“BHUSD schools remain open following LAUSD closures” [Issue 846]

What a shame the schools in Los Angeles were closed because of a bomb threat. We can't allow threats to become a norm and thus deter the education process.

I know the safety of children is our first priority, but if schools and other places are shut down because of threats, then they will continue. This has to stop. No one is going to attack a place and give a warning beforehand. Putting people on edge and disrupting lives is just what those who want to do us harm want. When the schools in L.A. were closed, terrorists must have laughed.

Keep the schools open. Closing them is doing more harm than good. Our leaders in Beverly Hills knew that.

District construction plans, “superintendent house” focus of new Board’s eventful first meeting

In their first public appearance since the December 8th installation, the freshly refurbished Board of Education met for two back-to-back meetings that almost totaled five hours last Thursday.

Allegations from certain Board members that the district’s decades-old buildings are unsafe seem to resurface at each one of the committee’s bimonthly meetings.

At the study session, the Board heard from Totum Consulting’s Rick Panos, who provided an overview of construction plans at the district’s five campuses.

Characteristically, interim Facilities Director Tim Buresh repeated the all-too familiar claim that several school buildings are too dangerous for occupancy.

Board member Isabel Hacker raised questions about the district’s history of awarding its facilities “good” marks through yearly School Accountability Report Cards (SARCs), which contradict Buresh’s assertions.

The facilities portion of the SARC assessment issues good, fair and poor marks. Except for Hawthorne's auditorium, all five BHUSD schools have received at least "good" marks across all seven categories. The Hawthorne SARC cites water-damaged ceiling tiles.

Beverly High earned "exemplary" marks on its 2006-2007, 2007-2008, 2008-2009, 2011-2012 and 2012-2013 SARCs and "good" scores for 2013-2014, 2009-2010 and 2010-2011.

The 2013-2014 report was signed off by then-Board members Brian Goldberg and Lewis Hall, as well as Howard Goldstein, Lisa Korbatov and Noah Margo.

Korbatov has famously dubbed several school buildings a "death trap," so it seems unlikely she would endorse any document that claims they are safe.

Later in the meeting, Board members discussed the future of the district-owned residence located at 220 North Doheny Drive.

Colloquially known as "the superintendent house," the property has sat vacant since former Superintendent Gary Woods moved out in May.

In August, Korbatov reported the house is being listed for "a touch under $9,000 [per month]."

The rental amount was later lowered to $7,500 per month, and at Thursday's meeting, the Board directed Kessler to remove the listing altogether.

According to Coldwell Banker realtor Michael Libow, the district had "several lease offers on the table."

But a report by consultant Steven McLaughlin revealed the district does not even have the state's permission to lease the property.

McLaughlin said the law requires a surplus property procedure both for selling and leasing a residence. The Board must first designate a committee that will go out and assess the property in order to declare it a surplus.

"We have to show the community that we've done our due diligence and we see that there's no need for the district to use this property," McLaughlin said.

The district will then offer the property to different agencies, including the City of Beverly Hills and the University of California system, and ask whether they are interested in buying or leasing it.

"If we had leased it, we would have been in violation," Board Vice President Mel Spitz pointed out.

The district paid $1.5 million for the superintendent house in 2012, and Libow believes the home will sell for around $2.3 million.

Currently, the district is paying $138,361 annually for the residence, and will net around $650,000 if they sell it.

With Buresh's contract expiring December 31, the Board later directed Kessler to assemble an interview committee to consider 12 different candidates.

The panel would include Chief Administrative Officer LaTanya Kirk-Carter, Chief Academic Officer Jennifer Tedford and Maintenance and Operations Manager Gino Garcia, and would be "free of Board members," Kessler clarified.

But Korbatov indicated she has already jumpstarted the process.

"I looked at the nine [candidates], and of course I couldn't make heads or tails, and I sent it to Brett [Hobza] from DLR [Group] and I sent it to Dan, who came here from El Rodeo, and they knew something in theory about everyone," Korbatov said. "Of the nine [candidates], Brett could only qualify two."

Korbatov's self-directed research received pushback from Kessler, who reiterated that applications are private information.

"I wouldn't have given that [information] out to you if I had known you would have done that, frankly," Kessler said.

Council approves Fire MOU, axes plan for more HR positions

Carrying on a December 1st discussion, the City Council voted Tuesday to hire a BHPD sergeant and executive assistant—but pulled the plug on two human resources positions advocated by city staff.

