collateral in this discussion. It's a little disheartening as a parent of students in the district that keep coming home asking why they're experiencing this. It's really sad. In terms of being role models for the students of this district, I think it's really important and imperative that we come together and show that as adults we can have reasonable discussions and find common ground. I think that's the most important thing for the district. I understand how important this issue is to the teachers and I don't mean to diminish that at all, but I really think the students shouldn't deal with the brunt of the discussions that the adults are having.

Marcus: It was unfortunate that when the salary formula was passed that it was given in perpetuity. I believe it should have been given for 3 years and then reviewed to see if it was sustainable and what its impact would be on the budget as a whole. There is no school district in the country that has a salary schedule based on property tax increases. I would like to see the district and the BHEA negotiate a fair increase so that the present situation "Work to Rule" can end.

Watch both candidates on Beverly Hills View at vimeo.com/287518209. Candidate Marvin Winans Jr. was invited, but did not attend the taping.

Malibu Routs BHHS football team Normans to play host to winless Gardena Friday

By Steven Herbert

Beverly High's 62-7 loss to Malibu in a nonleague football game Friday night at Nickoll Field "was a lesson that just because you've won a game, it doesn't mean it's over," coach Jarrod Bunch said.

"The week starts off brand new," said Bunch, whose team defeated Sotomayor, 32-0, Aug. 24 to end a believed-to-be-school-record 21-game losing streak.

"You have to protect that winning feeling. Last week we didn't start off with good practices and it showed."

The loss was "because of our week of practices," Bunch said.

The Normans have not won back-to-back games since 2010.

This was the second time in four games dating back to the 2017 season Beverly Hills lost by 55 points. The 62 points were the most it has allowed since a 63-8 loss to Culver City in the final game of the 2016 season.

Junior Ilai Dardashti returned a kickoff 80 yards in the second quarter for the Normans touchdown.

Malibu (3-0) led 20-0 at the end of the first quarter and were ahead 34-0 when Beverly Hills (1-1) scored.

The Sharks led 55-7 at halftime and scored the lone touchdown of the second half in the third quarter.

"Our running backs tried to run hard, but it's hard to find something positive out of offensive line or defensive line," Bunch said. "They really let the team down. We were controlled from the line of scrimmage on every play, offensively and defensively."

What's Next?

The Normans are scheduled to play a host to Gardena Friday at 7 p.m. in a non-league game at Nickoll Field in a matchup of teams that have combined to lose 46 of their past 47 games.

Gardena (0-3) has lost 24 consecutive games dating back to the final game of the 2015 season, including a 24-21 loss to Fremont last Thursday.

Libero Angela Bradbury "played a great match" as the Normans opened the season with a loss to the El Segundo-based charter school in a nonleague match at the Swim-Gym Aug. 23, coach Marla Weiss said.

"She serve received well and as the season continues, her confidence and defensive play will only get better," Weiss said after her first match as the team's coach after resigning following the 2011 season to spend more time with her daughter Madelaine who was born in August 2011.

Katie Wu "set a very nice game," Weiss said. "Her challenge will be to put up nice sets for our hitters, even if the pass is not to the target. With time, this should improve."

Una Stevanovic "also played well on the outside," Weiss said.

"Her offense was solid for much of the match," Weiss said. "This position is new for her as she has only been trained as a middle blocker. She too needs to work on consistency and reducing the number of unforced errors."

Weiss said the loss was the result of "unforced errors and our serve and serve receive game. Consistency will be something we will work on all season."

"For our first match, with the number of hours of preparation, I was pleased with my team's performance," Weiss said. "We hustled and were scrappy. Our challenge will be consistency. We were able to play solid volleyball early on in games, but struggled at the ends of games."

What's Next?

The Normans are scheduled to begin Ocean League play Wednesday with a 3:15 p.m. match at Lawndale.

Sophomore Quinn Harris finished first and his Norman teammate Aaron Selikovitz second in the season-opening meet last Thursday at Rancho Park.

solo cabaret show at the Edye in Santa Monica on Saturday, September 15. Her performance, which will feature a mix of pre-1980s musical theatre classics and comedy, is inspired by her own experiences growing up, not quite fitting in and finding her own voice in Beverly Hills.

Gordon began her career at a young age when, at just 13 years old, she was the youngest person to ever perform solo with a full orchestra at the Walt Disney Concert

Victoria Gordon

Hall. When asked about the experience, she describes it as the "coolest thing ever." "I was 13 years old and about to graduate from the eighth grade," she recalled. "I performed on stage the same night as Debby Boone. It was amazing. I remember feeling like it was the coolest thing on the planet and that nothing I did after that would be able to compare. Honestly, it's still one of the most exciting experiences I've ever had. To this day I feel that way. There's nothing like it."

Many teenagers might have shied away from taking the stage at a legendary venue at such a young age. Gordon didn't, likely because she'd already been performing for several years by then. She started learning to play the violin at the age of four and told the Weekly that her abilities stem from her family.

Her mother, Beverly Hills Planning Commissioner Lori Greene Gordon, is an accomplished harpist. Her uncle, Gary Greene, founded the Los Angeles Lawyers Philharmonic and has conducted popular pieces for legendary performers, including Debbie Reynolds, Pat Boone, Debby Boone, June Lockhart, Edward Asner and many others.

"I grew up in a musical family, so I always had music in my life," Gordon said. "I started playing the violin when I was four and I hated it, but I loved performing. I loved getting a reaction from people and seeing how they responded to what I was doing. My mom finally agreed to let me switch to singing and I've been singing ever since."

Her performances didn't end when she was 13. Gordon continued working professionally throughout high school - something she said kept her from taking part in performing arts at Beverly High.

"This is so embarrassing, but I actually didn't do a lot with performing arts at Beverly," Gordon said. "As I got older I did arts away from school because I was working professionally. I didn't have enough time to also do performances with the school. I probably didn't pay my dues there as much as I could have, but I was working during that time."

Gordon will spend the next year continuing to work professionally.

"Ideally, I will be performing the same show that I'm performing in Santa Monica at venues all across Los Angeles this year, and I am still promoting a show that I put out in 2017 called 'I Might Be Famous,'" Gordon said, referencing the film that was her directorial debut. "I'm also a comedy writer, so I'll be doing some of that. Outside of my career, I work as the Operations Vice President for the Junior League of Los Angeles."

Gordon's cabaret performance will be held at the Santa Monica Performing Arts Center's Edye Second Space, located at 1310 11th Street. Tickets are free and attendees are invited to a free reception after the show.

You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call 800-280-2832 for information regarding the trustee's sale or visit this Internet Web site <http://www.qualityloan.com>, using the file number assigned to this foreclosure by the Trustee: CA-18-827302-BF. If the sale is set aside for any reason, including if the Trustee is unable to convey title, the Purchaser at the sale shall be entitled only to a return of the monies paid to the Trustee. This shall be the Purchaser's sole and exclusive remedy. The purchaser shall have no further recourse against the Trustor, the Trustee, the Beneficiary, the Beneficiary's Agent, or the Beneficiary's Attorney.