Management Partners had reviewed the police department's hiring and disciplinary practices as part of an agreement authorized earlier this year. The management consulting firm recommended the department add a sergeant and an executive assistant, as well as two HR staffers priced at $228,540.

The city's human resources division currently has 10 employees. Management Partners believes an additional human resources analyst and associate will support the police department's recruitment and workforce management needs "at the appropriate level."

Apart from Councilmember Willie Brien, the Council seemed skeptical, despite backing from City Manager Mahdi Aluzri and BHPD Chief Dominick Rivetti.

"There were some inherent issues with the whole [police department] recruitment process separate from HR," Councilmember Lili Bosse pointed out.

Assistant Director of Administrative Services/HR Shelley Ovrom said the HR additions would "support HR functions for not only police, but fire, too," and dubbed the duo a "safety team."

Vice Mayor John Mirisch supported the sergeant position, but called the other three additions "bureaucratic overkill."

"I just heard the City Manager [Mahdi Aluzri] say that staff doesn't take it lightly to add positions," Mirisch said. "I'm sorry—with the greatest respect—I have to call a big B.S. on that."

The Council will reconsider taking on the extra HR administrators at their budget discussion in May or June. The sergeant and executive assistant will cost around $300,000.

Later in the meeting, the Council approved the Fire Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) with a 4-1 vote.

Mirisch opposed the 107-page contract between the city and the Beverly Hills Firefighters' Association (BHFA), which includes five pay hikes listed in last week's issue.

"Just because, as said, I'm not supporting the MOU, doesn't mean I don't support the fire department," Mirisch said. "I think we have larger issues, and it has to do with the sustainability of local government—something I'm very concerned about."

Public Works to add four new employees; Felsenthal calls out water guzzlers

Around two weeks after Vice Mayor John Mirisch noted that Beverly Hills "has among the most staff per capita of any city in California," the Public Works Commission received an update on the city's efforts to add four new administrators.

The water conservation administrator, water resources manager and two project managers are expected to help buoy the city's water conservation program.

"We really have turned a corner," said Public Works Services Director George Chavez at the commission's December 10th meeting. "I think we're going to be at a place where a lot of the 'asks' and the 'wants' that the commission has really, maybe, been a little frustrated about with the current staff and our ability to deliver—I think we're at a place now, come 2016, to really change."

Chavez said the city has already made offers to the top candidates for the water resources manager and water conservation administrator positions.

Later in the meeting, Commissioner Jerrold Felsenthal highlighted several upcoming, water-guzzling residential and business projects.

"I think that the demand for water and sewer that is coming at us is far greater than anything we can possibly anticipate," Felsenthal said.

Among the projects Felsenthal listed was the Waldorf Astoria hotel, which is expected to open in early 2017.

The luxury behemoth promises 170 rooms, 128 deluxe rooms, 42 rooms with private gardens, a 5,000-foot spa, the largest rooftop pool in all of Beverly Hills and "the whole building is sprinklered."

"Can you imagine how much water that project will consume in and of itself?" Felsenthal said. "It's just unbelievable the amount of increase that will be put on the system."

A 20,000-square-foot house being built on North Rexford Drive also made Felsenthal's list. The "humongous" property features "extensive landscaping" and water features.

"It's multi-tiered and it has water features and gardens on each tier," Felsenthal said.

Thumbing through a real estate magazine, Felsenthal mentioned several other multimillion-dollar projects that will bloat the demand on the water system.

"If we don't take this stuff into account, we are going to be reactive instead of proactive," Felsenthal said.

Commission Chair Ron Shalowitz suggested the topic be agendaized for discussion at a future meeting.

BHUSD schools remain open following LAUSD closures

In response to the LAUSD's decision early Tuesday to close over 900 schools following an email threat, BHUSD

Key decisions of the meeting

- Board gives direction to continue with El Rodeo plans; finish Beverly Vista and Horace Mann; and carry out site preparation for Beverly High
- Board gives Superintendent Steve Kessler direction to interview 12 candidates for Chief of Facilities position
- Board gives Kessler direction to remove "superintendent house" from market and begin process of selling the property
- SARC reports contradict claims by Tim Buresh that the school buildings are unsafe

Superintendent Steve Kessler issued a statement notifying families of the district's choice to "keep our schools open."

"In regards to the closing of all LAUSD schools, I have been in communication with the watch commander for BHPD and Officer Jessie Perez since early this morning regarding this issue," Kessler said in the statement.

In his email, Kessler said he had requested that each campus be searched for backpacks or any other "suspicious looking items."

"At this time, there is a police officer at each of our schools," Kessler said.

According to the Los Angeles Times, the electronic threat was sent to an LAUSD Board member and later traced to an IP address in Frankfurt, Germany.

As the nation's second-largest school district, the LAUSD serves more than 640,000 students.

District eyes "technology" bond

Following a proposal by Superintendent Steve Kessler, the Board of Education directed Godbe Research Tuesday to conduct a poll so that the district can conceptualize voter support for a "technology" bond.

If voters approved a new tax rate of approximately $5 per $100,000 of assessed value (AV), the district could issue $16.25 million in technology bonds to match the district's estimated needs, according to a presentation put together by Keygent Advisors.

As outlined in Keygent's report, the technology bond would fund tech equipment, infrastructure and projects.

In an effort to gauge voter support for a construction bond, the district hired Godbe Research in 2014 to conduct a poll. From January 10 to January 20, around 12,000 "likely" November 2014 voters were contacted via telephone calls.

But the response was lukewarm at best. When asked whether they thought the district is providing a quality education, 28.5 percent of participants responded with "very favorable;" 5.6 percent, "very unfavorable;" 6.7 percent, "somewhat unfavorable;" 29.2 percent, "somewhat favorable;" and 30.1 percent, "don't know/no opinion."

With a tax rate of $65.93 per $100,000 of AV, the BHUSD appears on the lower end of a chart depicting 2015-16 rates for Los Angeles County school districts.

Wiseburn Unified School District tops the chart with a tax rate of $205.82 per $100,000 of AV. Standing at $23.43, Palos Verdes Peninsula Unified School District has the lowest tax rate among L.A. County districts.

Rec & Parks smooths out dog park operational plans

Bringing a dog park to the industrial area is a multilayered process, as evidenced by Monday's Recreation & Parks Commission meeting.

"We want things to go smoothly, we want to keep the park open, we want to start this with the best foundation we can—simple—and see it be very, very well done," Commissioner Susan Gersh said.

The Commission agreed there should be a nominal entrance charge implemented at the beginning. Staff is expected to return to the Commission with the exact amount.

Though a keycard entrance was part of the original discussion, the Commission opted for a low-tech solution for the first six months. During this trial period, plastic ID cards similar to those available at libraries and grocery stores will be used. A keycard system is estimated to cost anywhere from $15,000 to $20,000, whereas a plastic card costs around $2.

To verify their ability to use the dog park, prospective patrons must submit documentation proving that they fall into one of the approved utilization categories.

In order to obtain a permit, Beverly Hills residents must display a photo ID, along with a current copy of their gas or water bill with a name that matches the one on their ID. Additionally, they must prove their dog is licensed in Los Angeles County and has received the DHPP vaccine.

Hotel guests, business owners and guests of residents are allowed to use the park, but need the proper documentation in order to secure a permit.

Staff is preparing a budget enhancement of $57,000 to cover the cost of assigning a park ranger to the site for the first six months.

The park will not include restrooms; separate entries will be implemented for big and small dogs; and the surface material will be decomposed granite.

Longtime Beverly Hills resident Donna Goldstein won a shopping spree at the 99 Cents Only Store on Wilshire Boulevard last week.

But rather than stock up on her favorite merchandise, Goldstein used the opportunity to donate gifts to needy children, continuing a holiday tradition honored by the city's Active Adults Club.

"The 99 Cents Only Store was terrific," Goldstein said. "They called and asked whether I would like to pick things for the stockings that I give out to children and I said, 'Yes, I'd be delighted.'"

Goldstein, who turned 99 in October, was later treated to a belated birthday celebration by the discount megastore's employees.

Taelyr Robinson Miss Beverly Hills USA 2016

You became Miss Beverly Hills three months ago. How has it been so far?

It's been wonderful; we've had so many awesome events that we've been a part of with [Crown Dive Boutique & Pageant Academy titleholders] Miss Malibu [Brooke Ashlynn Miller] and Miss Malibu Teen [Montana Yao]. We've also been able to do a lot of charity work, which has been a lot of fun. We've been working with Best Buddies—we went to an event at Blushington [in West Hollywood], which was a lot fun. We've also done things that we already do separately, like working with the Children's Hunger Fund. And we spent a lot of time preparing for the Miss California USA Pageant that was last weekend, so that was a lot of fun, too.

Why did you choose to represent Beverly Hills?

Beverly Hills is a beautiful city to represent. Being able to work with [Crown Diva owner] Kristen [Bradford] was probably the major draw—she's such a respected pageant director and she's had so many successful titleholders. The current Miss USA [Olivia Jordan] was Miss Beverly Hills two years ago, so working with [Kristen] is a way to get set up to do really well in future pageants.

How did you get involved with pageants?

I always thought pageants were really cool and I wanted to do one. I started four years ago, and Miss Beverly Hills is the first title I've ever won, so it's really special to me. In pageants, you compete in Swimsuit, Interview and Evening Gown, so there's a lot of work that we do with coaches on good interview skills and staying [informed] on current events so that you're able to answer anything intelligently. We work a lot on physical fitness and diet and making sure that we're healthy all the time. The Evening Gown [phase] is really about poise and confidence. Seeing myself grow over the past four years into the kind of person who can win a title has probably been the most exciting part.

What do you consider the most important issue facing us today?

I think the upcoming [presidential] election is going to be really important. It's really important for everyone to stay informed about what's going on so that we can make good, informed decisions and have a bright future in this country.

Greatest misconception about pageants?

I think people sometimes think that pageants are catty, but there's so much camaraderie involved. We truly are a sisterhood.

There's so much love and friendship in pageants, and I think that's something people don't notice.

You recently placed in the Top 20 in the Miss California USA pageant. Tell us about that.

The pageant weekend of Miss California is so much fun—it's really, really long and exhausting, but it's amazing. When we got there on Friday, we checked in and competed in Swimsuit Preview, which is where you go into the judging room with 10 girls and everyone is in their swimsuits and you introduce yourself. After that, I competed in [the] interview [phase], where you go in and you have a three-minute panel interview with the judges and you get to make an impression and tell them a little bit about yourself. And then we compete in Swimsuit and Evening Gown. When I was on stage in my [custom-made] evening gown, I felt so amazing and so confident and I think, in that moment, I felt like all of my hard work came together and I was just having so much fun on stage.

What goes through your head when you first walk on stage?

I get really nervous right before, but then I remember that I'm well prepared. When I'm on stage, I'm having the time of my life. I'm usually telling myself the kind of thoughts that I want to exude. In Evening Gown, I'm thinking I'm poised and confident and regal. When I was in the Top 20 [for the Miss California USA pageant], it was so natural to smile and be confident and be poised because I was so excited and happy. In the Swimsuit [competition], you're trying to seem a little bit more fierce and sexy, so those are the kind of thoughts I was trying to think of on stage. But I think it always just came through that I was having a blast and the time of my life.

What's your ethnic background?

I'm mixed. I'm African American and Caucasian.

Tell us about your family.

I'm from Riverside. My family is wonderful and so supportive of me. I have two younger sisters and my mom and they were just so amazing during pageant weekend; they sent me so much positive reinforcement and constantly told me how proud they were that I made it as far as I did. I don't think I could have done anything without their love and support.

What do you hope to accomplish during your year as Miss Beverly Hills?

I would love to continue doing more work with charities. I think that's the most fun part about being a titleholder. Also, I'm so excited to continue working and practicing and hopefully do even better in the Miss California pageant next year. I'm really lucky to be working with Kristen Bradford, she's such an amazing director, and I'm excited to spend this year as one of her titleholders.

How does school fit into your schedule?

I'm not currently in school, but my work fits into [my schedule]—it's really flexible because I work as a full-time model. It's really important for me to stay committed to all of my goals, so I make time for everything. Sometimes I'm really busy, but it's all worth it.

What does “Miss Beverly Hills” mean to you?

It means an opportunity to represent a beautiful city and to do amazing things with my year and help make peoples' lives a little bit better. It's wonderful that we get to do so much charity work throughout the year and that we get to go to schools and to events and help kids and help people. To me, it's just the most amazing opportunity to represent a fantastic place and make a difference.

Describe a typical day as Miss Beverly Hills.

Every day is a little bit different, especially leading up to the pageant. Typically, I have my regular job [as a model]. Afterwards, I work with Kristen and we work on everything, [including] the Swimsuit and Evening Gown walks and then practicing the interview. A lot of times we go to an event at night and meet people and represent the title. The charity events are especially fun. And then I go home and hopefully get some sleep and do it all again the next day.

Where do you see yourself in five years?

In five years, I would love to have already won Miss USA and spent a year living in New York working as an ambassador for the Miss Universe organization; and I would love to be a published author and write self-help books for young people who are going through hard times; and I would love to continue to work as a model and actress.

What advice do you have for girls who are interested in competing in pageants?

I think if you're interested in competing in pageants, you should definitely try it. There's nothing that you'll regret about it and you'll gain so much confidence and the ability to speak to people, which is priceless. You'll also make lifelong friends—I can almost guarantee that—because pageant girls are some of the nicest people. When you're in this environment together, there's a big sense of camaraderie and friendship. There are a lot of wonderful things that can come of it, so if you want to try, you definitely should.

BILAK TAKES THE HELM

Incoming Recreation & Parks Commission Chair Frances Bilak on La Cienega Park renovation plans and her goals for the future

By Mina Riazi

The industrial area's upcoming dog park has been one of the year's hot-button topics. Do you feel the Recreation & Parks Commission has adequately addressed the neighboring synagogues' concerns?

Absolutely. In fact, [outgoing Recreation & Parks Commission Chair] Simone Friedman and I both were on the ad-hoc committee for the dog park. We had our initial meeting with the synagogues in, I believe, April 2014. They appeared then and discussed issues of concern they had and we immediately started to investigate and research their concerns. It was a large gathering that included [Councilmember] Lili Bosse and I think [Vice Mayor] John Mirisch—it wasn't just the Recreation & Parks Commission. We also had a number of other open meetings, not only the ones inside the Recreation & Parks Commission's hearing room, but we had public meetings for the community where the synagogues came and discussed their issues. In fact, as we got closer, and once the City Council had authorized us to go ahead with the dog park in the industrial area, we received a letter from Rabbi [Pini] Dunner with his concerns and requests. Even [Monday], at the [Recreation & Parks Commission] meeting, there was an individual from the synagogue who appeared and wanted to have his thoughts addressed. We've probably been going through this since about April 2014.

As Chair, how will you address renovation plans for La Cienega Park?

I hope that the City Council continues to have La Cienega Park as a high priority. The southeast community clearly needs to have more attention placed on them and I think La Cienega Park going under renovation would be the acknowledgement to the southeast community. The community center is in bad shape at La Cienega Park. We don't know yet, because we haven't been able to go much further, whether or not the community center is going to be knocked down entirely and perhaps redone in another area of the park or if it's just going to be remodeled in its existing format. I personally feel that knocking it down and rebuilding would be best, because as you go through that community center, there are problems with the ceiling and it's not a functional community center. We had one public meeting, but it was almost a year ago. I would not only like to see future plans for La Cienega Park, but I would also like to see it placed on a faster track.

In her cover interview with the Weekly in issue #802, outgoing Chair Simone Friedman highlighted the value of "[making] sure that everyone has a voice" with regards to the La Cienega Park renovation process. Why hasn't much happened since Simone's February 2015 interview?

I think, but I really don't know for sure, that the City Council held us up for a while on moving forward. Both Simone and I are on the ad-hoc committee for the La Cienega Master Plan and we kept asking, "Why aren't we moving forward? Why can't we do something more?"

You ran for the Board of Education in 2011. Do you think being a commissioner is a more rewarding experience?

Had I been on the prior school board, I'd be hitting my head against the wall trying to get things accomplished or things directed and done that would not have been well received by the prior Board majority, and thus would have fallen by the way side or been rejected.

Until I got on Recreation and Parks, there had not been a [Joint Powers Agreement] ad-hoc committee, and frankly, it took me a couple of months to be able to get the rest of my commissioners to realize the need for a JPA ad-hoc committee. Just this past Tuesday, I was at a meeting with Mayor [Julian] Gold, Councilmember [Willie] Brien, Superintendent [Steve] Kessler, Board Vice President Mel Spitz and President [Howard] Goldstein, and we were all sitting around a table discussing the JPA, the Board's construction plans and the impact on facilities use. During my entire tenure on the Recreation & Parks Commission, up until very recently, the school board did not direct themselves to the Commission or the City regarding these issues. Now, we have avenues to allow this type of discourse.

Is it rewarding being on the Recreation and Parks Commission? I am so thrilled being on this commission. We have accomplished so much.

Why did you vote against the ordinance that will prohibit adults from city playgrounds?

Dorian, Maddie, Frances and Michael Bilak

To begin with, prohibiting adults without children under the age of 12 from playgrounds is not a trend in this country. I know this because I called the national Recreation & Parks Commission and spoke at length with a woman who was in charge of this. She had sent out questionnaires to all the communities in the country asking about this. So I know that it's not a trend, to begin with. During the first meeting, I kept asking why we can't just have a no-loitering clause. If the intention is to [keep out] certain people who are using the playground to perhaps sleep under the slide at night—then that is loitering. In Hollywood, Florida, the intention of the mayor in pushing forward this type of policy was—he had been quoted saying—“There are certain elements you don't want in the park.” People kept saying that sexual predators will come into the park, but the reality is that the majority of sexual predators are people who know the children. It's not a stranger. When it goes to the City Council, I will be at that meeting to continue to voice my objection.

Tell us about your battle with Acute Promyelocytic Leukemia (APL).

It was very interesting because my son was one-and-a-half years old at the time and now he's 15. We were back east visiting my family and I had gone to sleep and woke up having had three strokes. It resulted in something called expressive aphasia, which is your ability to understand other people when they were talking, but not being able to respond. Unlike now, I couldn't respond. For about two weeks I was unable to communicate, other than with my eyes. Then, one day, I just started talking, and I turned to my husband—we were back in Maryland—and I said, “Let's go home.” And he said, “You know, there's good and bad news. The good news is you're talking, but the bad news is they have diagnosed you with leukemia.” Four weeks earlier, we had gone to Sedona, Arizona and we had rock climbed. I was thinking, How could I have leukemia? They diagnosed it as APL. I was very fortunate because everything happened so serendipitously. My friend Michael, who's a physician, called [Johns] Hopkins [Hospital] after finding out who the leading physician in the world was for APL. Once I started talking, within 30 minutes there was an ambulance to take me to Johns Hopkins. I was there for about three-and-a-half months. There had been a medication discovered in the six months before I was diagnosed with APL that targeted, specifically, APL. So there were a few hospitals around the country that were going through tests with this drug—I called it my Vitamin A, it's got a long name, but it's basically arsenic. The world's two leading doctors for APL knew each other, and I was able to come back to UCLA, to California, to do the rest of my hospital stay, which was around another six months. I credit that medication for helping me and I'm indebted to those men.

Tell us about your family.

My husband Dorian went to Hawthorne and Beverly High, as did his father. He runs the Bilak companies. We are owners and operators of a few million square feet of shopping centers. I am able to assist him as I am also [a retired] attorney.

I like to say my husband is a Renaissance man, because not only does he run these companies, but he attended Southern California Institute of Architecture, Otis Parsons and UCLA. My son Michael is 15 and in 10th grade at Beverly High. He is very handsome, sweet and has a great group of friends. Michael is on the track team and loves anything to do with cars.

My daughter Maddie is 10 and in fifth grade at El Rodeo. She is witty and beautiful. Her soccer team won the AYSO championship for girls under 12 this past Sunday, and now they will be playing in the regionals.

I have a great family, I love them. I really do, and I like them to boot!

What is your number one priority as incoming Chair?

I can't give you number one, but very briefly, I definitely want La Cienega Park to move ahead quickly. I want to open the dog park; hopefully that will be done by mid-2016. The JPA negotiation is coming up mid-2016 and I'm really looking forward to being able to help renegotiate this because it's something that affects every shareholder in the city.

BHHS boys' basketball team splits four games in tournament

Normans ranked third in division

By Steven Herbert

Beverly High broke a halftime tie by scoring the first seven points of the second half and led for the remainder of its 72-65 victory over St. Bernard in Saturday's seventh-place game of the 75th annual Sax Elliot Invitational boys' basketball tournament.

Maddox Daniels began the run with the third of his seven 3-point baskets. Fidel Quiralte followed with back-to-back baskets for a 39-32 lead.

A 3-point basket by Daniels began another 7-0 run that would put the Normans ahead 58-46 with 31.3 seconds left in the third quarter.

Daniels opened the scoring in the fourth quarter with a 3-point basket that gave Beverly Hills a 61-48 lead with 6:47 to play.

Vikings senior guard Adam Amanuel made 3-point baskets to begin and end an 8-1 run that cut the deficit to 67-63 with 2:00 remaining.

Daniels responded with a 3-point basket – the Normans' first field goal since his 3-pointer to open the scoring for the quarter – that gave them a 70-63 lead with 1:35 to play. Beverly Hills led by at least five for the remainder of the game.

"I thought we played better than what we've been playing," Norman coach Jarvis Turner said. "It's been a real struggle and a work in progress over the last couple of weeks. We had a lot of guys injured.

"We've got a couple of new pieces, so just trying to mesh everybody together has been a challenge. To get everybody on the same page has been a challenge. Hopefully the finished product is hopefully comparable the team that we had last year."

The Normans return just one starter – senior guard Denzel Holt -- from the team that won the 2014-15 Southern Section Division 3A championship after three of its teams received berths in the Open Division.

Turner credited the victory over St. Bernard to his players doing "a good job of wanting to win the game."

"We've had issues because of unfamiliarity with each other," said Turner, whose team was ranked third in the Southern Section Division 3A poll released Monday. The Vikings were ranked second in Division 5A.

"We've had issues with just understanding (personnel) and getting the ball to certain guys in spots that they're comfortable and being a collective unit defensively to close out games.

"Today we did a good job of just being a good team defensively, settling and communicating, giving them one shot."

St. Bernard coach Mitch Runco said his team lost because Turner "does a great job with this Beverly Hills team."

"He slowed us down by soft pressing us," Runco said after his team's third consecutive loss after it opened the tournament with a 62-52 victory over Mission Prep Dec. 8.

"It took us a little bit out of our comfort zone and we weren't able to push the ball like we really wanted to."

Daniels led all scorers with 26 points. Fidel Quiralte added 14, all over the first three quarters, Mason Daniels and Grant Gaon eight each, Holt and Kevin Cho six each and Sam Cohen four for the Normans (5-4).

Gaon made two 3-point baskets and Cho and Holt one each.

Amanuel led the Vikings (3-5) with 21, making four 3-point baskets, while guards Robert Fuller and Julian Ross each added 19.

There were 10 lead changes and three ties in the first half, which ended with a 32-32 tie. Neither team led by more than four points.

"We wanted to at least finish our tournament up on a good note," said Turner, whose team said. "(We) wanted to have a positive finish moving forward."

Loyola 47, Beverly Hills 42

Maddox Daniels scored 17 points, making two 3-point baskets, in a fifth-place semifinal Friday.

The Normans trailed 13-12 at the end of the first quarter, 27-20 at halftime and 35-29 entering the fourth quarter.

"We missed some easy shots, had some crucial turnovers down the stretch," Turner said. "Hopefully that can be a learning experience for us down the road."

Turner blamed the loss on his team "not being as tight defensively" as it was against St. Bernard and giving the Cubs (5-2) "so many second-chance opportunities."

Mason Daniels added nine, Gaon seven, all in the first quarter, including a 3-point basket, Amir Hajirsooli five and Holt and Quiralte two each.

Loyola was ranked second in the Southern Section Division 2AA poll

Taft 48, Beverly Hills 39

The Normans led 26-14 at halftime of the championship semifinal Dec. 9, but were outscored 13-2 in the third quarter and 21-11 in the fourth.

In the second half, Beverly Hills, "didn't get good ball movement and we turned the basketball over probably every other trip up the floor," Turner said.

"We were either taking bad shots, because we were so eager to get a shot or we were just turning the basket ball over and when we would turn it over, it would lead to easy opportunities for them offensively and that is how they got back into the basketball game."

The Toreadors "are a good, physical basketball team and I think that our guys kind of got a little fatigued," Turner said.

Holt scored 13, Hajirsooli eight, Cho six on two 3-point baskets, Maddox Daniels six, including a 3-point basket, Mason Daniels four and Quiralte two.

Beverly Hills 45, Hamilton 27

The Normans played "a little bit more harder and tougher" because of the presence of a large crowd for the first-round game Dec. 7, Turner said.

Individual scoring totals for Beverly Hills were not available.

The Normans played all of their tournament games in the Swim-Gym. The tournament is named for Sax Elliot, a Beverly Hills coach and physical education teacher from 1935-50, with a four-year interruption to serve in the U.S. Navy during World War II, who was responsible for the tournament's creation and the construction of the Swim-Gym.
